

Clubs concerned over Euro kick-off times

GENEVA, Feb 26 (Reuters/Internet): Top European soccer clubs expressed their concern on Thursday over planned kick-off times for next season's re-styled Champions League and UEFA Cup competitions.

UEFA, European soccer's governing body, said at a working session of Europe's top 50 clubs here that it wants to streamline kick-off times to maximise TV coverage and not have matches going on for several hours across the three European time zones.

UEFA General Secretary Gerhard Aigner said that all matches in the Champions League were planned to kick off at 2045 Central European Time (usually 1945 GMT) while matches in the UEFA Cup would kick off between 1700 and 1800 CET (usually 1600-1700 GMT) or between 2000-2100 CET (usually 1900-2000 GMT).

The earlier time slot would, it is planned, be for matches in the east of Europe, while the later time would apply to matches in the western half of Europe.

"There are still some anomalies to be sorted out, but in general all matches will kick-off at those time slots," said Aigner.

"The clubs cannot choose their kick-off times in the Champions League -- that time is fixed. We are trying to create a better pattern with some minor flexibility involved."

"As far as the UEFA Cup is concerned we are trying to group all the matches into two time slots."

The fear among the clubs is that cultural differences and other traditions are being ignored.

In Portugal, for example, matches traditionally kick off around nine in the evening local time (2200 CET) after families have eaten their evening meal together. The Portuguese clubs were unhappy about the proposals and want UEFA to think again.

Also by UEFA's logic, if all Champions League matches kick off at 2045 CET, that would make the kick-off time in Moscow 2245 local.

Peter Kenyon, the deputy executive director of Manchester United, was among those worried by the proposals.

Although United are likely to be in the Champions League next season, if they were to compete in the UEFA Cup, he did not want the possibility of United being forced to kick off in an empty Old Trafford stadium at 4 p.m. British time while fans were still at work, college or school.

Kenyon said: "Obviously this causes us grave concern. It is unthinkable we could be kicking off at four o'clock in the afternoon in midweek, but under these proposals that could happen. It presents huge problems."

Charles will attend FA Cup final

LONDON, Feb 26: Prince Charles will present the famous jug-eared trophy at this year's FA Cup final. It was announced Thursday, reports AFP.

It is the 71st final at Wembley and the 118th in the history of the world's oldest football competition.

This year's final, on May 22, will be the last at Wembley before building work starts on a new 320-million pound ($500 million dollar) state-of-the-art stadium.

The day before the cup final the Prince of Wales will entertain VIP guests from the world of football for lunch at Highgrove, his home in the Gloucestershire countryside.

Representatives of the six football confederations will be joining the Prince for lunch and then attending the cup final the following day.

The Prince, whose protruding ears have often been linked to the FA Cup by British satirists, last presented the FA Cup in 1995 when Everton beat Manchester United 1-0.

His sons Princes William and Harry are keen supporters of last year's winners Arsenal.

Toshack to be tested by Betis

MADRID, Feb 26 (Reuters/Internet): Less than 72 hours after he signed to become the new coach of Real Madrid, John Toshack will find out the true colours of his new team.

The European champions face a difficult away trip to Real Betis on Saturday.

The Seville side's 13th place in the Primera Liga belies how formidable they have become at home since the arrival of former national coach Javier Clemente last October.

"I've got to be honest and say I have not got much idea about Betis," Toshack admitted on his arrival in the Spanish capital on Thursday.

He said that other than one television match "I don't know very much about them apart from their defender Filipescu who used to play in Turkey."

If he is not familiar with Real Betis, at least Toshack knows Clemente well.

"We are actually good friends although we were rivals when both of us were coaches in the Basque country and the last time I was at Real Madrid, the rivalry carried on here because Javier was coaching at Atletico," Toshack added.

The Welshman's first task will be to gain the trust of his players in what little time he has before Saturday afternoon.

Club captain Manuel Sanchez and Spanish international defender Fernando Hierro are survivors from his last spell at Real Madrid.

But the widely-respected Sanchez had some harsh words to say about Toshack after he was sacked by the club in November 1990.

"I lost my confidence as a player under Toshack," Sanchez said shortly afterwards.

Toshack, though, does not carry grudges back to the seven European champions, citing former Real president Ramon Mendez as the reason for the breakdown in the relationship.

