Mexico blank Thailand

AUCKLAND, Nov 11: Mexico scored an easy 4-0 win over Thailand while Uruguay, Poland, Spain and Ghana settled for draws Thursday at the under-17 World Soccer Championship, reports AP.

Sebastian Alvarez gave Uruguay a 1-0 lead in the 46th minute but Lugajasz Naveg's goal in the 62nd minute equalized for Poland in their Group A match at Auckland.

Mario Alvarez scored a last-minute goal to give Spain a 1-1 draw with Ghana in the teams' opening Group B match at Napier. Ghana led 1-0 just after halftime on Ibrahim Attiku's goal in the 47th minute.

Also at Napier, Mexico led 2-0 at halftime en route to their win over Thailand.

Juan Estada scored in the sixth minute and Aaron Galindo in the 38th for the 2-0 halftime lead. Gustavo Ramirez, in the 55th, and Felix Grijalva, in the 77th, closed out the Mexico scoring.

Spanish coach Juan Santisteban Troyano accused Ghanaian players of faking injuries after their draw.

At times up to three Ghanaian players were rolling on the ground, and several, particularly goalkeeper Owusu Banahene, required multiple bouts of medical attention to relieve cramp.

Ghana's head coach Jones Attiquayefo said his side was affected by jet lag.

"They are suffering from fatigue. We've done a lot of flying, we flew for three days to get here," said Attiquayefo.

Ghana, holding a 1-0 lead deep into injury time after Attiku scored in the 47th minute, may have been the victims of their stoppages.

Spain stole the draw when replacement left midfielder Albert Crusat Domene rounded Ghanaian defender Razak Ibrahim and floated a cross for Alvarez to head past the goalkeeper.

Eight teams in the 16-team championship play their first matches Friday. Defending champion Brazil plays Australia and Mali takes on Germany in Group C matches at Christchurch, while Jamaica plays Burkina Faso and Paraguay takes on Qatar in Group D matches at Dunedin.

The United States opened the tournament Wednesday with a 2-1 win over New Zealand.

Le Tissier considers loan move

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Nov 11: Out-of-favour Southampton player Matthew Le Tissier says he may consider a loan move away from the Dell. In order to get first-team football, reports AP.

"Le God," as he is known by the English Premiership club's fans, has failed to nail down a regular first-team spot this season following an Achilles problem at the start of the campaign.

After scoring in a recent reserve match against non-league South Albans, Le Tissier admitted: "It is not inspiring to play in front of a handful of people at St Albans, so maybe I need to go out on loan to get a few matches under my belt."

Ronaldo in no-man's land

SYDNEY, Nov 11 (AP/AF): Soccer's world governing body FIFA has reportedly banned Australian Harry Kewell and Brazilian Ronaldo in the latest twist to the forthcoming two-match series in Sydney and Melbourne.

Kewell, who did not return home from England despite being selected, will have to miss Leeds United's Premier League match against Bradford next week. The Australian newspaper reported Thursday.

Ronaldo, twice voted world player of the year, has been banned from playing the second match at the Melbourne Cricket Ground next Wednesday after a dispute between his Italian club Inter Milan, FIFA and the Brazilian Federation, the newspaper says.

Brazil coach Vanderly Luxemburgo said Thursday he would not play Ronaldo in Sunday's first friendly international against Australia if FIFA prevented him from playing.

Ronaldo is caught in a tug of war between his national team and Italian club Inter Milan, who successfully appealed to FIFA to ban him from playing the second match at Melbourne next Wednesday.

Luxemburgo said if Ronaldo could not play in both Sunday's game at Stadium Australia and next Wednesday's fixture, the Melbourne there was no point him staying and he should return to Italy.

Inter Milan argued that Ronaldo had already been released for his full quota of international appearances.

Russian referees boss sacked

MOSCOW, Nov 11: Russian football's ruling body the RFU on Wednesday sacked the country's referees chief Sergei Khushnitskiy, saying his work this season was unsatisfactory, reports AP.

ternational for his year. However, Brazilian officials insist Ronaldo was still eligible to play both games in Australia because he did not turn out in two matches against the Netherlands in June.

Brazil's first team is in Spain but he preferred to come to Australia ahead of an anticipated appearance at the Olympic Games next year — the only major tournament the country is yet to win.

Leeds and Soccer Australia last week reached an agreement whereby Kewell would play the Sydney game but then pulled out injured, without letting Leeds know.

