Congolese army seizes main rival base

MBANDZA-NDOUNGA, Congo, May 5: The Congolese army has taken control of Mbandza-Ndounga, the main base of the rival Ninja militia backing former prime minister Bernard Kolelas, an officer told AFP today, reports AFP. The army took the base, some 50 kilometres southwest of Brazzaville, last Saturday without a fight, said the officer, who requested anonymity.

He said government forces had also taken, on Sunday, the city of Kinkala, capital of the Pool region, some 75 kilometres west of Brazzaville.

No sign of clashes was visible in Mbandza-Ndounga, where the Ninjas, who have been fighting government forces since December, had their main base.

However, on the road to the camp seven burned tanks were abandoned from earlier fighting, along with about a dozen rotting corpses.

The NATO spokesman said Clinton had brought a two-fold message on his visit to Europe: the importance of encouraging diplomatic efforts to secure a settlement of the conflict and continuing determination to keep stepping up the bombing until Milosevic accepts the demands of the international community.

Earlier, Clinton briefed

NATO Secretary General Javier Solana on his talks with Russian envoy Viktor Chernomyrdin, who has been engaged in a peace mission.

After three hours at the NATO headquarters, Clinton was holding a brief meeting with Belgian Prime Minister Jean-Luc Dehaene . He then flew on to Germany at the US Air Force base in Spangdahlem, near Koblenz, to visit aircrews.

Clinton was to head later Wednesday to Ramstein, another US base in western Germany where he was to meet the three US servicemen released by Belgrade on Sunday after a month in captivity.

Everest team sends tissue sample from Mallory's body

SEATTLE, May 5: Climbers who discovered the body of George Mallory on Mount Everest have sent a tissue sample for testing to prove conclusively the remains were those of the British explorer lost in 1924, an expedition official said on Tuesday, reports Reuter. Erin Copland.

spokeswoman for the Mallory and Irvine Research Expedition in Ashford, Washington, also said other artifacts were taken from the body, including "written materials" and a broken rope that strongly suggests Mallory plunged to his death in the ill-fated summit attempt.

The expedition stunned the climbing world over the weekend with news they had found Mallory's body at 27,000 feet (8,230 metres), about 2,000 vertical feet (610 metres) below Everest's summit.

The discovery instantly renewed debate over whether Mallory - and possibly his younger, less experienced climbing partner, Andrew Irvine, who also died on the mountain - might have been the first to reach the summit. Lankan army to recruit

Tamil soldiers COLOMBO, May 5: For the first time in a decade, Sri

Lanka's army opened 15 recruitment centers in the country's northeast Wednesday to recruit Tamil soldiers in the region where militants have been fighting for an independent homeland, reports AP. Stung by charges that the army was not recruiting enough Tamils, recruitment centers were set up exclusively for the Tamils and will run until May Military spokesman Nishantha Wadugoapitiya said advertisements on state-run radio and television have urged Tamils to sign up.

Tamil recruits, including some officers, are found in the ranks of the 100,000 strong army but there have been very few new recruitments from the community since 1983, when the violent campaign for a Tamil homeland started.

The army is dominated by Sinhalese, who make up 76 per cent of Sri Lanka's 18.5 million people. Tamils are 18 per cent of the population.

The militants among Tamils say that they can prosper away from the Sinhalese domination in their proposed homeland in the north and the east, where most Tamils live. They accuse the government of discriminating against the minority community.

Indian HC stays warrant against Fida Hussain

MUMBAI, May 5: The Mumbai High Court yesterday stayed the process and non-bailable warrant issued against renowned artist Maqbool Fida Hussain by the first class judicial magistrate in chiplun for painting Goddess Saraswati in the nude, reports PTI.

Admitting a petition field by Hussain, Mr Justice PS Patankar stayed the process and non-bailable warrant against the painter. On a complaint field by Bal-achandra Vasudev Diwakar, the chiplun judicial magistrate had issued process and warrant against Hussain after his controversial painting appeared in two newspapers published from Mumbai on October 20, 1996.

He had directed the artist to appear before the court on or before April 29 last.

Hussain pleaded that he had not painted the goddess in the nude with an intention to hurt sentiments of persons belonging to a particular religion. The Sudanese reaction came a day after the US Justice and Treasury departments decided to unfreeze the assets of the owner of Sudan's El Shifa factory, Saudi-Sudanese businessman Salah Idris.

Washington bombed the factory in August 1998, maintaining it was producing chemical weapons agents. The United States also alleges that Osama bin Laden, a Saudi billionaire accused of bankrolling last year's deadly bombings of US embassies in Kenya and Tanzania, had links to the factory.

Ali Nimir, a minister of state for foreign affairs, said the decision to lift the freeze on Idris' assets was "proof against the allegations" that El Shifa was producing chemical weapons. It also "showed the mistake of the aggression," he