"He (Mendez) was not an easy person to work with, Manuel may have lost his confidence as a player but I lost my confidence as a coach when I only had 20 minutes a day to work with the players," Toshack reflected on Thursday.

"Both of us have recovered our confidence now though. Manuel as a Real Madrid player and John Toshack as a coach. Manuel is a good professional and has a lot of experience."

Toshack does not expect to make immediate changes but he indicated Real's shaky defence needed some adjusting.

Thirty-six goals is a lot to have conceded. After a few games "I'll have a better idea of what needs to be done."

What he declined to add was that the Real who won the 1989-90 Spanish league title under him only let in two more goals all season than the current squad have in just 23 games.

Against Betis, Toshack will rely on the advice of caretaker coach Toni Grande, a Real stalwart who was Guus Hiddink's assistant prior to the Dutchman's departure in the early hours of Wednesday morning.

Yugoslav striker Predrag Mijatovic is expected to be back in the starting side but Christian Karembeu may also find his place in jeopardy.

Brazilian midfielder Savio could drop back from the front position he occupied in last Saturday's 1-0 loss to Athletic Bilbao or Croatian international Robert Jarni may return to push out the French World Cup winner who has struggled to find form.

Other Primera Liga matches this weekend (league positions in parentheses):

SATURDAY
BARCELONA (1) v VALENCIA (5)

Amid the media frenzy that has accompanied Toshack's arrival, it has almost been forgotten that league leaders Barcelona have a vital match against fifth-placed Valencia.

After being torn apart by Claudio Lopez, assisted by Gaizka Mendiete and Miguel Angel Angulo, in Valencia's 4-3 Spanish Cup quarter-final victory on Wednesday, Barcelona coach Luis van Gaal will have pondered how to shackle the speedy Argentine striker and his two main service providers.

Lopez has scored 11 times in the league this season and added four more in the two Spanish Cup quarter-final encounters with Barcelona.

"He must be stopped!" the Barcelona-based sports daily Sport exclaimed on Friday, over a full-size two-page picture of Lopez.

Barcelona captain Luis Figo is suspended but Luis van Gaal has not said who will replace him, with a dearth of right-sided players in the squad. Valencia will miss Jocelyn Angloma to a hamstring injury and former Barcelona midfielder Luis Milla is doubtful of playing against his old club.

ATLETICO MADRID (11) v OVIEDO (8)
Atletico's injury list lengthened when defender Stefano Torrisi pulled a hamstring in the midweek Cup tie against Espanyol. Santi Denia is expected to deputise. Juninho is likely to move into the front line alongside Jose Mari Romero, which leaves a space in midfield for Ramon Baraja. Oviedo have less worries but back problems make defender Cesar Martin doubtful.

REAL SOCIEDAD (9) v DEPORTIVO CORUNA (3)
Deportivo have lost Nourredine Naybet and Lionel Scaloni through suspension but coach Javier Irureta will wait until the last minute before naming replacements. Real Sociedad have lost Spanish international midfielder Francisco De Pedro for a month with a torn thigh muscle. Oscar De Paula or Aitor Lopez Rekarte will replace him.

ATHLETIC BILBAO (7) v CELTA VIGO (4)

The odds are against Celta at the San Mames stadium, where they have only won once in 38 visits. Injuries to Jordi Cruyff and Alexandr Mostovoi and four others are compounded by the suspension of Spanish international defender Michel Salgado. Athletic are likely to be unchanged from the side which beat Real Madrid 1-0 last Saturday.

SUNDAY
MALLORCA (2) v TENERIFE (20)

Mallorca coach Hector Cuper is expected to welcome back striker Hector Pineda after injury, although he may play in a deeper role with Luaren Etamene-Mayer still on the sidelines. Tenerife have dropped striker Melio Kodro and defenders Julio Llorente and Alexis Sanchez face late fitness tests.

RACING SANTANDER (15) v ALAVES (18)
Racing have no injury worries although discord is rampant in the squad after Colombian striker Leider Preciado accused team mates of being racist. Alaves are expected to be unchanged from the side who beat Tenerife 3-1 last weekend with former Real Madrid striker Manuel Canabal still on the bench.

