Price rise of furnace oil

PANCHAGARH, Mar 22: Industrial units in the northern districts are facing closure after incurring recurring losses due to price rise of furnace oil, entrepreneurs claimed, reports APB.

The price of furnace oil has been raised to Tk 5.22 per litre from Tk 4.22. There are about 60 medium size industrial units in the region using furnace oil and their total losses would run up to crores of taka due to high cost of the fuel, they claimed. Acute crisis of fodder

COMILLA, Mar 22: The latest item added to the list of goods smuggled into the country is hay, reports APB.

A one-maund bundle of smuggled hay now sells at between Tk 100 and Tk 150 in the local markets. An acute scarcity of fodder is prevailing in the district as an after-effect of last year's flood and elderly people say they never saw hay being sold openly in the markets. Prices of other cattle feed like Khal and Bhusi have also become dearer. The devastating flood damaged Aman crops on some 100,000 acres of land. Prior to that, farmers also lost the Boro crop, which aggravated the fodder crisis in the district as elsewhere in the country.

Fund for road construction work

NARSINGDI, Mar 22: The people of Kaliganj feel mighty inspired following sanction of funds by the ECNEC for construction of a 25 kilometer Tongi-Kaliganj-Ghorashal road, reports APB.

Kaliganj, an industrial centre, will have direct road connection with the capital and the rest of the country when the proposed road will be completed. Although there are two large fertiliser factories, six jute mills and more than 50 small and medium sized industries in the area, their products can not be transported smoothly to other parts of the country now. Construction of the proposed inter-district road will add an altogether new dimension to the socio-economic development of the area, local people say.

JHENIDAH: Overloading on buses has become a regular feature on Jhenidah-Kushtia road and along other routes. Road accidents occur frequently due to this phenomenon. The members of law enforcing agencies seem to be indifferent to check the unhealthy trend. — Star photo

Rajpunnah: The traditional festival of Bandarban Hill Dist

From A Correspondent

Bohmong chief Maung Shwe Prue Chowdhury, escorted by his courtiers, proceeding towards the venue of Rajpunnah.

BANDARBAN, Mar 22: Rajpunnah is an age old traditional annual universal festival being celebrated regularly in Bohmong circle.

The Bohmong circle comprises of Bandarban Hill District and a part of Rangamati district having an area of 1702 square miles with 109 mouzas. Of the 13 tribes living in Chittagong Hill Tracts the tribes living in the circle are the Marma, the Mro, the Tonchonggya, the Tripura, the Bom, the Chakma, the Chak, the Khinag, the Khumi, the Lusa and the Pangkho.

Rajpunnah, better known as meta or fair is being held, primarily on the basis of the particular traditions and customs relating to land and land revenue.

Rajpunnah was also the traditional annual festival in other two circles: The Chakma and the Mong circle of Chittagong Hill Tracts. But unfortunately, the celebration of Rajpunnah in these two circles has already been discontinued for reasons best known to the concerned people.

The exact year and date of introduction of Rajpunnah is very difficult to ascertain. But it may be presumed, this is linked with the incident of the establishment of present Bandarban town during the reign of Bohmong king Sa Thang Prue in 1822 and the application of the Chittagong Hill Tracts Regulation, 1900 by the British wherein Chittagong Hill Tracts have been divided into three circles.

During the British rule the revenue administration, revenue collection, administering social justice, and performance of social functions have been entrusted up on the circle chiefs, popularly known as karbari. For smooth running of the administration each circle has been divided into mouza and mouza into para. Mouza chief known as headman is appointed by the government in consultation with the circle chief and the para head known as karbari is appointed by the circle chief himself.

The king used to collect tax at a fixed rate from the Jhum cultivators and from the people enjoying groveland though mouza headman and karbari. The headmen and the karbaris after collecting tax from within their respective mouzas and paras presenting themselves before the king on a particular date, deposited the same to him ceremoniously. The function relating to land revenue, thus arranged on this day is called as Pongjira in Marma of Rajpunnah in Bangla.

Rajpunnah is a universal festival of the Bohmong circle where members of all tribal communities as well as non-tribals of the circle irrespective of age, sex and religion used to gather and in which they participate. Though the Bohmong chief belongs to the Marma community, yet the represents all people of his circle symbolising unity in diversity. The celebration of the festival is tagged a particularly with their main occupation Jhum cultivation. Usually Rajpunnah and the fair are being held convenient time to the determined in accordance with the Marma calendar year in the month of December. During this time the financial condition of the general people remains somewhat satisfactory, at least for the time being, because of harvest of Jhum. So their participation in the fair is spontaneous with gaiety. Generally the duration of the fair organised on the occasion of Rajpunnah is three days.

In the recent past most of the dwellers of the Bohmong circle who lived in the remote forests and hills had to traverse through forests and rough ravines infested with ferocious wild animals to reach Bandarban town.

