Dilip Kumar (L) sharing a joke with a co-artist in FEMCOM's upcoming film on HIV/AIDS. The film also includes big names such as Jackie Shroff and Shabana Azmi.

FEMCOM (Female Communitarianism) has recently taken an innovative step to reach the masses at the grassroots level through a film on HIV/AIDS which will include actors like Dilip Kumar, Jackie Shroff, Shabana Azmi etc.

by Fayza Haq
From Bangladesh artists like Diti and Probrin Mitra will take part.

With Nargis Akter as the director and Parveen Ahmed as the founder member, this group of women directors, technicians in the audio visual media, Femcom's People of the Flood on community based fisheries management starring Ilias Kanchan and Diti (L).

included Raunak Sharmeen, Mahmuda Khan and Mohida Begum by '92. Today its members include active workers like Rukhsana Shilpi, Rowshan Jehan, Anju Ara Firdousi, Farhana and Laila Afaz.

"As a women group, until three years ago, our organisation was often rejected since there were no other similar women group, and the competition with men was intense. Now, however, we are on par with men because of the quality of their performance. Now the work comes to us instead of us chasing the jobs as FemCom's work is fully recognised." Nargis Akter comments. She adds, "I believe if you have the brains and the skill, no job is limited to men. At times, during production deadline one has to work as much as 18 hours a day at a stretch."

The notable works done by Femcom is motivational telefilms on HIV/AIDS prevention and control "Ajana Ghatank" (telecast thrice on TV on World AIDS Day, '96-'99), the donor being the Ford Foundation. Within 18 months they created "People of the Flood", a multimedia project on community based fisheries management. Audio-video, still photographs, slides and audio cassettes were included in this. The Ford Foundation supported this project. With OXFAM's help, Femcom created "Cyclone Preparedness" a TV spot and "Safe Motherhood", another message oriented TV spot backed by UNICEF.

The individuals working continuously in Femcom are women technicians. They are camera women, editors, sound recordists, production managers and directors. In order to make the institution financially viable, it gets funds from foreign donors like the DFID (Department for International Development), CIDA, OXFAM, GTZ (German Technical Assistance Team) the Ford Foundation and NCTB (National Curriculum Text Book Board).

So far the organisation has made 45 films on subjects like HIV/AIDS; community based fisheries management; women's rights; reproductive health; old age problems; women and cyclone; flood management; gender issues; environmental control (focusing on polythene waste).

Nargis Akter herself has studied at Bangalore and Canada. In the past seven years three video training courses for women have been carried out by Femcom in which 15 women were included in each course. These were NGO workers and private individuals who wanted to build up a career in this field.

Femcom plans to provide media services to concerned groups and agencies. It focuses on the position of women and children in our society and contributes to the empowerment of women. There is also the information gathering and documentation of incidents of oppression and social injustices on women, children and other vulnerable social groups. It also tries to create opportunities for women to acquire technical skill of the video.

theatre Ghar Jamai

by Nafid Imran Ahmed

USUALLY when Dhaka Theater is on stage all the tickets sells like hot cakes, especially when it is a comedy. Dhaka Theater's 7th presentation "Ghar Jamai" on 5th March at Mohila Shomiti Playhouse was no exception.

The play is a translation of Moliere's comedy, "Georges Dandin". Directed and translated by Golam Sarwar the play is a humorous story of a "Ghar Jamai" who is an idiot and married to a wealthy man's daughter who is two times him in size. She takes advantage of his stupidity and can cover up her actions when she gets caught.

In one of the scenes, her husband catches her inside their house (which was a gift from his father-in-law had a name plate hung on top of the building) which said, "Shoshurer Dan" while she was having a good time with her boyfriend. The husband immediately ran to her parents to report about their daughter. Her parents were as stupid as their son-in-law was, and they did not believe him. Therefore, for proving this, he took them with him to catch them red handed. Sadly for the "Ghar Jamai" the spy maid/servant of his house alerted his wife and her boyfriend before they reached the place, and she started acting as an innocent wife. Her parents were very happy but her husband was furious about this and was planning for revenge.

This is the backdrop of the play; the stupidity of the "ghar jamaai", the advantages that his wife took as a result and the general opinion of the rest of the cast (about the ghar jamaai). It signified the way our society thinks and reacts to people like the husband in this play.

Dhaka Theater proved yet again that they are capable of producing note worthy comedies, which are enjoyable, funny and refreshing after a hot and busy day. The cast was good - they performed brilliantly and even the dim lights of the auditorium could not mar the beauty of it.

trend Books and Women: Still the Best of Friends?

BOOKS - they are supposed to be the best companion for lonely hearts and souls, but not anymore. Why? The answer is simple - everyone is too busy to feel lonely, let alone do something to get over the loneliness. Of course, there are still some bookworms who make (not find) time to read a good book or two once in a while, but they are mere exceptions.

Women and books - they went hand in hand during the 50s and 60s; it was the time when they formed the majority of the readers. How much has that changed over the years?

by Nadine Murshid
The Daily Star talked to a few mothers and housewives and the answers show how startling the change has been. One Momena Khan, the mother of two children, said "My daily routine starts at 8 in the morning and I still wish there were a few more hours during the day! Making snacks for my children, preparing breakfast and sending them to school and then preparing breakfast for my husband and in-laws take up most of my morning. It continues with more food preparation and seeing to everyone's needs. I really don't have time to read a full-length storybook. I love Sharatchandra and Bongkim, but there is not much I can do about it."

Then Salma Rahman, a rather young mother of a 4-year-old said, "I read Robin Cook and Harold Robbins. Actually, I don't have time to read classics or any other good books. My son has to be looked after and in between it's fun to read these books."

A happy-go-lucky sort of a woman, Anita Sarkar said, "Books? I don't even remember the last time I read a book!" Well, at least she was honest!

Muna Amin said, "I've finished reading all of Rabindranath's novels, and I really enjoy them. It's difficult to find time but if you want to you can make time for reading. I also like Jibananda Das. Among contemporary writers I like Humayun Azad and Shaharir Kabir."

The reading culture has evolved and changed over the years, just like everything else, especially among women. As it can be seen, most women are too busy to read anything other than the writings on cereal boxes and biscuit packets. At the rate it's going, will books become extinct too? One cannot help but wonder...

Margaret Atwood with Tim Sebastian
Booker Prize and Whitbread winner, had early status as a feminist writer; her first book The Edible Woman addressed the question of eating disorders long before it was a mainstream concern. Her next novel 'Surfacing' about a woman asserting her identity and daring to be wild turned her into a cult figure. Her later novels deal with how insistently women can be and as a writer she's far more complex than the label 'feminist writer' would suggest. Her fiction is unsettling, painful and complex.