VALLADOLID (16) v SALAMANCA (17)
Valladolid's Croatian marksman Alen Peternek has flu and Jose Luis Caminero has a left quadriceps strain. Salamanca say Portuguese midfielder Rogério Brito will replace the suspended Jose Americo Taira.

VILLARREAL (14) v ESPANYOL (12)
Villarreal will be without suspended midfielder Gerardo Garcia but welcome back striker Gica Craioveanu after a one-match ban. Espanyol's only previous visit to Villarreal was five seasons ago when both were in the second division and the Barcelona-based side won 3-0. They are expected to be unchanged after the weekend's 2-2 draw with Deportivo.

REAL ZARAGOZA (10) v EXTREMADURA (19)
Zaragoza coach Txetxu Rojo has said Farid Mondragon will retain his place in goal despite some poor recent performances but midfielder Roberto Acuna is still struggling to recover from a knee injury picked up last weekend. The same problem befell Extremadura's Claude Viaud and the Frenchman is also doubtful.

DEPORTIVO CORUNA (3) v REAL SOCIEDAD (9)
Deportivo have lost Nourredine Naybet and Lionel Scaloni through suspension but coach Javier Irureta will wait until the last minute before naming replacements. Real Sociedad have lost Spanish international midfielder Francisco De Pedro for a month with a torn thigh muscle. Oscar De Paula or Aitor Lopez Rekarte will replace him.

ANC backs handling of racist incidents

CAPE TOWN, Feb 26 (Reuters/Internet): South Africa's ruling African National Congress (ANC) praised the country's cricket governing body on Friday for its firm handling of two incidents of players using racist language.

Former South African test all-rounder Brian McMillan was forced on Thursday to make a public apology for racially offensive comments made during a local match. Another provincial player was banned until January 1, 2001, for abusive language.

"The cases against the two said gentlemen bear testimony to the fact that South African sport is still battling with racial prejudice," Lulu Xingwana, chairwoman of the ANC's study group on sport and recreation, said in a statement.

"But we are confident that the recent events and the action taken against the two gentlemen will serve as an example to others who might want to do the same."

McMillan was severely reprimanded by the United Cricket Board of South Africa (UCBSA) for advising a Western Province team-mate to deliver a "coolie creeper" to a non-white KwaZulu-Natal batsman in a first-class game earlier this month.

The phrase is South African cricketing jargon for a ball that shoots along the ground after pitching. "Coolie" is a derogatory British colonial term for a labourer of Indian descent.

In a separate incident, Eastern Province second XI player Alan Badenhorst was banned after being found guilty of calling a black opponent a "half-bred kaffir". Kaffir is one of the most offensive ways of addressing a black South African.

UCBSA president Ray White on Wednesday also criticised the all-white composition of teams fielded against New Zealand in two one-day internationals last week and said he did not expect it to happen again.

The ANC has repeatedly criticised the nation's rugby and cricket bodies for still fielding "lily-white" teams five years after the end of apartheid and has pushed for the introduction of minimum race quotas for national teams.

