A Bold and Courageous Voice

A Testament of the Time's publication ceremony held

By Rezaul Karim

EMINENT personalities in different fields at a discussion in the city on Sunday gave compliments to journalist Enayet-ullah Khan for his courageous writings.

They also said journalist Khan, the Editor of English Weekly Holiday, has built up a forum for the opposition and played an important role against the establishment through his bold writings when no opposition was allowed in the country.

Addressing a review session of Enayetullah Khan's book 'A Testament of the Time-Vol. 1' at the BRAC Centre at Mohakhali in the evening, the speakers observed that the weekly Holiday is a forum for all opposition during the period of 1965-75 when people of the country were exploited, repressed and deprived of freedom in many ways.

The book is a compilation of selected articles and editorials of Enayetullah Khan which had appeared in the weekly Holiday. The 2nd and 3rd volume of the book will be published soon.

The speakers said that the role of Holiday had translated the spirit, dreams and aspirations of many in the country. Khan's writings reflect the real condition of the people of Bangladesh at the time.

Taking part in the review,

Prof Rehman Sobhan said sycophants are the greatest enemies of any government because they are always opportunists and never hesitate to betray the government when it is in trouble.

But, he said all governments are flocked by sycophants. "It is the government which has to decide who its real critics are and who are its enemies. Real critics are the best friends of any government," he observed.

Referring to Khan's book, Prof Sobhan said everything of that particular period (1965-75) should be reviewed in its historical context. Khan's book is an invaluable document of the period.

Rehman also lauded the role of Holiday and said since the inception of this weekly has played a significant role for the cause of the common people.

Former DUCSU leader and Parliament member Nazim Kamran Chowdhury said the people of the country was unified in 1971 and liberated the country through a nine month war, but the immediate post-independence leadership divided the nation which seem to be growing day by day.

Drama personality Aatur Rahman said journalist Enayetullah Khan is a soldier of democracy and his role has always been anti-establishment and people oriented. He said Khan has raised his voice through his writings whenever democracy was at stake and has always been vocal for rule of law, justice and democracy in the society.

Pointing out the book, he said Sheikh Mujib is the centre character of this book. Khan in his writings has rightly described how Mujib changed from a hero to a villain.

Prof Sirajul Islam Chowdhury said Enayetullah Khan has three positive virtues — courage, insight and own style of writing — which has played a vital role for the deprived and exploited people of the then East Pakistan and Bangladesh. "He (Khan) is a romantic personality but not as a sentimental one. He is not only courageous, he has also the capacity to go the indepth of any incident," Prof Chowdhury said.

Mohiuddin Ahmed of UPL publishing house said the Holiday began its sojourn with anti-establishment spirit and succeeded to build itself as forum for the opposition and played a role as a strong constructive opposition in absence of opposition in the country.

He observed that the period of 1971-75 was possibly the best time for Holiday as in fact there was no opposition at that time.

Ahmed strongly criticised those who opposed the learning of English language and said that only the weekly Holiday and Bangladesh Observer had supported English medium schools when all Bengali dailies had opposed their existence.

He said that once students only read the Holiday and Observer to learn correct English, but both the papers have since lost their reputations. "We don't have effective copy-editors in English dailies," he added.

Enayetullah Khan in his brief speech said the emergence of Bangladesh is the fruit of collective efforts of all people of the country. "The nation cannot proceed until we realise this truth."

Controversial Film Walks Away with Six National Awards

For Shabana Azmi, the award carries special significance as it comes in the 25th year of her career in the film industry covering mainstream as well as parallel cinema.

By Pallab Bhattacharya from New Delhi

FOR the last six months, "Godmother", the Hindi feature film depicting the story of a woman leading an armed rebellion against social oppression in a village of Gujarat, has been in the centre of a controversy.

Its public screening has been stayed by the court following a petition by Gujarat state assembly's former member Santokben Jadeja on whose life the film is said to be based.

And yet "Godmother", with eminent actress Shabana Azmi in the lead role, swept away six national awards for 1998 announced recently. Azmi herself got the award for best actress for her performance in the film which also won the award for best male playback singer, best editing, best music director, best lyrics and best feature film in Hindi.

For Shabana Azmi, the award carries special significance as it comes in the 25th year of her career in the film industry covering mainstream as well as parallel cinema.

The recognition is doubly sweet for Shabana Azmi as her husband Javed Akhtar also earned the award for best lyrics in "Godmother."

But the more important reason why the actress is very happy about the award is that it came for her appearance in what she describes as a "dream role" in the film directed by Vinay Shukla.

"It's a dream role because a woman is allowed to play the role of a hero. Because the woman questions the whole notion of community and comes down heavily on the intolerance of our times," says Azmi.

It remains to be seen if "Godmother" will see the light of the day. Santokben Jadeja has objected to the film's depiction of Rambhji (the role played by Shabana Azmi) smoking, consuming liquor and hurling abuses — the traits the former legislator insists are not hers. Azmi, her husband and the film director had recently held talks with Santokben Jadeja. The film was screened for the benefit of a selected gathering that included Santokben's lawyers and her two sons. But the exercise apparently had failed to bring round Santokben who wants some scenes from the film to be deleted.

While announcing the awards last week, Information and Broadcasting Minister Pramod Mahajan asserted "we are not violating any law by giving the film the awards. As far as the awards are concerned, the release of the film is no criterion at all."

Shabana Azmi agrees with that view. "There are so many films which have been banned and yet won a national award," she says adding the jury has been "extremely fair" by judging the film solely on its merits.

National awards are nothing new for veteran director Shyam Benegal whose latest work "Samar", which innovatively deals with the subject of social evils, was adjudged the best feature film for 1998.
