BCL central body completes tenure with only half of posts appointed

By Abul Kalam Azad

The central committee of the ruling party-backed Bangladesh Chhatra League (BCL), with 54 of its 101 posts still vacant, has completed its one-year tenure on Thursday.

This has resulted in a widespread frustration among the BCL leaders who had aspired for the coveted posts in the organisation's top body.

The BCL constitution provides for a new committee to be organised before the existing one expires. But there was no move as of yesterday to form a new central committee.

According to BCL sources, the out-going central committee ran its one-year term with half the strength and failed to complete the committee's tenure due to "lack of consensus" between its top two leaders — President Bahadur Bepari and General Secretary Ajoy Kar Khokon.

The president and general secretary who are entrusted with the responsibility to form a full-fledged body have already been accused of failing to do so.

Talking to this correspondent yesterday, a large number of BCL supporters expressed their resentment over their leaders' failure to form a full-fledged committee.
