

Of Good and Evil

Self-taught artist Tanzir Tuhin has begun his journey into fine art firmament.

by Fayza Haq

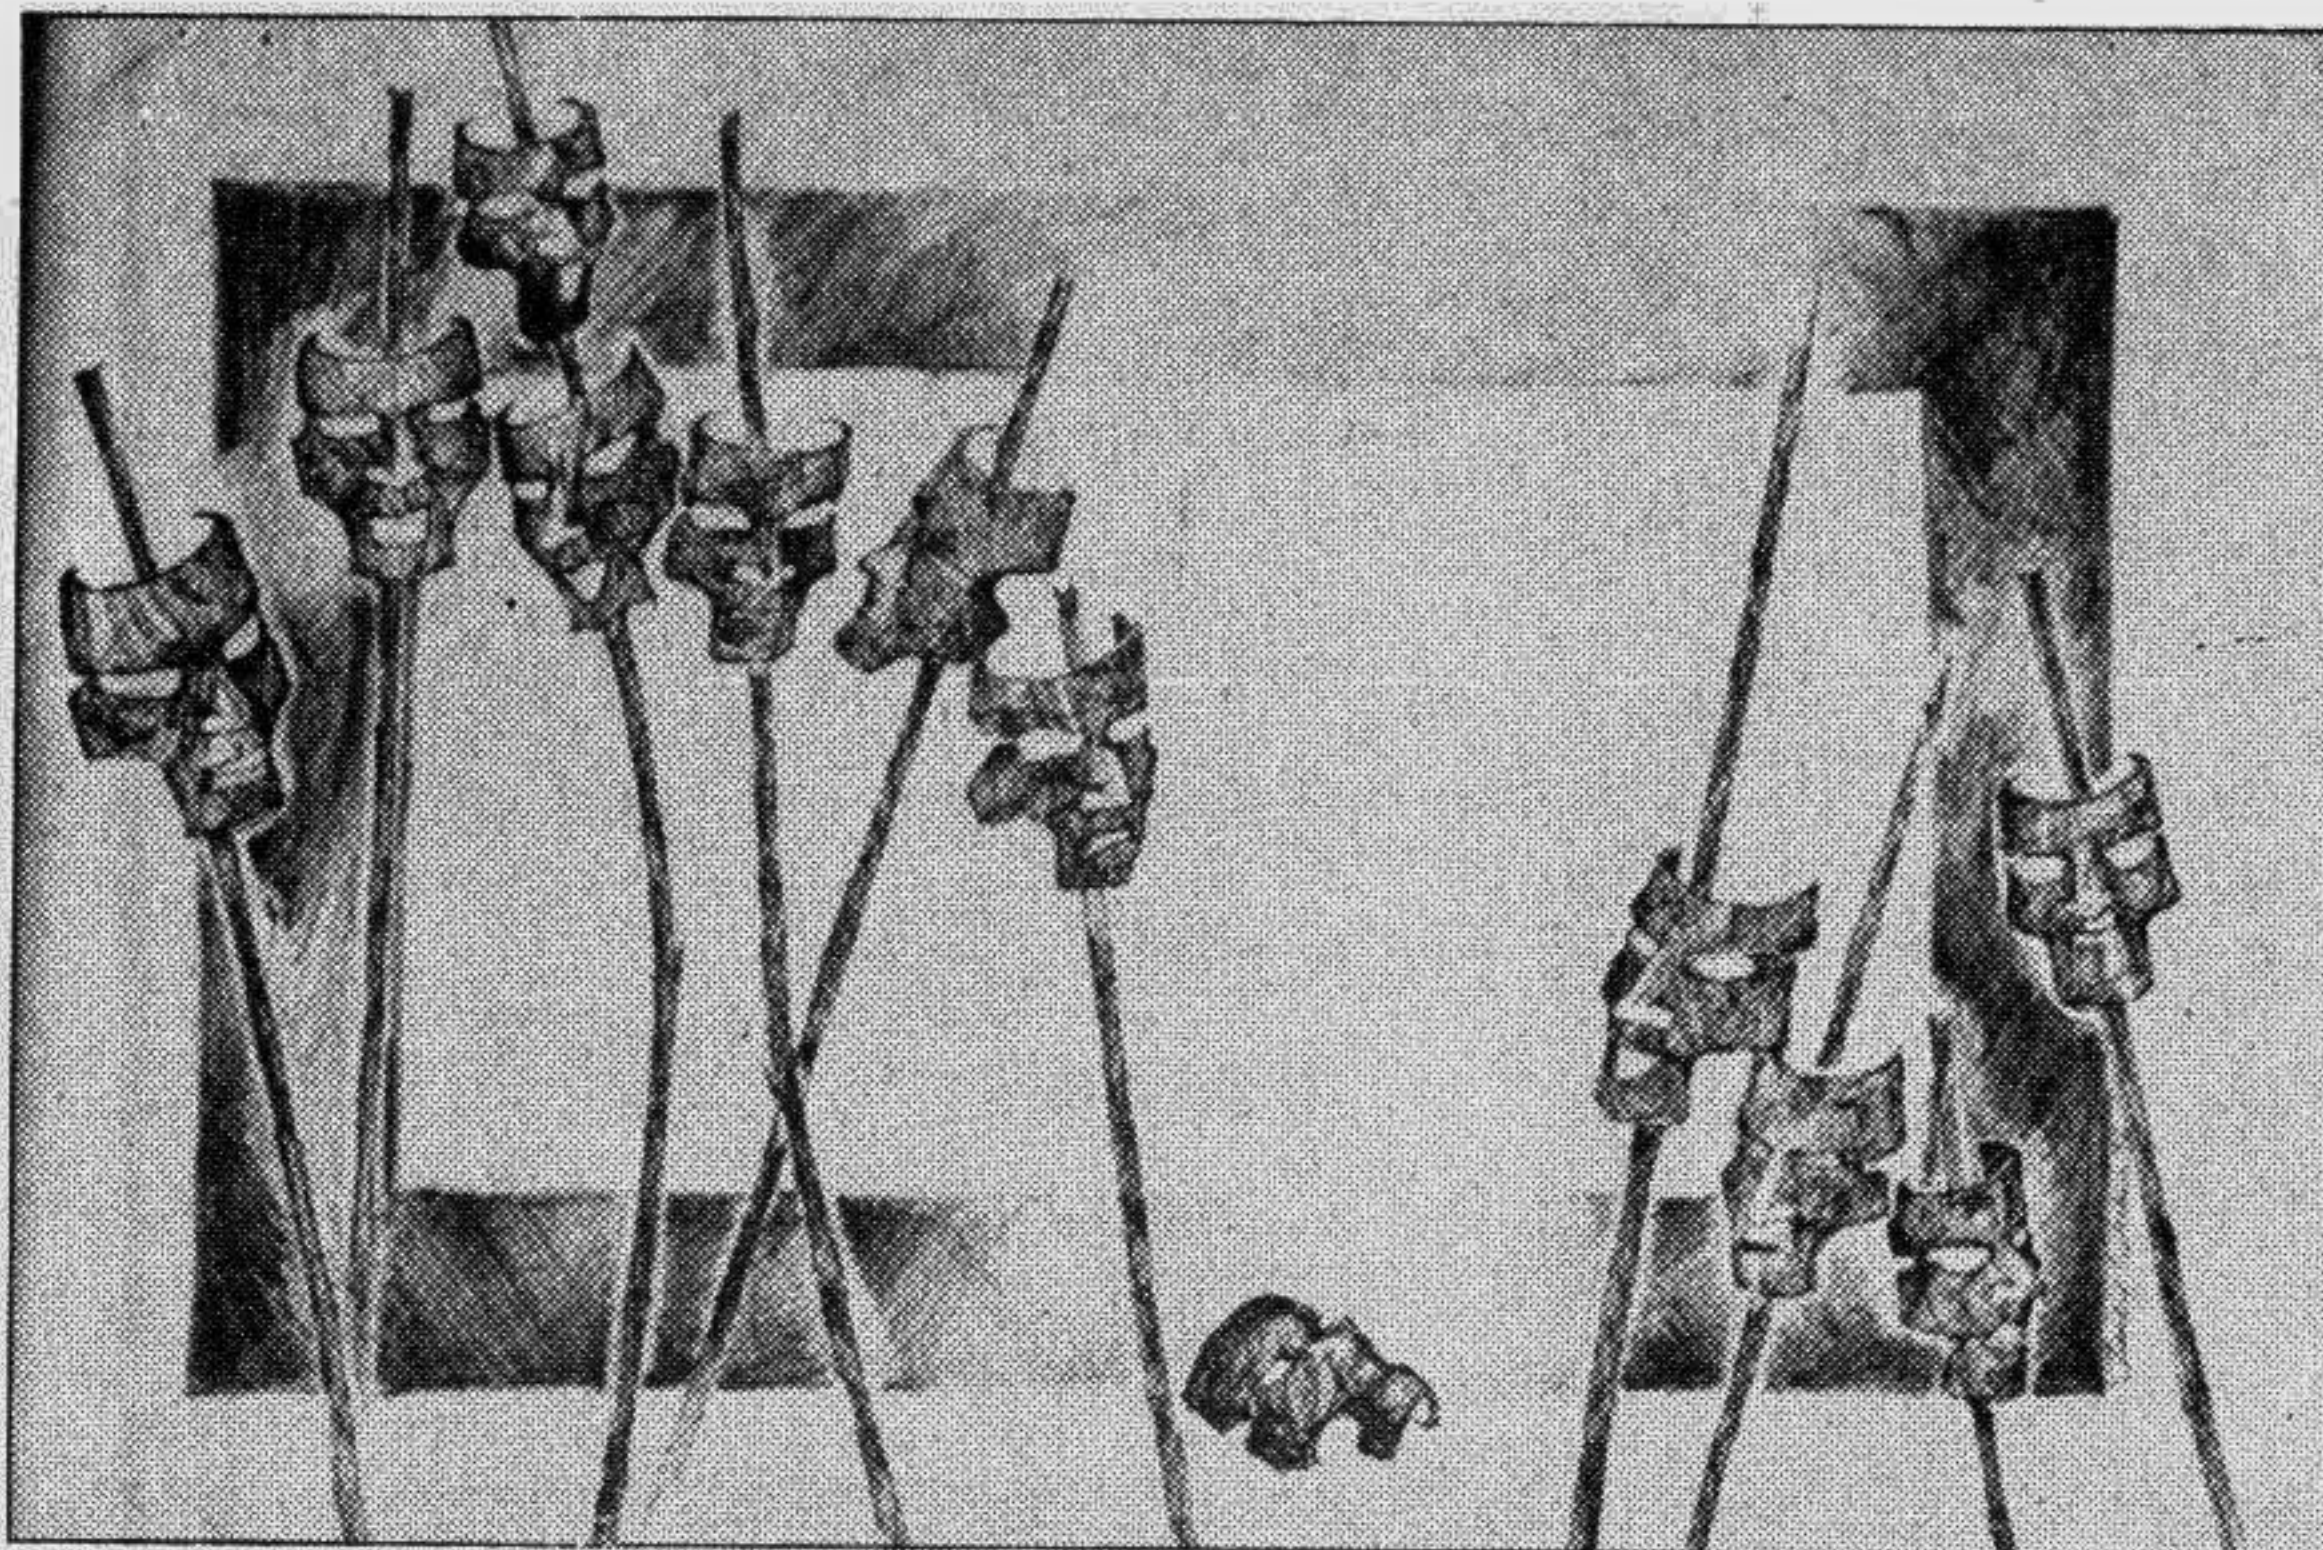

TANZIR Tuhin, a 3rd year student of BUET, is holding his exhibition of 71 symbolic paintings and sketches at the Alliance Francaise. "We are losing our contact with greenery and nature as we go from the top of an apartment block to another top floor office for work every day," the young self-taught artist comments. In many of his works he has depicted masks to bring in the elements of good and evil.