Internacional indebted to Dunga

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov 11: Veteran midfielder Dunga saved Internacional, one of Brazil's biggest clubs, from relegation with only minutes to spare on Wednesday in a game marked by moments of farce, reports Reuters.

The 36-year-old, who captained Brazil in the last two World Cups, got a faint touch to a free kick to score the only goal of the game against Palmeiras with six minutes left.

The result saved Internacional from being relegated to the Second Division of the Brazilian championship and sent Gama down in their place.

The trouble came after Dunga's goal. Two minutes from time, Internacional coach Emerson Leno was sent off for deliberately throwing balls onto the pitch as Palmeiras were mounting a late attack. He left but ball boys continued to kick spare balls onto the field.

Then a floodlight failure halted play with only two minutes injury time remaining. After a 15-minute delay, play was re-started but only a few seconds were actually played.

When the final whistle went, international players celebrated as if they had won the championship.

Relegation in the championship is decided by a points-per-match average decided over the last two tournaments. Internacional's win gave them 1.267, compared to Gama's 1.238, whereas a draw would have left Internacional with 1.220.

Earlier on Wednesday, Internacional had been given an extra point by a tribunal which ruled that Sao Paulo had fielded an ineligible player against them. The match, played in October, ended 2-2.

A first hearing, held on Tuesday, had ruled that Internacional should get two points from the match and Sao Paulo none.

Unlucky Gama joined Botafogo-Ribeirao Preto, Juventude and Parana, relegated before Wednesday's final round of first stage matches.

At the top, Sao Paulo, Atletico Mineiro and Guarani claimed the final quarter-final places.

Sao Paulo beat Victoria 3-0 away. Atletico Mineiro beat Gremio 2-0 at home and Guarani went through despite losing 1-0 to Botafogo. Atletico qualified despite sacking coach Dario Pereira the day before.

They joined Corinthians, Cruzeiro, Vasco da Gama, Victoria and Ponte Preta in the last eight.

Laila stops Pennybaker

CHESTER, West Virginia, Nov 11: Laila Ali's second fight was much longer than her first. The result was the same, reports AP.

The 21-year-old daughter of Muhammad Ali stopped Shadina Pennybaker of Pittsburgh with three seconds left in their fourth-round bout Wednesday night before about 2,000 fans at the Mountaineer Race Track and Gaming Resort.

All said in the days leading up to the fight that she would knock out Pennybaker, a 28-year-old accounting student from Pittsburgh, who was making her pro debut.

Yet she was unable to land any solid blows early and she appeared to plan out every move.

Early in the fourth round, Ali bloodied her opponent's lip and forced a standing-eight count with a series of blows to Pennybaker's head.

All finished with a flurry of left-right combinations that sent Pennybaker reeling into the corner and forced the referee to stop the fight.

Pennybaker's corner was upset over the stoppage.

The bout lasted much longer than Ali's debut, when she knocked out April Fowler in 31 seconds on Oct 8 in Verona, New York.

Ali's father, who watched her first fight from ringside, didn't attend Wednesday's bout. Veronica Anderson, Laila's mother who was Ali's third wife, watched Wednesday's fight from ringside.

The bout was the fifth of a seven-fight card at the resort at the tip of West Virginia's northern panhandle, 50 miles (80.46 kilometers) northwest of Pittsburgh.

Nebiolo RIP

TURIN, Nov 11: Former International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF) president Primo Nebiolo was buried in his home city of Turin on Wednesday, reports Reuters.

Nebiolo's funeral was attended by former athletes, sports administrators and local politicians, including Turin mayor Valentino Castellani. Officials of the organising committee of the Turin 2006 Winter Olympics were also present.

A funeral mass for Nebiolo — president of the IAAF since 1981 and also a member of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) — was held in the church of the Crocetta in the neighbourhood where he lived in the northern industrial city.

"Our great president has died," said former Italian middle distance champion Franco Aresé at the mass.

Nebiolo was later buried in the city's main cemetery.

Nebiolo, who thrived on controversy, died of a heart attack in a Rome hospital on Sunday after being taken ill at his home. He was 76.

While some praised him, Nebiolo had no lack of critics. They accused him of autocratic rule and having a cavalier approach to democratic procedures.

