250th Birth Anniversary of Goethe

Federation of Deutsche Welle Fan Club of Bangladesh Remember the German Poet on his Birthday

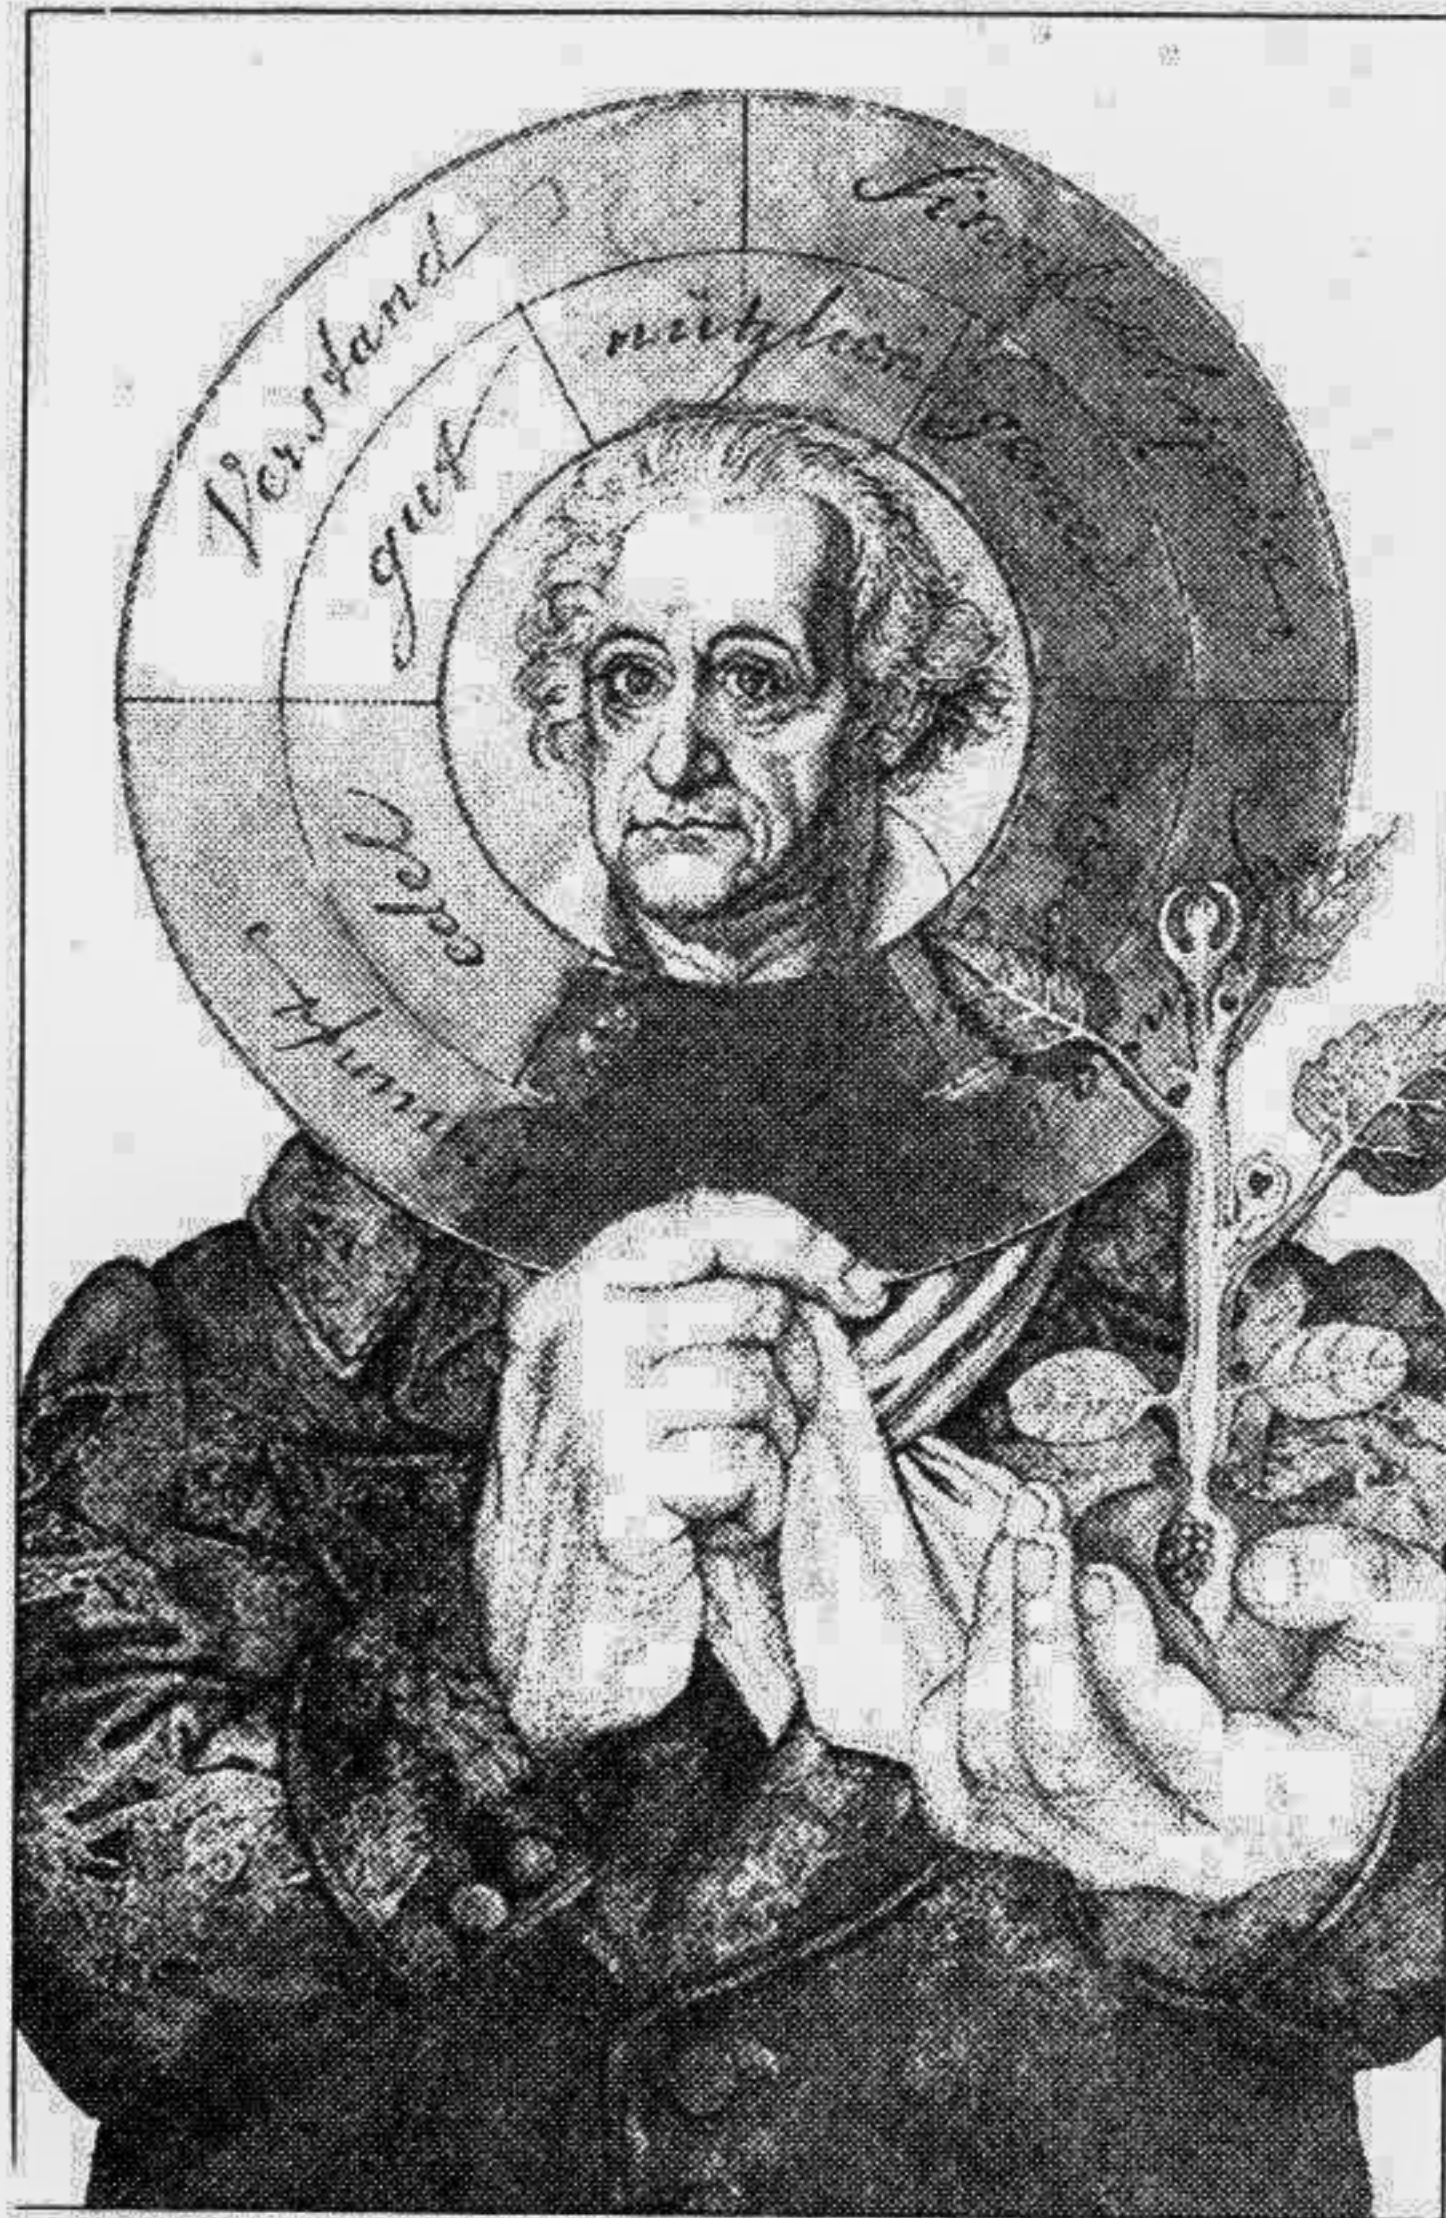

By Nadine Murshid

Venue: Goethe Institut.
Date: 29 August 1999
Time: 6pm

ON the occasion of Goethe's Birthday, the Federation of Deutsche Welle Fan Club of Bangladesh organized a discussion and recitation program, where distinguished actor Aly Zaker and eminent poet Asad Chowdhury recited the translated version of Goethe's poems among others. Asad Chowdhury also gave a small introduction to Goethe and discussed him and his work with great fondness.

The program began a little late but even then there weren't too many people to enjoy the evening. The guests were invited and there weren't too many of them present either. Masyud Mannan did not hesitate to start the evening without fanfare at around 6.30pm. "We're gathered here to show respect to Goethe. He turned 250 years old yesterday, 19 August 1999. Goethe is a common name in South Asia. His poems are greatly appreciated in this part of the world, as in Europe. I called upon some of my friends to help me celebrate the birthday of Goethe this evening including Aly Zaker and Asad Chowdhury. I'd like to take this opportunity to thank the director of Goethe Institut." With this he began the evening and as they all settled down on stage, the evening started off. Then, Mannan gave a brief history of Goethe, relating his works, his life, his meetings with Napoleon and Beethoven, his mistresses and his wife, his children and his death in 1832.

Then the Director of Goethe

