Art On Glass

Week-long exhibition of Kamal Qadir at Shilpakala

By Shahana Parbeen

A ten-day long art exhibition of glass paintings is on at the Shilpakala Academy's National Art Gallery. The exhibition titled 'Art on Windows' is by Kamal Qadir, nine paintings are on display at the gallery.

Glass painting is one of the less popular forms of art. It gives an effect like that of stained glass. Stained glass art developed mostly after the renaissance period. In the sub-continent, these can be seen on a large scale in the ancient churches of Goa. Glass painting is different in the sense that the artist uses a transparent sort of paint on the glass to give it an effect like that of stained glass.

In all his paintings, Kamal has used permanent paints (these may last upto a 100 years).

The paintings have been done in panels then all the panels have been placed together under a frame to make a complete picture. In the display were paintings consisting of 3 panels, six panels and one consisting of 18 panels!

Kamal painted nature mostly and some were in just vibrant hues. Among the paintings, there is one with numerous brightly painted birds some perched on branches of a tree and some flying in the sky. Another painting depicts brightly coloured sunflowers against a sky of blue. One particular small glass painting done on a single panel, showing a chequered passage at the end of which is a single sunflower.

Most of the paintings on display are in bright colours. Some are so bright that they give an impression of a fiesta of colours aglow. Kamal didn't use any titles in any of his paintings because he feels that titles take the viewers' mind off the piece of art. A few of his paintings are not supposed to mean anything — he just used various colours so that the final effect would be beautiful to look at. And some of them are beautiful. Kamal has used mostly bright shades like red, orange and yellow.

A glass painting is done by painting on a glass and then placing another glass on top of it to seal it. Since the paints are transparent, if the painting is placed in between two rooms, then the painting will be better viewed from the room which has dinner lighting. Light from the brighter room enables a person in the darker room to see the painting better. Any one interested in glass paintings can have a look at the paintings on show. The display is open from 11 am to 7 pm everyday.

The exhibition was formerly inaugurated by Azad Rahman, Director General of Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy on August 1st. The show will remain on till August 10th. Its being sponsored by Kazi Farms Ltd, Nestle and Resource Applications Ltd.

Patale Haspatale at Guide House

A touching tale of negligence

By Nafid Imran Ahmed

VILLAGE LIFE was thought to be corruption-free and simple, people here were expected not to know what 'evil' is, everyone had a sense of good morale and civic consciousness. It was thought that corruption existed only in the city, where people were more materialistic and selfish. Now, however, corruption has spread its wings over the village as well.

Patale Haspatale - is a representation of corruption and greed in a village hospital. It depicts the corrupted life of a government doctor, who is alone in charge of the hospital. The doctor had three main concerns in his life: setting up his private practice, availing his quarter rent and romancing with the nurses. His work meant a lot of responsibility, which is obvious - after all he was the only doctor in charge - but he was hardly worried about that. He operated on (whether required or not) only one patient a week, even if ten patients needed his attention and that too with antiquated equipment. The poor, who had very little income, could not afford such low-standard treatment, and many died, not knowing what had happened to them.

At such a time a poor farmer, Jamiruddin got hurt while working in his field. Not being able to bear the pain, he got himself admitted to the hospital where corruption was the name of the game. He got admitted, but did not get a bed to lie on. He did not get proper treatment, he was completely ignored by the doctor, and even the nurses - all because he did not have the money to bribe themor 'make them happy'. He needed immediate surgery to save his life but did not get it. At that stage, a man (a fellow patient) appealed to the doctor to operate on Jamiruddin. The doctor said that he knew that Jamiruddin needed the operation but he was not free for the next three days as he had to work in his private chamber and had a few parties to attend.

At that moment a staff came in with the news of Jamiruddin's death. The doctor tried to find the reason of his death, and figured out that he had died because of his own negligence which had led to wrong diagnosis and hence wrong treatment. But he felt no grief, no resentment or sense of guilt - he in fact was quite relieved because he had no one to answer to, and because he was no longer burdened with an extra patient.

At the end of the play the family members of Jamiruddin, all the patients and hospital staff demand the dead body for burial, which the doctor withheld for no reason whatsoever. They also demanded proper free treatment for all irrespective of who the patients were or where they came from.

'Debdoot Theatre' presented the play at Guide House on yesterday. Hasan Azizul Haq wrote the play which was directed by Tutul Chowdhury. Rahmub Reza Bipu, Maqsoodur Rahmub Bulbul, Sabina Yasmin, Sharifuddin Shafiqul Islam and Md. Mohsin Ali and others portrayed the various role depicting this side of village life in this touching composition.

All in all, it was a good drama to watch - the dialogues were also very good. It was, in fact, the dialogues which brought humor in the poignant and sad story of Jamiruddin and like patients who die everyday in various villages across the country due to lack of proper treatment and proper care by the relevant authorities, who should care but don't.