Today though the situation improves to a certain extent, still there are many inaccessible areas from where journey to Bandarban town is trouble some. Innocent, simple natured tribal people believe that Raj Darshan (to see the king) not only brings fortune to them, it would be a source of pleasant remembrance till their death. In those old days, to them it was almost impossible to meet the chief and receive his blessings. Rajpunnah is such an occasion where they can meet the king to show their respect and receive his blessings. So every year members of all the tribal communities living in Bohmong circle irrespective of age, sex, religious belief and economic condition ignoring all sorts of hazards and obstacles, used to come to Bandarban town to see and to pay their profound respect to the king.

People from different areas of the circle as well as different parts of the country particularly from the adjoining Chittagong district begins to throng at Bandarban town, occupying every available residential accommodation a few days before Rajpunnah. Shops of various kinds and commodities are arranged with both traditional tribal and modern items occupies the open field in front of the Rajbari. There are temporary hotels and restaurants offering local traditional food items demonstrating workmanship of culinary arts. Arrangements are there for merry making and fun including circus, holding of drama and jatra, puppet show and variety show for all ages. Above all, drinks which is an inseparable part of the tribal life and culture, are freely consumed by the participants both tribals and non-tribals of the fair. Government high officials and local elite are invited on this occasion. The entire Bandarban town takes a festive look. From the morning of the day of the commencement of Rajpunnah the tribal musicians with their traditional musical instruments create a festive atmosphere in the courtyard and surroundings of the Rajbari with their music and orchestra Ujir, Najir, Jamadar, Rozza, Dagang and other courtiers of the king dressed in formal attire stand in rows from the main gate of the Rajbari to respect to the king. In a similar fashion tribal boys and girls, young men and women used to wait with flowers and garlands to receive him. The Raj Darbar Hall is decorated befitting on the occasion. Before noon the king putting on formal traditional dress arrives at Darbar Hall with the invited guests and members of the Royal family in a procession. The arrival is marked with booming of the guns, orchestra and cheerful voices of the waiting people. The entire area turns into a human sea and the Darbar Hall is closely packed with curious faces. At that time dances are performed by the nautch girls. Till afternoon taxes are being collected from the headmen. There is also usage of presenting various gifts along with the tax. On the day of Rajpunnah the invitees are entertained with feasts and on the day the king usually invites the headmen, karbaris and the employees in a dinner which is followed by jatra performance and cultural functions. The pleasant experiences of Rajpunnah and the fair remain a matter of sweet memory in the minds of common people in their coming day.

After the death of the 14th Bohmong chief Bohman-Gree Maung Shwe Prue Chowdhury on 16 June 1996, there starts a legal battle over the recognition and appointment of Bohmong king between the former minister Aung Shwe Prue Chowdhury and KS Prue Chowdhury. As a result, the Rajpunnah could not be held and celebrated during the last three years. The last year the government recognised and appointed Aung Shwe Prue Chowdhury as the Bohmong chief and his investiture was conducted by the concerned official. With his appointment as chief this year Rajpunnah was held from 12 to 14th February though unostentatiously, but this removes the apprehension from the mind of the local people that the age old traditional Rajpunnah will be discontinued like other two circles. They are now inclined to believe that the Rajpunnah will continue to be celebrated in future. Rajpunnah may attract tourists from home and abroad.

Inmates of Sadullapur Adarsha Gram in misery

From K M Rezaul Hoque

GAIBANDHA, Mar 22: The villagers of Sadullapur Adarsha Gram, a model village here, have been passing days in acute hardship.

Now they have no alternatives other than begging just for survival. The villagers have no adequate food.

This model village accommodated 36 destitute landless families. Three years ago a model village named Sadullapur Adarsha Gram was set up with a view to rehabilitating the destitute families. The village was set up at Begram, about two kilometres off Sadullapur thana on the bank of the river Ghagot. During setting up of the village each family was provided with 14 decimel land and a medium tin-shed house. There 36 destitute families took shelter. Since then nothing was done for the welfare of the inmates of the village. Now they are passing hard days with acute poverty.

While talking to some inmates of the village named Fazlu Mia, Debendra, Madhu Mia and Shah Alam, they narrated their miserable condition of life to this correspondent. According to their opinion no permanent measure was taken from any quarters to properly rehabilitate them. They also remain deprived from any government help.

During the last flood the Thana Nirbahi Officer (TNO) of Sadullapur thana distributed five kilograms of rice to each of them. Once they received three kilograms of rice per head. Only four lucky inmates of the village managed VGD cards for them.

During visit in the area this correspondent found most of the inmates suffering from malnutrition. They were found to boil gourd, potato and green banana for their lunch as they had nothing to cook for the day.

One Modhu Mia told that he had seen so many visitors with a lot of commitments, but in vain. He further narrated almost bitterly that many of them rarely tasted boiled rice since last two weeks.

The only office room of the model remains abandoned.