Institut took her place at the stand and said, "Good Evening. As we all know by now, Goethe was born on 28 August 1749 in Frankfurt. He is one of the giants in world literature. His 'Faust', which took about half a century to write, has been translated into many languages including Bangla. Goethe's reputation is not only because of his talents as a poet but also because of his research in the field of the natural sciences, biology and physics. Because of his diversity, he is considered a genius, probably the last one we know. This institution, Goethe Institut, has been named after him to commemorate this great man. I congratulate the Federation of Deutsche Welle Fan Club for organizing this program today."

Asad Chowdhury then spoke about Goethe. "Yesterday, the French TV was showing something on Goethe and I felt disappointed about not doing anything here in Bangladesh. Now, some of that disappointment has dissipated because of we have gathered to commemorate the great man, who was a scientist, who studied law and whom the world remembers for his writings. Goethe gave confidence not only to his fellow men in Germany, as well as in Europe. He created ripples, storms even, around the world. He was so intelligent that he knew more than his teachers did. Once, when his father was teaching his Italian, he knew more than his father, who said, 'If I knew as much as my son did, I'd have been able to do something great'. When he was learning French, he said, 'Voltaire is dead. Now from whom am I supposed to learn?' Such was the depth and width of his knowledge."

"Goethe was a great paragon and was known for his many loves. There was this certain Charlotte Franstein, to whom he had written 105 letters. Imagine the love he had for the woman! Goethe was very romantic and generally curious. His curiosity with the mountains and the rivers was like that of a child - he would look at a mountain and would want to sit on its peak, he would want to rush to the source of the river he looked at everything positively and this was contagious." He, then read out one of Goethe's poems, which he translated and then said, "We are miles away from Frankfurt and years away from 1749, but we still wish him all the best."