Tanzir Tuhin
In "Family", a mixed media, the artist presents 12 grey sketched masks held by sticks.

There is a red rectangular bond that holds them together and this is the bondage of a family. Some of the faces are happy while the others appear discontented. The fallen mask stands for the dead member of the family. The sticks represent the beliefs of the individuals. The artist does not give eyes to the mask as he wants his viewers to imagine ones of their own. He does not bring faces as he feels that everybody wears a mask of appearances when in company and the faces change with the environment. The artist feels that human being's disposition is controlled by nature and human beliefs.

"Freedom" depicts part of a head in mixed media, with a painting in front and giant paint brushes at the back. One sees nature at the back too, mixed with shadows of the artist seen in the form of outstretched hands. There is the ekta on one side to symbolise emotions. The sketched kite at the back stands for freedom. The masks included in the right symbolises society. A swirling image of the sun is also brought in as the artist believes that it has tremendous influence on man. The painting is in red, yellow and blue.

"Unnecessary" shows a man running on one spot, getting nowhere. The impression of movement is brought by several repeated depictions of limbs. One can feel the movement in one still picture. We all have our goals, the artist believes, but unless we have specific plans, we cannot succeed. The work is charcoal on paper.

"Mancha Natok" has a noose, a green mask and an ugly black crow, to depict the evil in our society, "which is like a stage", as the artist puts it. In his own youth the painter had friends who turned to drugs and violent deeds like murder due to lack of guidance. There are four listless figures seen standing or sitting. A street lamp, a kite, a swirling sun and a barred window are all included in the painting. A small beige and turquoise graveyard in front is there to eventually bury that evil that destroyed the youth.

"Black Crow" is a mixed media work done in grey, white and brown, and deals with superstition. "We think of darkness or a black crow as something evil to be avoided", the artist comments. The faces included in the painting depict superstitious people because of whom we cannot progress.

"Jeley Para" is a gentle landscape in water-colour with designs of trees, houses, boats and fish. This is done with parallel lines with interlaced motifs. The exhibit holds the artist's efforts for six years. He believes his mother and close friends to be responsible for his success.

Mujibnagar: A History to be Rediscovered

Narikel Danga's cultural association reunited

By Cultural Correspondent

THE founder members of the Soronarthi Sangskritik Ghosti, established during the liberation war in 1971, reunited at Ramna Green Chattrar on Friday, July 2nd.

Founded by a few cultural activists in 1971 the Ghosti is now defunct. The troupe members during those tumultuous days visited camps, training schools to cheer them up, give them courage and to entertain them through performance. Renowned folk artist Fakir Alamgir, singer Mitali Mukarjee of Calcutta, Jahangir Alam, Bikash Dutta, Timir Nandi, Rafiqul Alam, Biplob Das were among the members who founded the Ghosti.

The function began with paying homage to all the people who died in the freedom fighting, for the people who died in the Language Movement of '52, the Six demands of '66, Gono Andolon of '69, Tragedy of '75, Mukti Bahini, Police Forces, Armed Forces, Engineers, Doctors, Students, Farmers, Workers and all the general people who died in the Liberation War. Hosted by Fakir Abdur Razzak, Justice K. M. Sobhan was the chief guest of the function. Founder Chairman of 'Soronarthi Sangskritik Ghosti', Engr. Abdul Hannan organized the function. Speaking on the occasion Professor Saboor Tabir Mahmud, General Secretary and founder member of the association thanked renowned folk singer and founder member of 'Soronarthi Sangskritik Ghosti' Fakir Alamgir for picking up the idea of having a reunion function and Khandakar Abdul Hannan for organizing it.

The Ghosti established with only 78 performers and workers. Established at Mujibnagar the Ghosti organized many tours to the war camps and training schools and even to different places of the country and encouraging them to have faith in themselves. Many people of the cultural society and many politicians of that time helped building 'Soronarthi Sangskritik Ghosti'. But due to different reasons the association broke up.

It was indeed an emotional sight when they recalled their memories of the friends and fellow workers who past away.