The funeral in Turin followed a memorial service held in Rome on Tuesday attended by former Italian premier Giulio Andreotti and IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch.

It's Holyfield's turn?

LAS VEGAS, Nov 11 (Reuters): If pressed, Lennox Lewis will finally admit, in hardly a revelation, that he should have done more to win rather than get a draw in his first fight with Evander Holyfield last March. Reluctantly, he promises to do more in Saturday's rematch.

Holyfield, of course, says it's too late. Lewis has his chance but passed it up because he was afraid to take risks to become the undisputed heavyweight champion.

"Some people don't want to be uncomfortable," Holyfield said Wednesday about Lewis, the World Boxing Council champion, who in the opinion of most ringsiders did enough to win the first fight, even though with his talents and his opponent's sluggish performance he probably could have stopped Holyfield.

"I truly believe that Lennox had the opportunity in a lifetime to be the undisputed champion. He didn't take that chance because he said, 'I may get caught,'" said Holyfield in a series of unusually direct verbal swipes at the Briton.

"In life we all may get caught, but we all have to take chances to be a winner," Holyfield said. "Some people just don't have the fortitude. Some people just don't have what's necessary to take chances to be the very best they can be. Boxing is a replica of what people are."

When first asked if he had been too cautious in the first fight in Madison Square Garden, Lewis simply said: "No".

But asked again moments later, the 34-year-old Briton said: "Maybe I was too cautious."

"In front of his face. He doesn't have to look for me. He doesn't have to look for me."

Then Lewis seemed to grow fonder of his posture and said that "the first round is going to be ferocious. I'm going to go after him, especially in the first round, and see what he's got to offer. He's never seen a boxer like Lennox Lewis."

Well, actually Holyfield has — last March. "At least I know the man for what he is," said Holyfield, not complementarily. "I'm not a very conservative person. If I was conservative I'd still be in the ghetto. I have more skills than Lennox."

But then again, he said with a broad smile, "If I had his skills I might fight that way" — conservatively, the way Lewis fought last March. "I'm the undisputed champion of the world as I stand here. On Saturday, I'll pick up the belts," said Holyfield, yet again feeling compelled to add his religious take on himself. "I see myself as God's champion."

Holyfield, the World Boxing Association and International Boxing Federation champion, says he would like, but doesn't expect, Lewis to come straight at him Saturday. If he does, Holyfield says he will have an easier fight.

As they wrapped up their training and sessions with the media before their scheduled 12-round fight, both men appeared remarkably relaxed and confident.

Holyfield, who often rambles far afield in his responses was particularly cogent on Wednesday with direct, humorous and insightful responses that didn't need to be studied for their meaning.

Of course, in reading the jumbled, grimy tea leaves of boxing that could merely mean that Holyfield and Lewis have only learned to handle microphones and reporters better.

Chang goes down fighting

STOCKHOLM, Nov 11: Mark Philippoussis overpowered Michael Chang in a David-and-Goliath battle Wednesday night as the Australian tuned up for the Davis Cup final next month with a 7-6, 4-6, 6-1 victory at the 800,000-dollar Stockholm Open, reports AP.

Seventh-seeded Philippoussis, who towers above the 1.75-metre Chang, advanced into the second round in one hour, 45 minutes after winning his third match in a row against Chang, 51st in the world after standing second for years but hitting an injury and form slump in 1998.

The massive Australian, ranked 23rd, showed that he is regaining confidence after July's knee surgery as he plays in his sixth event since the operation.

Despite his third win on the trot, Philippoussis still trails Chang 3-4 in their career series. Australia face France in Nice, December 3-5 without the services of number one Patrick Rafter, still recovering after a shoulder operation.

Philippoussis and teenager Lleyton Hewitt are expected to shoulder the singles duties on the indoor clay.

Second seed Tim Henman fell victim for the third time in as many matches to American Jan-Michael Gambill, who earned a 7-5, 6-3 second-round victory.

Henman also lost the chance to stay in the battle for a possible alternate's spot at this month's Tour world championship in Hanover.

Germany's Tommy Haas, the Stockholm fourth seed, is now in pole position for that place.

The number 10 Briton was tight-lipped following the defeat which ends a season where he stood a career-high fifth in the world only four months ago after playing in the Wimbledon semifinals.

"There is nothing much to say, is there," said Henman. "Obviously, I'm disappointed. I'll just try and try and leave this behind me and look forward to the next season."