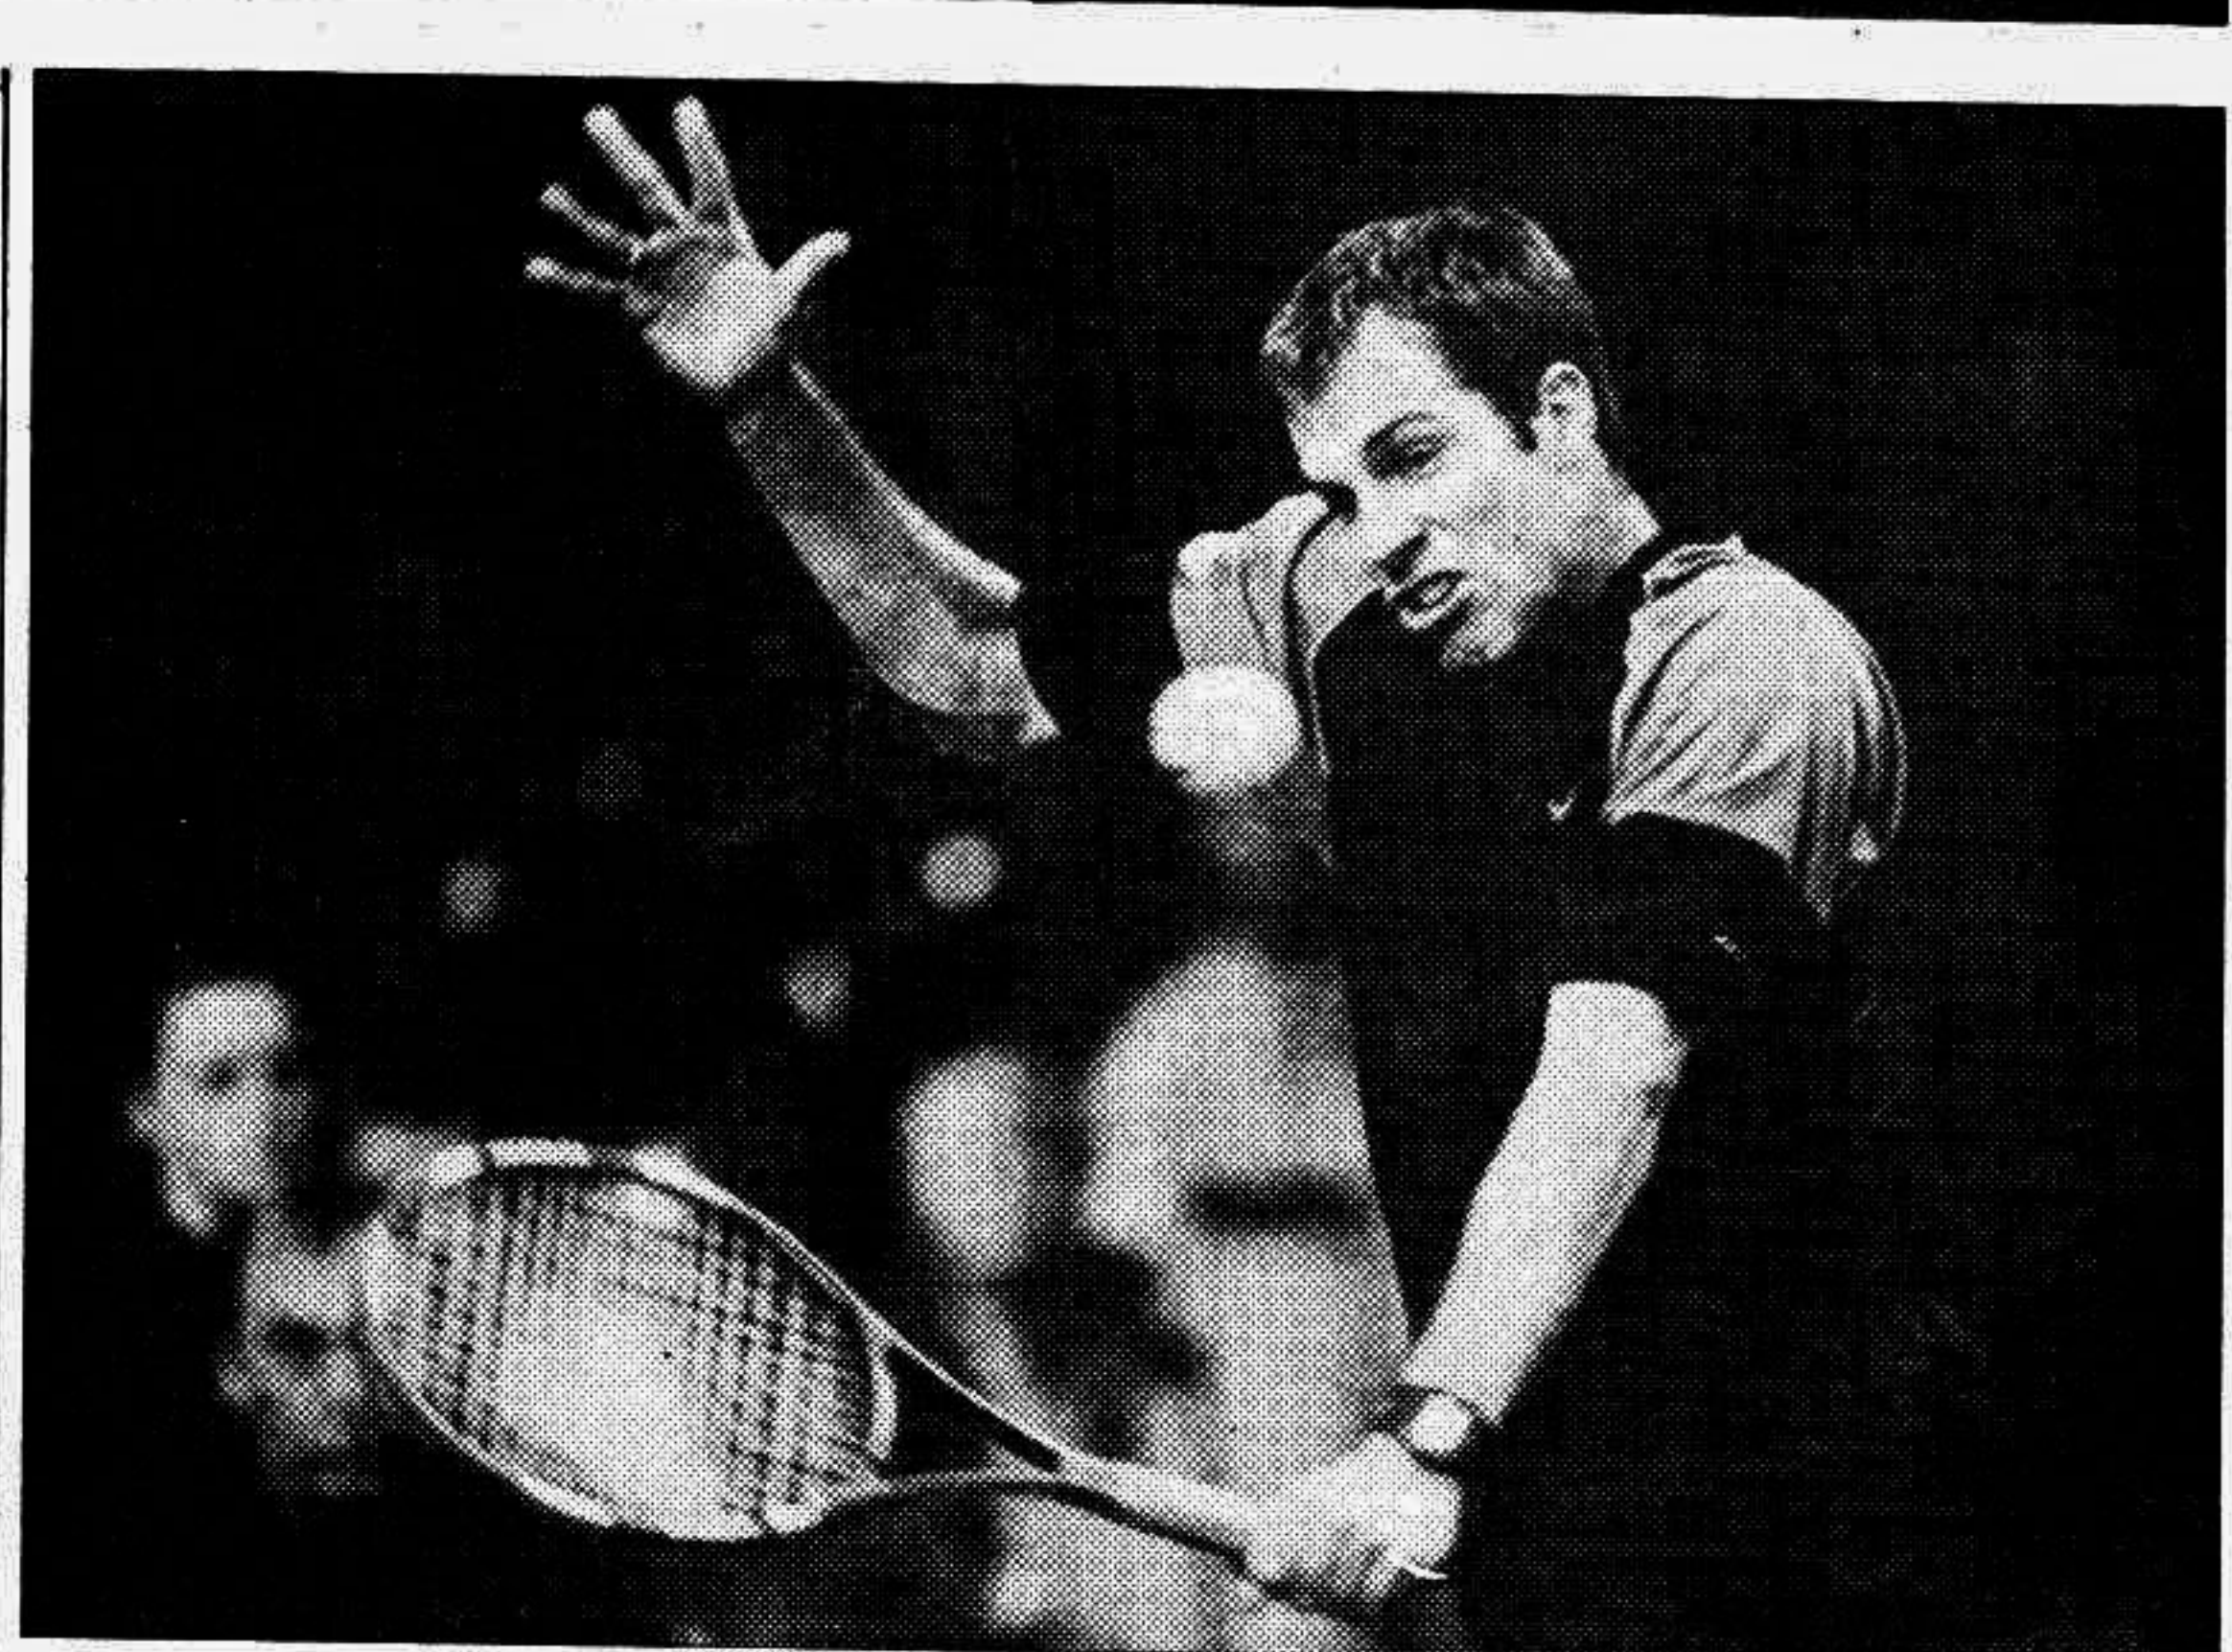

2 new records at Stockholm

STOCKHOLM, Feb 26: Germany's Nicole Humbert set a new women's indoors pole vault record Thursday evening, posting a 4.56m leap, reports AFP.

It beat the former mark of 4.55m, set by Australia's Emma George in Adelaide last year.

Mozambique's Maria Mutola had earlier set a new world indoor record here in the 1000m.

Mutola posted a time of 2:30.96 -- the previous best was 2:31.23, also set at Stockholm by the same athlete.

Venus, Amanda advance

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oklahoma, Feb 26: Venus Williams opened defence of her first WTA Tour singles championship on Thursday with a 6-1, 7-6 win over Kimberly Po in the second round of the 180,000 US dollars IGA SuperThrift Tennis Classic, reports Reuters.

