Children's Theatre Workshop Held

by Fayza Haq

LIAQUAT Ali Lucky, Secretary General of People's Theatre Association, while discussing the Children's Theatre Workshop, held at the Curzon Hall Cafeteria yesterday, says, "For 10 years we are working in different fields of theatre having produced 27 plays with Loko Natyad. This includes 'Kan-jush' (which has had 344 performances — the highest record in Bangladesh, earning Tk 16 lakhs through sale of tickets), 'Sonar Madhav', based on My-mensingh Geetika (which is a form of jatra combined with Padabali kirtan), a milestone in Bangladeshi theatre productions, and 'Padma Nadir Majhee' written by Manik Bon-dopaddhay and dramatised by me, and 'Toposhi Taronginee' written by Buddhadev Bose and directed by me."

"The purpose of the workshop is that there was no Children's Theatre tradition earlier, even though the National Group Theatre (adult theatre) existed and flourished after the Liberation War", Liaquat Ali Lucky adds. "In 1990 the Children's Theatre movement began in Bangladesh, with the purpose of establishing regular Children's Theatre activities in the country. They organised four Children's Theatre workshops so far, the first being in '94, next in '96, later in '97, while the fourth is still in progress". The director continues, "On an average, over 200 children all over the country participated in this so far. They have also organised regional children's workshops at the district levels at Bogra, Meherpur, Jessore, Faridpur, Rangpur, Sylhet, Tongi, Nawabganj, Chittagong and Feni."

The People's Theatre Association organised three national children's theatre festivals jointly with Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy in '95, with 21 groups, again, in '97 with 25 groups, and lately in '99 with 47 groups. Now there are 70 children's theatre groups in Bangladesh. "Another accomplishment of the Children's Theatre is that it has participated in the third and fifth international Children's Theatre

Children's theatre workshop in progress.

Festival, held in Lingon, Germany in '94 and '98. Each time 10 Bangladeshi children went for these festivals — and each time their play was reckoned as one of the best plays of the offerings at the drama festival. Twenty-five countries had joined in these theatre efforts," he adds. "The PTA's children's group has also participated twice in international festivals held at New Delhi, in '96 and '97. This year too a group is being sent to New Delhi in November," he continues.

"The workshop is being held to train the children aged 7 to 14. They are being trained how to act successfully on stage. PTA has kept 15 teachers from their own organisation including me, Sajedul Alam, Kristee Heifaz, Yasmin Ali, Ziaul Hoque, Kamrun Noor Chowdhury, Zeenat Jahan Anita, Fazle Ilahe, Avijit Chowdhury, Alpana Sultana, Sabina Bari Lucky and Uzena Gomes," Liaquat Ali Lucky says further.

"Some outside teachers have also been roped in this workshop which includes well-known personalities like Abul Hayat, Sara Zaker, Afroza Banu Azad, Abul Kalam, Mannan Hira, S M Mohsin, Fazlur Rahman Babu, Munira Yousuf Memi, Tropha Majumdar," the director adds. "PTA had organised a workshop in '97 by the British expert Miss Penny of the 'Neti Neti Theatre', and this had proved to be a tremendous help," he continues to inform me.

He says, "It is like a game, I do not teach them, as such, but they learn to dance, to do elocution, sing, perform mime and participate in serious acting. The present workshops last for 12 hours and continue for three weeks. A certificate will be awarded on 22nd August to the successful candidates. We call the workshop 'Drama for Capability' the purpose of which is to train up the child so that he/she is adequately prepared for the stage in future." He also comments, "As the main organiser of the Children's Theatre movement in Bangladesh I'm very satisfied and optimistic that the CT activities will be successfully established and will later flourish."

Asked if well-known actors taking more active interest in Children's Theatre would improve it, Liaquat Ali Lucky says, "No, being an actor is one thing and being 'a teacher of acting' is another."

Speaking about the problems he faces, the director laments, "The National Group Theatre is at present facing a major problem of losing its audience sharply. Again, it is not getting a steady supply of devoted new enthusiasts. Whatever number are available are like transitory birds, their main target being package TV productions." Under the circumstances the Children's Theatre will hopefully bring at least ten per cent of trained actors to the stage.

