Designing- A Step Forward

1st Ananna Eid Fashion award takes place

By Abdus Saboor

As dressing is the most important component of a person's appearance, the dress designers certainly play a vital role in fashion. As for any artist, his best recognition comes with award, and believing so, Ananna, a fortnightly magazine, has taken initiatives to encourage our dress designers.

Ananna organized its first Eid Fashion award on December 11, 1999 at hotel Abakash. State minister for information Professor Abu Sayeed Chowdhury was the chief guest in the occasion. Eminent fashion designer Mahin Khan was present as the special guest and Tasmima Hossen, the editor of Ananna, presided over the ceremony.

The programme started with the welcome speech by Dil Monowara Banu, the executive editor of Ananna. Mahin Khan, in her speech, said, 'In future electronic media will be the source for fashion update as e-commerce will take over all other means of communication. It would be a shame if we too do not hook on to such an approach in order to take our fashion into the next millennium.'

The programme then quickly shifted to a brief fashion show displaying the awarded dresses. The models in the show were Mou, Runi, Nipa, Sagar, Al Amin, Reefat, Oli, Shimu and others.

After the show, Tasmima Hossen gave her speech. In her short speech, she disclosed the background and motive behind this award ceremony and she also gave brief information about her magazine. Professor Abu Sayeed Chowdhury in his speech emphasized on our traditional culture and encouraged the modern designers to mingle our folk fashion with the modern trend.

Ananna has been giving two other awards for the last five years. They are the Shirsha Dash award and the Literature award. The Shirsha Dash award is given to ten top women of the country who have done exceptionally well in their own field. The Literature award is given to a woman for her literary works. This is for the first time that Ananna is giving award for fashion designing.

Ananna was first published for women only. Now it has expanded its boundary to the whole family.

The award was distributed in different categories. In the Saari section, there were five divisions, Ka, Kha, Ga, Gha, Uma, and in the Salwar Kamees and Panjabi section there were three divisions, Ka, Kha, and Ga.

In Saari section the winners were Dressidel, Desh Karupanna, Molla Silk, Karu Palli and Dressidel again.

In Salwar Kamees department, the winners were Kay Craft, Anjans and OG. In the Panjabi department the winners were Desh Karupanna, GD Fashion, and Karupalli. In miscellaneous section, Anjans got the first prize.

The programme was sponsored by Arong and ANZ Bank.

There was an Iftar party at the end of prize giving ceremony. After the Iftar there took place a cultural programme. Eminent artist Sadi Mohammad and Rukhsa performed in the programme.

Balzac: the 'Shakespeare of Novels'

By Fayza Haq

THE Alliance Francaise celebrated Honore de Balzac by showing films based on his novels and presenting posters dealing with his life and career.

Balzac helped to establish the orthodox classical novel and is generally considered to be one of the greatest fiction writers of all time. He produced a vast collection of novels and short stories.

Balzac's father came from a southern peasant stock while his mother came from a family of prosperous Parisian cloth merchants. He was born in May 20, 1799.

Balzac went to school at College des Oratoriens at Vendome and in Paris. He then spent three years as a lawyer's clerk. During this time he wrote plays such as 'Cromwell' which were not successful. Then he turned to potboilers — gothic, humorous and historical novels. In 1828 he was narrowly saved bankruptcy and was left with debts more than 60,000 francs.

In 1829 two of his works brought him to the brink of success. 'Les Chouans' was a novel about Breton peasants called Chouans who took part in a royalist insurrection against the French Revolution. The other, 'The Physiology of Marriage' was a humorous and satirical essay on the subject of cuckoldry dealing with its causes and cures.

Balzac henceforth spent much of his time in Paris. He began to frequent some of the best known Parisian salons of the day and redoubled his efforts to set himself as a dazzling figure in society. In 1832 Balzac became friendly with Eveline Hanska, a Polish countess whom he met twice in Switzerland and once in Vienna. They agreed to get married when her husband died.

To clear his debts and put himself in position to marry Madame Hanska how became Balzac's great incentive. In the period 1832-35 he produced more than 20 works including the novels 'The Country Doctor' and 'Eugene Grandet'. Among the shorter works was 'Colonel Chabret' and 'The Vicar of Tours'. In all these varied works Balzac emerged as the supreme observer and chronicler of contemporary French society.

These novels are unsurpassed for their narrative drive, their large cast of vital, diverse and interesting characters, and their in their obsessive interest and examination of virtually all spheres of life including romantic life, arts, literature, politics, metropolitan manners and customs.

No theme is more typically Balzacian than that of the ambitious young provincial fighting for advancement in the competitive world of Paris. He was specially attracted to the theme of the individual in con-flikt with society: the adventurer, the scoundrel, the unscrupulous financier and the criminal. The individual in Balzac's stories is continually affected by the pressure of material difficulties and social ambitions, and he may expend his tremendous vitality in ways Balzac views as socially destructive and self-destructive.

In 1840 Balzac hit upon a Dantesque title for his 90 volumes of novels and novellas in the 'Comedie Humaine'. He is regarded as the creator of realism or naturalism in the novel. He is acknowledged as the one who established the technique of the orthodox classical novel. He had exceptional powers of observation, a photographic memory and the sympathetic intuitive capacity to understand and describe other people's attitudes, feelings and motivations. He was bent on illustrating on relation between cause and effect, between the social background and the character.

Sometimes after Wenceslas Hanski died Balzac married his sweetheart Madame Hanska but he died a lingering death shortly after.
