DMC lacks post-graduate degrees in many courses

Dhaka Medical College (DMC), the country's pioneer in medical education, is not adequately equipped to provide post-graduate education to those seeking higher education facilities in all disciplines, DMC sources said, reports BSS.

DMC, which was set up 53 years ago in 1946, is not in a position to provide post-graduate education to those seeking higher education facilities in all disciplines, DMC sources said, reports BSS. A final year student of the college said that there is no reason why opportunities should not be created for higher education in basic subjects like anatomy, physiology, biochemistry and other subjects. He felt that the authorities of the leading medical colleges should take necessary steps to open the doors for higher degrees soon.

A young doctor who completed his MBBS degree two years back from the college talking to BSS on condition of anonymity said despite infrastructural facilities the students are deprived of higher education due to lack of initiatives on the authorities' side.

Another doctor who completed his internship from the same college recently said the authorities are doing little for the promotion of higher education in the DMC.

"Our country needs specialised doctors. But the institutions like Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujib Medical University (BSMMU), National Institute of
