When the King Sings

JAGJIT Singh. His name spells fame, fortune, glamour, elegance, vogue... the list goes on. He is the undisputed 'King of Ghazal' as Asma Ahmed Masud put it on the opening day of 'Ghazal Evening by Jagjit Singh'. He is not only the best in India but also in the subcontinent, if not the world. There are few singers of his calibre - his dedication, his versatile voice and the witty maxims at stage performances are but a few of his attributes. He is not only a popular singer; he is also a wonderful human being. The way he responds to the audience, the way he talks to them is a telling example. He does not have any 'airs' about him, he does not look at everybody else with an oh-so-mighty attitude, he is just like anybody else.

by Nadine Murshid

The long-awaited evening started with Asma Ahmed Masud and Rasheda Mohiuddin giving an introduction to Jagjit. Then, Hena Kabir, the head of 'Shetubandha', the cultural organization that brought Jagjit to Dhaka, gave a small speech. She spoke of her organization, whose main goal was to patronize distressed artists and develop latent talent among would-be singers. She then mentioned how hard she worked for bringing Jagjit to Dhaka. She said that the VAT collectors were making her life difficult. She then thanked the audience for their presence and the local singers for their cooperation. She mentioned Jagjit's Fan Club in Bangladesh who pleaded her to bring their idol to town. She thanked the government, which gave her permission without hassle. She did not receive any sponsorship from anyone, she did not get any advertisements from anyone and if she had the money, she wouldn't have sold tickets at all - she would have allowed everyone to enjoy Jagjit's ghazals without money. She remembered Khan Ataur Rahman, who had helped build 'Shetubandha'. She acknowledged Nilufer Yasmin, Shubir Nandi (it was nice to see him back in his shoes again) and Shaheen Samad, who were her source of inspiration. Then she called on Jagjit Singh, who came on stage with Shubir Nandi and hugged Hena Kabir.

The king of Ghazal, Jagjit Singh presented his celebrated numbers with full-throated ease

Then began the much-awaited part of the evening. As the spectators looked on with enthusiasm and excitement, Jagjit started his Aalap. With him were Deepak Pundit (violin), Arshad Ahmed (guitar), Shubhat Chatterjee (dholak) Avina Upadhi (tabla) and Shubir Nandi (sound).

The first ghazal of the evening was 'Apne hoto par sajana chana ho'. As Jagjit started this number, the audience sang along, clapping and cheering. 'Akhri Nich ki tere zalohey...' they all went on. Obviously, Jagjit was very popular among the spectators. 'Apni marzi se kaha apni safar ke hum hai...' was the second ghazal. The melodious tune and the enchanting voice enthralled everyone present and hands of applause filled the auditorium every now and then. All were very appreciative of Jagjit's enticing, eloquent songs. '(Kal) Chandni ke chad se, Chand ki raat hai...' Kuch ne kaha yeh chad hai... Kuch ne kaha chup tera... Hum hasti tum chup ra-hey...', the tehai of the tabla and the violin's vivacious and lively strokes mesmerised the audience even more. Next was a relatively short song, 'Baat nikley to phir dur chala jayegi...' Almost everyone put their hands together as he started 'Tera chehra kitna suhana lagta hai...' tere aagey chand purana lagta hai... Then the violin, tabla and guitar played on, while Jagjit bellowed at the harmonium. Even that was absolutely enrapturing and was very well accepted by the congregation. 'Dha ni pa ma pa dha ni re... dha ma ni re sa...' and then 'Koun wa ayega yaha... koi na hogaya... mera tarwa haowamey... dil nadan dharan... diley nadan dharan' was very very nice too. It was not too difficult to get lost in his music or get transformed into the world of ghazals even with so many people around. 'Yeh doulai bhi le lo... yeh shohrai bhi le lo... bhale chin lo modish merry Joana... Magyar much KO loot do...' followed and so did the audience. As they sang along and clapped to its beat, the song came to an end, after which there was a break for fifteen minutes.

After the break, in which people ate, talked and socialised, Jagjit returned with his famous 'Aghista', much to the pleasure of his fans. 'Sadat ti jay hai...' he sang and the audience delighted in it. The tehai of the tabla again added special effects, not to mention the violin, which seemed to have a life of its own. Then, 'Zindagi ko tumko dekha ko yeh khayal aya...' and 'Hazaro har khushi ke aisi...' supervened. Thereafter, 'Jhuki jhuki se nazar bekarar hai...' fascinated the audience and while this reporter was walking towards the exit, Jagjit began 'Hoto se chulo tum, mera geet amar kardo...' with passion and ardour.

Jagjit's arrival in Dhaka was a dream come true for many. He is a legend in his own rights and this was an excellent opportunity for all to see him perform live. It was a wonderfully enchanting evening for all that were lucky enough to be there with him on any of the two evenings. It was definitely a memorable evening and there is no doubt that all that were present will remember and cherish the memory of Jagjit Singh.

Dulcet Tones Emanating from the Armenian Church

DESPITE the heat in the Armenian Church, Armanitola, Old Dhaka, whose fans had been put off so that the sounds could be heard, the singing of 'Morning Sky', 'Cantemus' and 'Expatria' filled the air with sonorous sounds that reminded one of angels' voices. With Christmas celebrations just behind and Easter to come, the religious songs as well as the not so religious ones filled one's heart with joy. Most of the singers of the three groups were expats. They dressed in black and white, on the whole, while the 'Expatria' had floral and exotic motifs on their black boleros and jackets.

