retrospective Rainer Werner Fassbinder Retrospective Opens

The most comprehensive exhibition and retrospective on the greatest writer, filmmaker and theatre personality of post-war Germany.

By Nafid Imran Ahmed

THE photography exhibition and film retrospective on the great German writer, actor and filmmaker Rainer Werner Fassbinder opened at the Goethe Institut, Dhaka yesterday.

Jointly organized by Bangladesh Short Film Forum and Zahir Rathan Film Society the inauguration ceremony was followed by a documentary on the life and works of Fassbinders.

The thirteen-day long film retrospective will be screening some of Fassbinder's greatest works like Katzelmacher, Gods of the Plague, Why Does Herr R. run Amok, The Merchant of Four Seasons, The Bitter Tears of Petra Von Kant, Fear Eats The soul, Fox and his Friends, Nora Helmer and many more. The film retrospective will also represent his testament film, a fourteen part television adaptation of Berlin Alexanderplatz.

Mustafa Monwar officially launched the photography exhibition and film retrospective on probably the most important filmmaker of post-war Germany. The objective of the film retrospective is to present some of Fassbinder's greatest works and give the film critic and movie lovers a chance to experience the most exciting and experimental period of the German cinema.

The documentary focused on Fassbinder's career and inner feelings as a filmmaker. It also contains a special interview with the legendary man himself. In his lifetime Fassbinder produced an astounding number of films also build his outstanding career in the theater. Born in 1945, Fassbinder studied theater in Munich. At the beginning of his student life he focused on theater, poems, short stories and first play like Only a Slice of Bread for which he won third prize at the Dramatist Contest, Jungen Academy. His non stop successful career as a filmmaker started in 1967, with the making of the Little Chaos. Since then he kept on making uncountable numbers of films. The interview focuses his inner most feelings for making films. In a discussion with Hella Schlumberger, Fassbinder says, "I used to be authoritarian, because I did not have so many options. Today I can work without the authority that's usually reserved for a director. For that reason I prefer to work with professionals." He also said, "I've changed along with the characters in my films." Fassbinder worked with passion. For picturing the film characters and giving them life in films he had to experience the same feeling that character would have to experience in real life. "I make films to get rid of my loneliness", said the filmmaker.

Fassbinders deepest passion for creating film took him so deep into filmmaking that he felt lonely without working.

Describing Fassbinder as a man with a successful career in so many ways Hans Gunther Pflaum wrote a poem titled Rainer Werner Fassbinder and His Films. Fassbinder can only be described by his own words:

There'll be time enough to sleep when I'm dead
