22-clause revised code of conduct introduced for print media

Bangladesh Press Council vised code of conduct for journalists and newspaper and news agencies prohibiting any campaign against the Liberation War or communal harmony, reports BSS.

The Daily Star 2

The spirit and ideals of the independence and the Liberation War must be upheld and there can be no campaigns against the spirit," says the first clause of the code, formulated under article 11: (B) of the Press Council Act.

The code says communalism must be strongly discouraged to uphold national unity and the press must refrain from publishing any comments against any person or community which might hurt or show disrespect to their caste, creed, nationality or religion.

The Press Council directives. which were approved in its ninth general meeting of the 10th council early this month, also introduced two separate specimens of oaths for journalists and publishers.
