Where Art and Furniture become One

A 14-day furniture exhibition by Arham-ul Huq Chowdhury

by Nadine Murshid

A furniture exhibition by Arham-ul Huq Chowdhury started in Drik Gallery on 14 August 1999 at 3pm. It is Arham's second exhibition and will last till the 27th of this month. It is an interesting collection of tables, chairs, a trolley and even a dressing table. It may sound a little weird, after all furniture are not usually exhibited in exhibitions in galleries, each company has a showroom of their own where their furniture are on display. So if anyone wants a table or something they go to Partex's showroom (or any other showroom) and get it. So why are these being exhibited? It is because these are not just furniture — they are designer furniture, which has been hand-painted.

The exhibition titled 'Art Furniture' is called so because a single piece is a combination of art and craft where the designer has put emphasis on the aesthetic appeal and combined it with the craftsmanship of each piece of furniture. Arham made use of his artistic talent, in this manner, and made even the chair a piece of art. And that is remarkable. What he terms as 'Glass painting' is actually a piece of glass in which he has painted various objects like the sun and the moon or just designs he created, as the term implies.

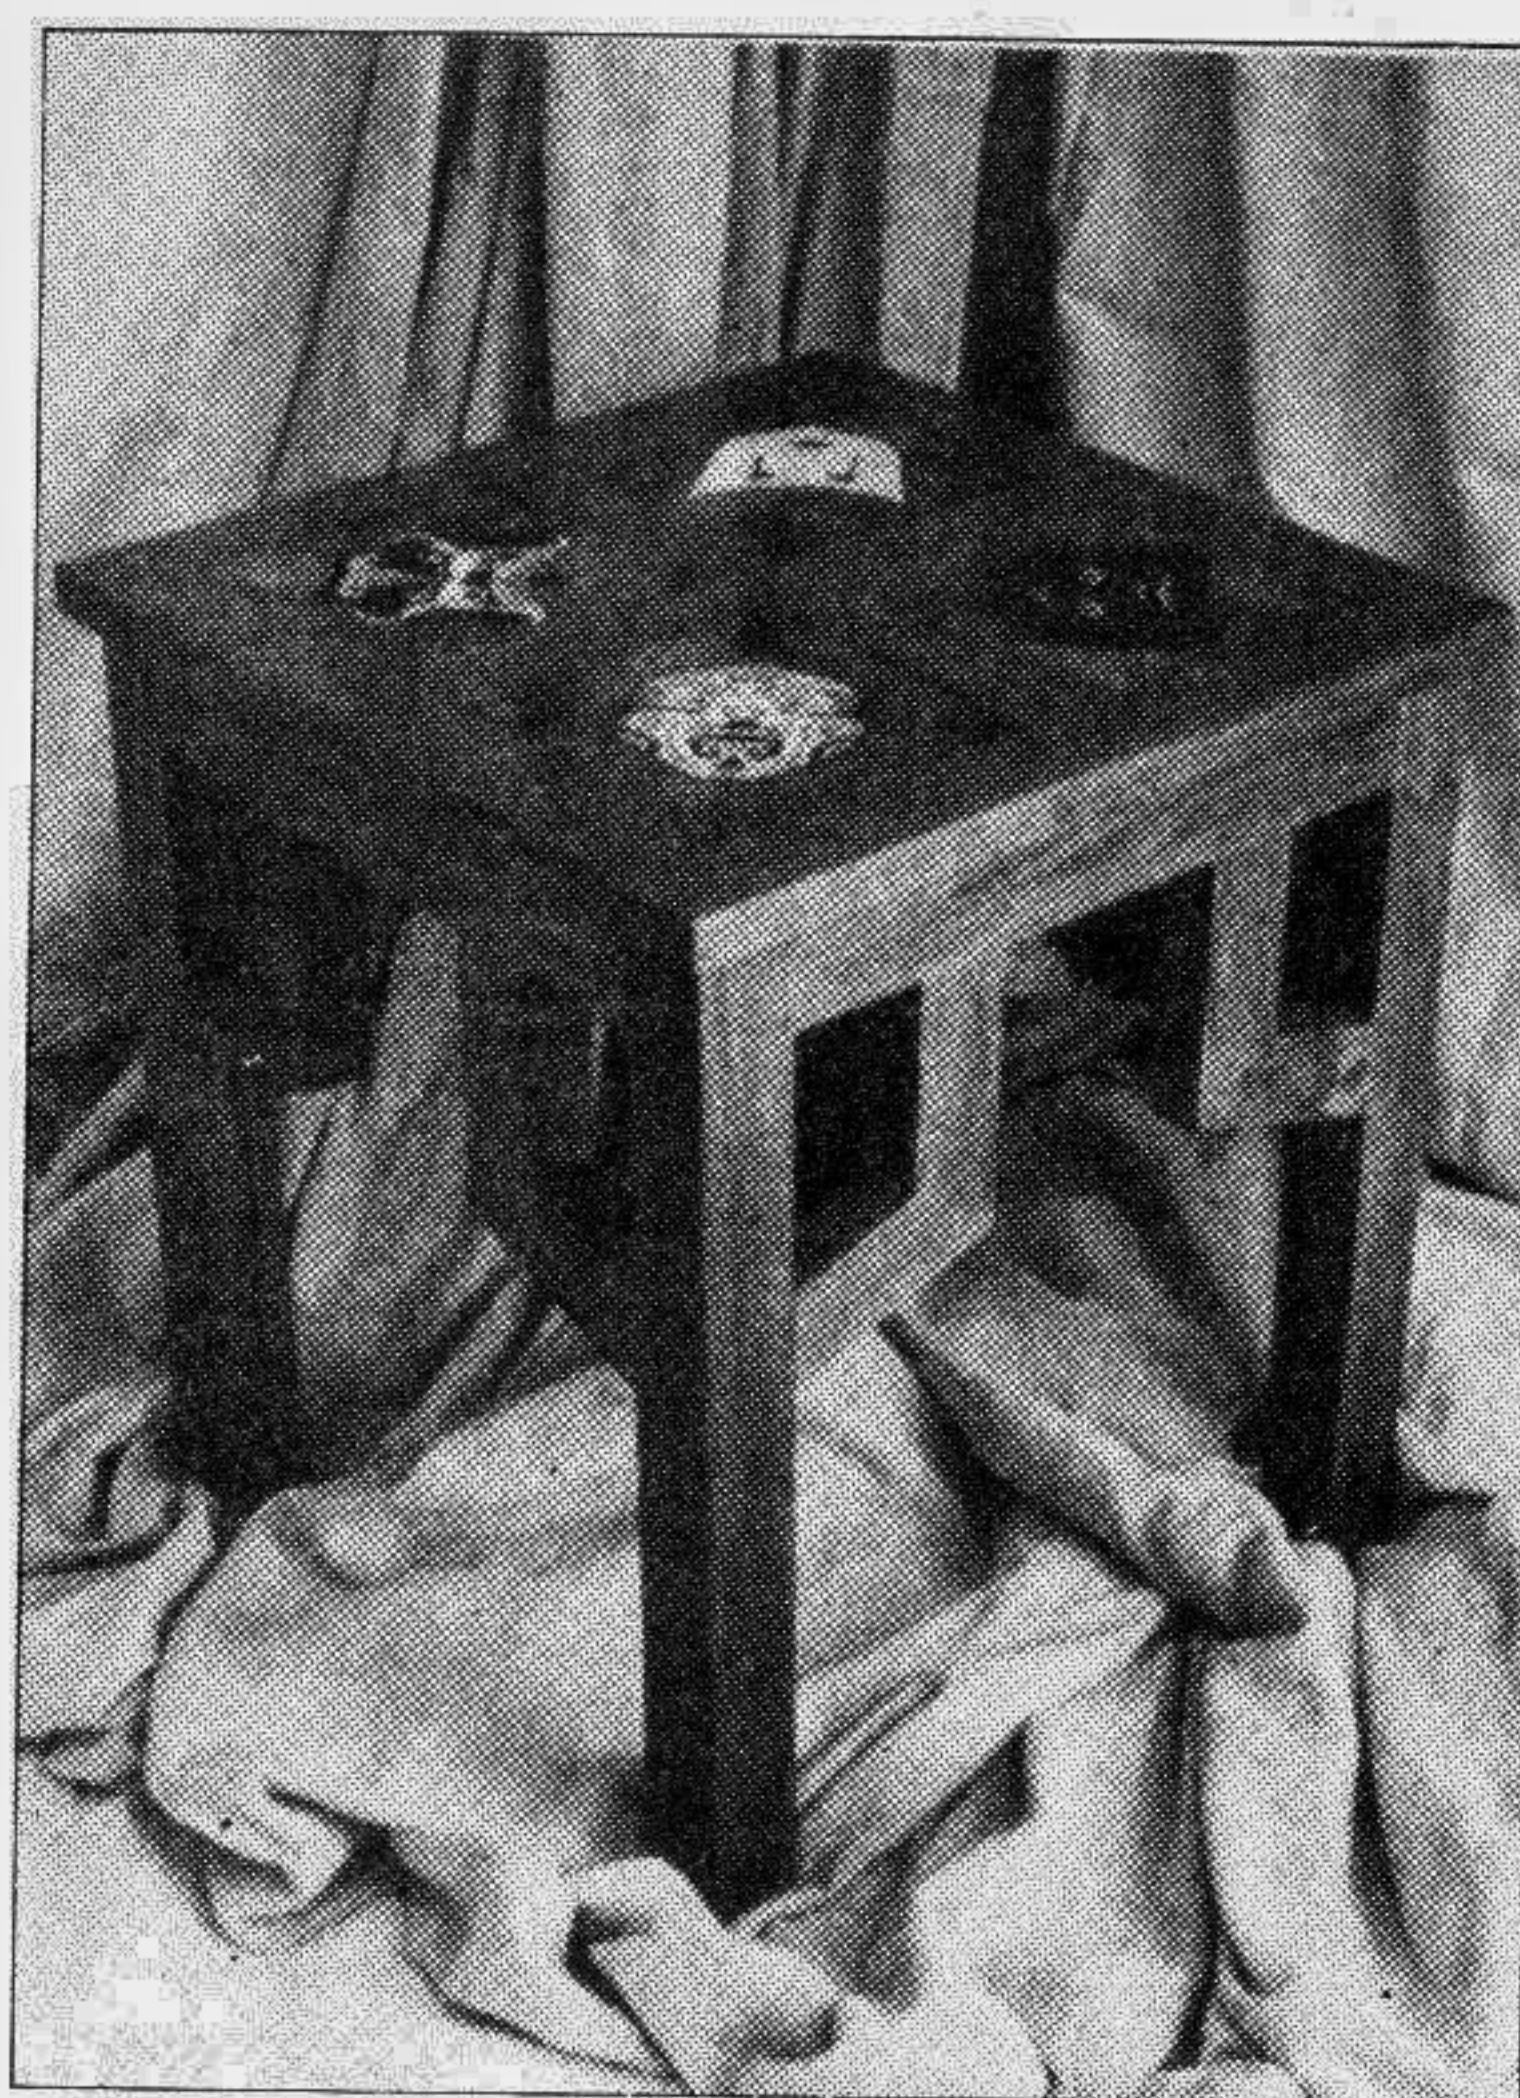