Thus the gap of good actors might be diminished and so there will be a solution to the present shortage of dedicated and successful actors some day in the near future. I believe that at least 50 per cent of these children then as adults will prove to be eager and appreciative stage audience," Liaquat Ali Lucky concludes.

While PTA activities are becoming popular as numerous events have been successfully staged, Liaquat Ali Lucky is the brain behind the workshop.

'Hiroshima-Nagasaki' —A Harrowing Past
Solo Photography Exhibition of Kikujiro Fukushima

By Mishu M Chowdhury

GONO Unnayan Procheta (GUP) and IKI IKI — Asia jointly organized a two-day exhibition of the Japanese photographer Kikujiro Fukushima featuring his photographic works on the 'Effect of the Atomic Bomb Blast in Japan' and 'Pollution in Japan — The Shadows of Economic Growth' at the Drik Gallery on Thursday, August 05, 1999.

By the end of July 1945 almost half of Tokyo had been destroyed, and strategic bombing had leveled scores of Japanese cities. Preparations were being made for an allied invasion. On July 16, 1945 however, the work of the 'U.S. Manhattan Project' came to yielding of results when an atomic bomb was successfully tested at Alamogordo, New Mexico. President Truman decided in favor of using the weapon to end the war quickly unless Japan surrendered. From Potsdam on July 26, 1945 Truman, Churchill, and Chiang Kai-Shek issued an ultimatum demanding the unconditional surrender of Japan. It did not mention the bomb. Japan decided to continue the war.

Exactly fifty-five years ago, the allied forces under the direct command of Truman, the president of the United States of America, ordered the carrying out of an atomic bomb blast with an explosive force greater than 20,000 U.S. tons of TNT on the Japanese city of Hiroshima, with a population of about 300,000. At least 78,000 people were killed outright, 10,000 were never found, and more than 70,000 were injured. Almost two-thirds of the city was destroyed. On August 9, the day after the USSR declared war on Japan, an atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki, aiming at the Mitsubishi shipyards. The bomb missed its target but destroyed about half of the city and killed approximately 75,000 people.

Featuring his early works on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and the effects of the atomic bomb blast on the two cities, and the environmental pollution on Japan the Drik Gallery highlights around one hundred and twenty two of his photographs relaying the sufferings of the people of Japan.

Speaking at the opening of the exhibition, Mohammed Ataur Rahman, Executive Director, GUP said that Japan is a model of development to us. Taking about the measures taken in preventing environmental pollution in Japan, Mr. Rahman informed about the laws on industrial waste that any region in Japan does not allow another region to discard the industrial waste in their jurisdictions. The speech was followed by a Japanese folk song 'Your Mother Country'. The young children joined the melodious song singing in Japanese. This song has a particular value to the older generations when they were teen. But today's generations are different. They fell very little for the 'country' in a grief said a Japanese Professor present at the exhibition.

The photographs exhibited at the gallery convey the sufferings of the people of Japan after the atomic bomb blast including the pictures of the reports of the effected which were sealed in an container, shipped to U. S. A. without the concern of the Japanese physicians.

Among the pictures exhibited there, a group of pictures holds the story of a pitiful mother losing her child as she was five months pregnant at the time of the bombing, and giving birth to a dead child, some of the parts of the child's body missing and rotten. The photographer Kikujiro Fukushima in many of his photographs tried to express what the victims had to undergo. The brusque torment of the victims captured through Kikujiro camera gives out even such incidents like a 25 years old male victim, unable to bear the pain caused by radiation, cuts his hands and feet, and at the zenith of agony takes his own life. Beside every photograph displayed are few short notes on the victims giving a precise idea about the photographer's intentions.

Kikujiro Fukushima was born in 1921 and started his professional career as a photographer in 1960. Since then Kikujiro Fukushima had spent a considerable amount of time in the Middle East and the former Soviet Union working as a photographer. Displaying some of the heartbreaking and anguished photographs, Kikujiro Fukushima rightfully manifested the horrors of war and the disastrous future causing due to environmental pollution.