The purpose of the concert was to revive interest in the old Armenian Church and to provide a good time for listeners of western Christian religious music as well as a normal type of music in dulcet and tender tones, that soothed your soul,

An evening of fascinating music heart and mind. The other reason was to provide pure pleasure to the concert colere in the city.

The pieces sung last evening included 'Agnus Dei', 'Christus factus est', 'When Jesus wept' and 'The Lord is ris'n indeed' by the 'Cantemus' group; 'Ave Maria', 'Ovos omnes', 'Salve Regina' and 'Hear my prayer, O Lord' by 'Expatria' group (vocal octet) 'Cantemus' (chamber choir) added 'April is in my mistress' face', 'Phyllis, farewell', 'Da unten im Tale', and 'In stiller Nacht'; while the 'Morning Sky' group (chamber choir) sang on with 'Il est bel et bon', 'Enchanting song', 'On Suuri sun rantas autius' and 'Hay una majur desaparecida'. The 'Expatria' group ended with 'Si ben, mi c'ha bon tempo', 'L'ultimo di Maggio', 'Consume my meaning', 'Weep O mine eyes' and 'Fyer, fyer!'

The singers included Anne Aarnes, Virginia Reekie, Micheal Edwards, Pam Dister, Oscar Newberry, Thayne Whipple, Petra Oskiski, Leslie Jack, Alain Delaune, Timothy Smith, Prue Harman, Effie Sparkhall and others.

The singing drew crowds that filled the church to a bursting point, including individuals ranging from babies to middle-aged people. M J Martin, the pastor, played host to refreshments after the dry hot evening.

Life is a Living Tragedy

EVEN the moon is not without a spot. Nothing is absolutely right in the universe. So, how can the children's acting attain the zenith of perfection? Yet, there is no denying the fact that people felt mesmerized by the brilliant performance of little actors on the stage of The Public Library Auditorium, shaped up as house for dramatic representations on the occasion of The National Child-Juvenile Theatre Festival '99. On the 18th March, the consecutive fifteenth day of the festival, teens as well as pre-teens adroitly represented a slice of life before the audience.

by Mahfuz Ali

The festival began, as in other days, at 4:30 pm in a musical atmosphere. And there gleamed before the eyes of the spectators dramatic representations of three theatre troupes namely, 'Ontor Dristy Shishu Theatre, Dhaka', 'Cranty Khe-laghor, Ashore, Narayanagar', and 'Tongl Shishu Kishore Theatre, Tongl'. And the plays staged by them were 'Natok Noy Jibon Kahinee', 'Orup Kothar Galpo' and 'Suti'.

A scene from the play entitled 'Natok Noy Jibon Kahinee', performed on the stage of the Public Library auditorium on 18th March on the occasion of The National Child-Juvenile Theatre Festival '99.

Boys as well as girls belonging to 'Ontor Dristy Shishu Theatre, Dhaka' in staging the play entitled 'Natok Noy Jibon Kahinee' reflected the truth 'Life is a living tragedy'. Already the theatre troupes namely, 'Tokai Natya Dal, Dhaka', 'Bangabandhu Shishu Kishore Mela Dhaka Moha Nageri' projected the distressed condition of the rootless children elaborately. But when one little actor belonging to 'Ontor Dristy Shishu Theatre, Dhaka' on behalf of the rootless children began to say 'Honorable audience, you will go back to your residence, remain oblivious of the sufferings of the 'Tokai' and become rapt in your own thinking as the pay ends. But can you not work together to change the lot of the rootless children?'

It provided the conscientious audience with food for new thinking, enabling them to grow curious about the defective aspects of the infrastructure of our society.

Being victimized by people living in society, the rootless children become skeptical about the role of its governing force. Even it doesn't stand within the prospect of their credibility that people might edge forward on personal level to takes steps to bring an end to their oppressed condition. In the play 'Natok Noy Jibon Kahinee' when the film-maker uncovered an intention of exchanging talks with the rootless children, they humorously reacted to it, showing no interest to unearth facts or evidence about themselves.

Their tragic sufferings unfurl before the eyes of people living in society. But they don't take it seriously. But when little actors through their performance focused light on the sufferings of the rootless children, the audience began to calculate it as a social problem. And they (Audience) felt that they should have orchestrated a movement to lessen their sufferings.

When the play ended, Zillur Rahman John, a renowned artist of our country walked up the stage, congratulated the little actors on behalf of The Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy and gave them the laudatory certificates.

Style!

on BBC World at 10 pm
Style! is the weekly magazine show which aims to showcase anything and everything that's stylish - from the ultra-modern to the truly ancient from urban chic to rural savvy; from art to performance; from hip to traditional... if it's got style it's here. Every week Style! takes the viewer down routes familiar and not-so-familiar. Fashion both modern and traditional are a mainstay of the programme - from the biggest designer names in India to cheap and cheerful costume jewellery, from men's underwear to eco fashion - if it's got style it's in Style! And anyone who's anyone with style and panache is featured on the show: Shabana Azmi, Sushmita Sen and Vidhu Vinod Chopra are only three of the names. Just some of the stories you'll find in the show that's essential for anyone interested in style.

The show is presented by actor and television presenter Rahul Bose and Narrata Barua.