What is special about this is that he used this on tabletops and made his side tables attractive and his centre tables very eye catching. Anyone who buys these won't need any decoration pieces for the tables! The tables displayed had lit candlesticks on them, which intensified their beauty.

Some of the interesting pieces are: 'Glimses of Bangladesh' — Decotape on Mahogany Table which has prints of different parts of the country on the criss-cross legs of the table and 'Faces from the places — glass paintings on teak side table of four masks of the Maories of New Zealand, Dance Mask of Bhutan, carnival mask of Venice and the Tibetan Opera Mask. The trolley too is nice, which is fixed with glass painting on the top. The front part of the trolley has been made like a cabinet so as to keep the food warm. 'Kumudini' — a glass painting inspired by lotus pool — too is very attractive. It has been done on two shelves, which gave the effect of the lotus floating on water.

The exhibition is not only a unique display of furniture — it is the continuation in the trend of designer furniture, which, undoubtedly, will become a part of every household in the near future. It is sure to [if it already hasn't] take the country by storm. Congratulations to Arham-ul Huq Chowdhury and Drik gallery for initiating a step towards a change in the way households will be decorated and furnished.

Bangabandhu in The Eyes of The Artists

10-day painting exhibition on the father of the nation is being held at National Museum Gallery

By Nafid Imran Ahmed