Then Nurat Jahan read out 'My Feast' in Deutsche and Syed Shafiqul read out the Bangla translation, which went 'Dekho dekho prokriti kano nobo bodhur shajey shojito hoyechey shudhu amar jonno'. Mofizuddin Sheikh and Mahin then took the stage to read 'Gefuntin' and its Bangla translation 'Shondhya Pradip' (by Abu Zafar) respectively. Md. Motaleb Hossain read out 'Umnitana' and then 'Modhyoratey'. Thereafter Selim Chowdhury read out 'Tomakey money', a translation by Fazul Shahabuddin. Masyud Mannan then read out 'Prometheus' and then Golam Sarwar recited 'Prometheus'. "Goethe's poems are warm, loving and pleasant, but this poem shows the fire in him" Sarwar said and then read, 'He shorbosto debota brindo...'

Aly Zaker then came on stage to recite from a translation of 'Faust'. Mr. Mannan suggested months ago about celebrating Goethe's Birthday, to which he readily responded. "But I did not expect him to call me on the actual day and ask me to recite. Hence, I cannot act it out. The last time I did that was ages ago. Now, I won't be able to do that. So let me just read it out." With this, he started, 'Je pothey jaina kano shaja ba baka', which concluded the celebrations. Moinul Islam then took the mike and said 'Thank You' to the audience as well as the participants, who put on quite a performance. The only disappointing part was that there weren't too many people to see such talented people in action. But at least, Goethe was remembered and his birthday celebrated, which is more than what anyone can ask for.