Williams is fresh from a runner-up finish to Jana Novotna in the finals of the 520,000 dollars Faber Grand Prix last week in Hanover, Germany. She is ranked fifth and is top seeded in the Oklahoma City tournament she won a year ago.

Third-seeded Amanda Coetzer of South Africa has an easy time of it with a 6-1, 6-3 romp past Elena Wagner of Germany. Qualifier Lilia Osterloh, ranked 119th, continued to advance with a 6-4, 6-3 win over Japan's Miho Saeki.

Cara Black of Zimbabwe also made it into the quarterfinals by beating Alexandra Dechaume-Ballert of France 7-6, 7-6.

Williams jumped on Po in a hurry, nailing 116 mph (187 kph) ace on the first shot of the match. She needed just 22 minutes to take the first set 6-1 and had two service breaks.

The second set was a struggle for Williams as Po broke her serve once and took advantage of five double faults including three straight in the final game that forced the tiebreaker.

"I thought I was going to set a record in the first set," Po said.

"I didn't even see her first serve. I had never played her before and it took a while for me to adjust. There's a difference in respecting her and giving her the match."

"Her movement is a very big weapon. She is a tall girl and most players that big don't move very well. She moves well and can step up and hit it."

Williams, who will play amateur Alexandra Stevenson in the quarterfinals on Friday, was pleased with the win.

"Kim hits the ball flat and low and that is out of my strike zone," Williams explained. "You have no opportunity when you lose your serve. The double faults started creeping in during the second set."