An art exhibition by the young and master artists of the country began on Friday, August 13, on occasion of the 'National Mourning Day' at the National Museum Gallery. Distinguished poet Shamsur Rahman inaugurated the exhibition. State Minister for Culture and Sports Obaidul Quader and Shamsuzzaman Khan, DG, National Museum, spoke on the occasion.

The exhibition contains paintings by some of the most celebrated artists of the country including Shahabuddin, Hashem Khan and Rafiqun Nabi. The paintings are in oil, water colour as well as mixed media. There are also some prints and paintings in acrylic media in the exhibition.

Reflecting the life and patriotism of Bangabandhu the artists have filled their canvases with vivid colours of red, yellow and blue. Most of the paintings depict the firebrand

Bangabandhu while others show him with his raised index finger which has become a mythical posture in our history. he is also shown standing along with his people, the people of Bangladesh. There are also some paintings which show the deceased body of the 'Father of the Nation' lying on the staircase of his house where he was brutally shot dead.

Respected thespian Ramendu Majumdar handed out prizes to four talented young artists in the inaugural ceremony. The prize winners are Abdus Sobhan Hira, Fouzia Montaz Jhinuk, Sunil Kumar Malo and Shamol Boshak.

The Exhibition, which features portraits and paintings of Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman will remain open till August 22.
