Nazrul's memory at Darirampur getting lost into oblivion

From Aminul Islam

MYMENSINGH, May 22: The centenary celebration of birth of National Poet Kazi Nazrul Islam will be held here on May 25.

A four-day programme has been arranged at Darirampur village in Trishal thana where the great poet stayed during his boyhood. The programme has arranged jointly by the local district administration and Greater Mymensingh Cultural Forum.

Elaborate programmes have also been taken by many other socio-cultural organisations to observe the day befittingly.

Nazrul came to Darirampur in 1914 when he was only 15 years old.

Young Nazrul worked at a bakery at Ashanold of Burdwan district in India. As he had no place to sleep, he used to sleep under the staircase of a building. One day a police officer named Kazi Rafiuddin found Nazrul sleeping under the staircase of his residence.

Rafiuddin hailed from Darirampur in Mymensingh district. He used to live in that very building. The police official asked Nazrul about his family. Hearing the sad tale of Nazrul's family, he appointed Nazrul as his domestic help. Rafiuddin had no child. He admitted Nazrul in a school. Later on Nazrul was shifted to Darirampur. He was admitted in Darirampur High School in Class seven with a full-free studentship in 1914. But after several months, Nazrul shifted his lodging to the house of Bichotia Bepari at Trishal Nama Para. This is because the house of Rafiuddin was about seven km far from the school.

Nazrul was not attentive to his studies here. He used to sit in a calm and quiet place with a vacant look or play flute sitting under a banyan tree. He passed his leisure time this way as he was a new comer there. When he played his flute people of the locality listened to it very attentively. He drew their attention within a short time. The glorious banyan tree is still standing there. But none has taken any initiative to preserve this place.

The government is also indifferent regarding preservation of the place.

However, though inattentive to his studies, his academic result was good. He was promoted to Class eight. But Nazrul was not present at Darirampur then. He had fled from there by that time.

During his school life there, Nazrul took part in the annual cultural function of the school. Nazrul enthralled all the teachers and students of the school reciting Tagore's poem — 'Dui Bigha Joni'. Mahim Chandra Khasnabish, English teacher of the school had conducted the function.

The people of Darirampur and nearby still remember Nazrul's memory as their near and dear one. Several institutions of this area have been named after him.

But the people alleged, for want of proper maintenance, many things relating to his memory including the banyan tree, the house where Nazrul lodged are about to destroy.

Man to die for killing wife

From Ranesh Maitra

PABNA, May 22: One person will be hanged to death for killing his newly married wife.

The Judge of Special Court for Trying Cases under Repression on Women and Children Act here recently awarded the punishment.

Muhammad Jahangir Alam, Additional District and Sessions Judge and Judge of the Special Court of Pabna passed the death sentence against accused Aslam. Aslam is the son of Abdus Samad of village Kalikapur in Pabna sadar thana.

Accused Aslam married Rita Khaton, niece of Sekendar Ali, who was the complainant of the case, only one month and six days before the incident.

On July 1, 1997, the complainant lodged an 'ejahar' with the thana alleging that at the time of his niece's marriage, the groom demanded Taka 10,000 as dowry, but they paid Taka 5,000 on the day of the marriage.

But they did not get any 'satisfactory' reply from him.

On the same day Rita was taken to her father-in-law's house. After eight days, her father-in-law brought back Rita to her parent's house. He demanded the remaining amount of Taka 5,000.

Her father-in-law took Rita back to her house. Before returning he told Rita's father that Aslam did not choose Rita and that was why they had demanded the amount.

At about 1.45 am on July 1, 1997, Aslam came to the house of the complainant (his uncle-in-law) and told him that Rita was missing from 10 pm.

Receiving the news, the complainant, Sekendar Ali, along with his neighbours Badal Pramanik, Jalaluddin, Abdul Majid, Syed and Mukhtar Hossain rushed to village Kalikapur and asked Rita's father-in-law about her whereabouts.

But they did not get any 'satisfactory' reply from him.

At about 10 am the next morning, Rita's body was recovered from a sugarcane field. The sugarcane field was situated towards the southern direction of Aslam's house. On further query, the accused admitted that she had killed her in their house. Afterwards her body was thrown on the sugarcane field for concealing the matter.

Police submitted charge-sheet against Aslam, his father Abdus Samad, mother Mayna Khaton and one Abdul Hai following investigations.

After examining the evidence, statements, cross-examinations of the witnesses and after perusing the documentary evidences, the judge passed the order for hanging Aslam till death.

However, the prosecution failed to prove their allegations against the remaining three accused persons. So the judge passed an order acquitting them.

Sweet water fish on verge of extinction in N-dists

NATORE, May 22: Sweet water fish in the northern region are on the verge of extinction as production has alarmingly decreased in the past one decade, reports UNB.

In addition to depriving the people of a major source of protein, the dwindling fish production would adversely affect the livelihood of about 10 lakh people engaged in fishing throughout the country, including 2.5 lakh in the 16 northern districts.

A recent survey conducted by the Department of Fisheries showed that fish production in the northern part of the country declined by 70 per cent.

According to the report, 60 per cent fish in the canals, beels, ponds and other water bodies have been destroyed in the last 15 years.

Fish traders said that fish supply in the market was decreasing day by day due to its scarcity in the water bodies.

A fish trader of Natore wholesale market said that five years ago, a daily supply of different types of fish in the market was about 70 to 80 maunds while at present, the quantum came down to 30 to 35 maunds.

Local varieties of fish like koi, magur, shing, kaliboush and bheda are gradually being disappeared from the market, he added.

About 50 varieties of fish have become rare in Natore, Rajshahi, Naogaon, Chapainawabganj, Pabna and Sirajganj districts due to random netting of the fish fry.

Moreover, hundreds of haors, beels, ponds and other water bodies in these districts, once reputed for surplus fish producing zone, are about to dry up due to adverse effect of Farakka Barrage.

Besides, indiscriminate use of current nets during the breeding season has aggravated the fish crisis, the survey revealed.

The existing varieties of fish are also decreasing due to excessive use of chemical fertilisers and pesticides on surrounding croplands and drying up of vast water bodies in the region.

Acute water crisis prevails in Feni

FENI, May 22: Water crisis has been prevailing in the district town due to loadshedding and low capacity of the pump houses, reports UNB.

Officials sources said one pump house out of four, remained out of order further deepening the crisis.

The dwellers have been seriously suffering due to this problem for long. Irregular supply and low pressure are the main problems for the subscribers.

The total demand of water in the district town is 12 lakh gallons while the authorities could supply only 1.75 lakh gallons.

Besides, many subscribers collect extra water through setting up pumps with the supply lines. The poura authorities requested the subscribers to stop the practice, even conducted operation, but these efforts yield no positive results.

Some 200 subscribers asked the Public Health Engineering Department to snap their connection as they do not get any water from the supply, but the authorities allegedly did not pay any heed to their problem.

They are still paying their bills without receiving any water.

In Feni town, three overhead water tanks started functioning from 1988. These were constructed with Japanese assistance.

Each of the tanks has a capacity of 16,000 gallons. But shortly afterwards, one of the tanks went out of operation.

Local officials of PHED said they have written to the government for allocating money for the repair of the tank, but no allocation was available so far.

Besides, the pump house at Masterpara is under threat of being stopped any time. The authorities are operating it with high risk.

There will be a serious crisis in water supply if the pump house goes out of order.

Local pourashava set up 28-kilometre supply line and gave 1,350 connections in the municipality area. Besides, it also set up 25 street hydrants in different parts of the town.
