Govt has no plan to export gas

At present the government has no plan to export gas as the country itself suffers from a deficit of the natural resource to implement its future development programmes, reports UNB.

"Production of the required quantity of gas for implementing the development plans undertaken by the government has not been made possible yet. Hence, the government feels the question of exporting gas is quite irrelevant and absurd," said a statement issued by the Energy and Mineral Resources Ministry yesterday.

The statement was issued to protest remarks on gas export by the opposition leaders, particularly by BNP Chairperson Begum Khaleda Zia, at different meetings during their recent road and launch marches.

It quoted press reports based on Begum Zia's addresses where she spoke of the government's "conspiracy to export natural gas through pipeline and hand over domestic resources to others."

The Energy and Mineral Resources Ministry said the government is working with short, medium and long term integrated plans for optimum utilisation of the natural resources in the interest of the country.