"I felt good going into the match."

Williams is the only seeded player left in her side of the bracket while Coetzer, second seed Anna Kournikova and fifth seed Chanda Rubin are all in the other side.

Venus and her sister Serena Williams were among 10 players selected Thursday to the US Fed Cup team by captain Billie Jean King. Lindsay Davenport will play in the first-round Fed Cup match against Croatia in Zagreb April 17-18, King announced Thursday.

"I haven't talked to Billie Jean King," Venus Williams said. "But Serena and I are really looking forward to playing. We haven't played on a team like this before."

Coetzer is ranked 10th and beat Davenport and Monica Seles in the Pan Pacific tournament in Tokyo earlier this month. She had a struggle in the first round here on Monday, needing three sets to eliminate qualifier Nana Miyagi.

Things went more smoothly Thursday as she breezed past Wagner in straight sets.

"I made a few less errors and was more consistent," Coetzer said. "I thought I served very well and I'm happy about that."

No 1 beckons Kafelnikov

LONDON, Feb 26 (AP): Russian Yevgeny Kafelnikov is about to replace Pete Sampras as tennis No. 1-ranked player.

The 25-year-old Russian, the hottest player in the world this year with a victory three weeks ago in the Australian Open, will move into the top spot in the ATP Tour rankings with a victory Friday over Thomas Johansson of Sweden in the quarterfinals of the Guardian Direct Cup indoor tournament.

Kafelnikov put himself in position to knock Sampras off his perch with a second-round victory Thursday over Byron Black of Zimbabwe 6-3, 6-2.

Johansson, the No. 8 seed, advanced beating Davide Sanguinetti of Italy 6-0, 6-7, 6-2. In other second-round matches: No. 5 Karol Kucera of Slovakia won over Guillaume Raoux of France, 6-2, 6-0; Slovak Dominik Hrbaty defeated fellow countryman Jan Krosak 6-2, 6-3; No. 3 Greg Rusedski of Britain beat Petr Korda of the Czech Republic 6-3, 7-6.

If the No. 2-ranked Kafelnikov beats Johansson, he will become only the 15th player to hold the top spot since rankings were begun in 1973.

Sampras — taking the week off — had 3,695 ATP ranking points going into this week and Kafelnikov had 3,637. Kafelnikov would pick up the 59 needed to overtake Sampras with a win over the Swede.

"I am not putting too much pressure on myself," Kafelnikov said. "I know this year it is going to happen, but I hope that it will happen here this week."

"I think it really helps tennis to see a bit of change," he added. "I'm playing as well as I have ever played. For sure, I know someday I will not be so good, but that is the way it is now."

"I can't ask for any better. I'm happy to get through and I'm looking forward to the quarterfinal. I'm sure I'll be excited if I win but I have to take the match as seriously as possible."

Kafelnikov has a 4-2 edge in head-to-head matches with the 19th-ranked Johansson. They are 1-1 in matches on carpet, which is surface being used here.

Sampras was knocked out of the No. 1 spot for a total of six weeks last year — both times by Chilean Marcelo Rios.

Sampras, 27, returned to No. 1 on August 24 and set an ATP Tour record by finishing No. 1 for the sixth straight season. He has held the No. 1 spot for 260 weeks — 10 short of the ATP record held by Ivan Lendl.

Kafelnikov won the Australian Open three weeks ago, then added to it with an indoor title last week in Rotterdam.

He would become the first Russian player to ever hold the No. 1 ranking and the first from a former Eastern Bloc country since Lendl and Ilie Nastase.

More trouble awaiting IOC?

WASHINGTON, Feb 26: US senators are looking at ways to financially punish the International Olympic Committee if the organisation does not clean up its operations, a congressional aide says, reports AP.

Senator Ted Stevens of Alaska and Commerce Committee Chairman John McCain of Arizona, both Republicans, expect to decide Thursday whether to hold hearings next week on possible sanctions against the IOC, according to Trevor McCabe, Stevens' legislative director.

Stevens is looking at several options to force change in the aftermath of the corruption scandal surrounding the 2002 Games in Salt Lake City. McCabe said. The options under consideration include taking away or limiting the IOC's tax-exempt status and the revenue it earns from broadcast rights.
