A Heap of Broken Images

The fourth solo exhibition of Firoz Mahmud ends at the Alliance Francaise de Dhaka

By Saima Islam

"WHAT are the roots that clutch, what branches grow out of this stony rubbish? Son of man you cannot say, or guess, for you know only a heap of broken images," writes Eliot. Firoz's exhibition takes one to Eliot's Waste Land through his works, which can also be called "A heap of broken images". The barrenness, the crises of the modern life almost come to life in Firoz's works.

The exhibition that started on December 17 in the Alliance Francaise ends today. This is Firoz Mahmud's fourth solo exhibition and the first in Dhaka.

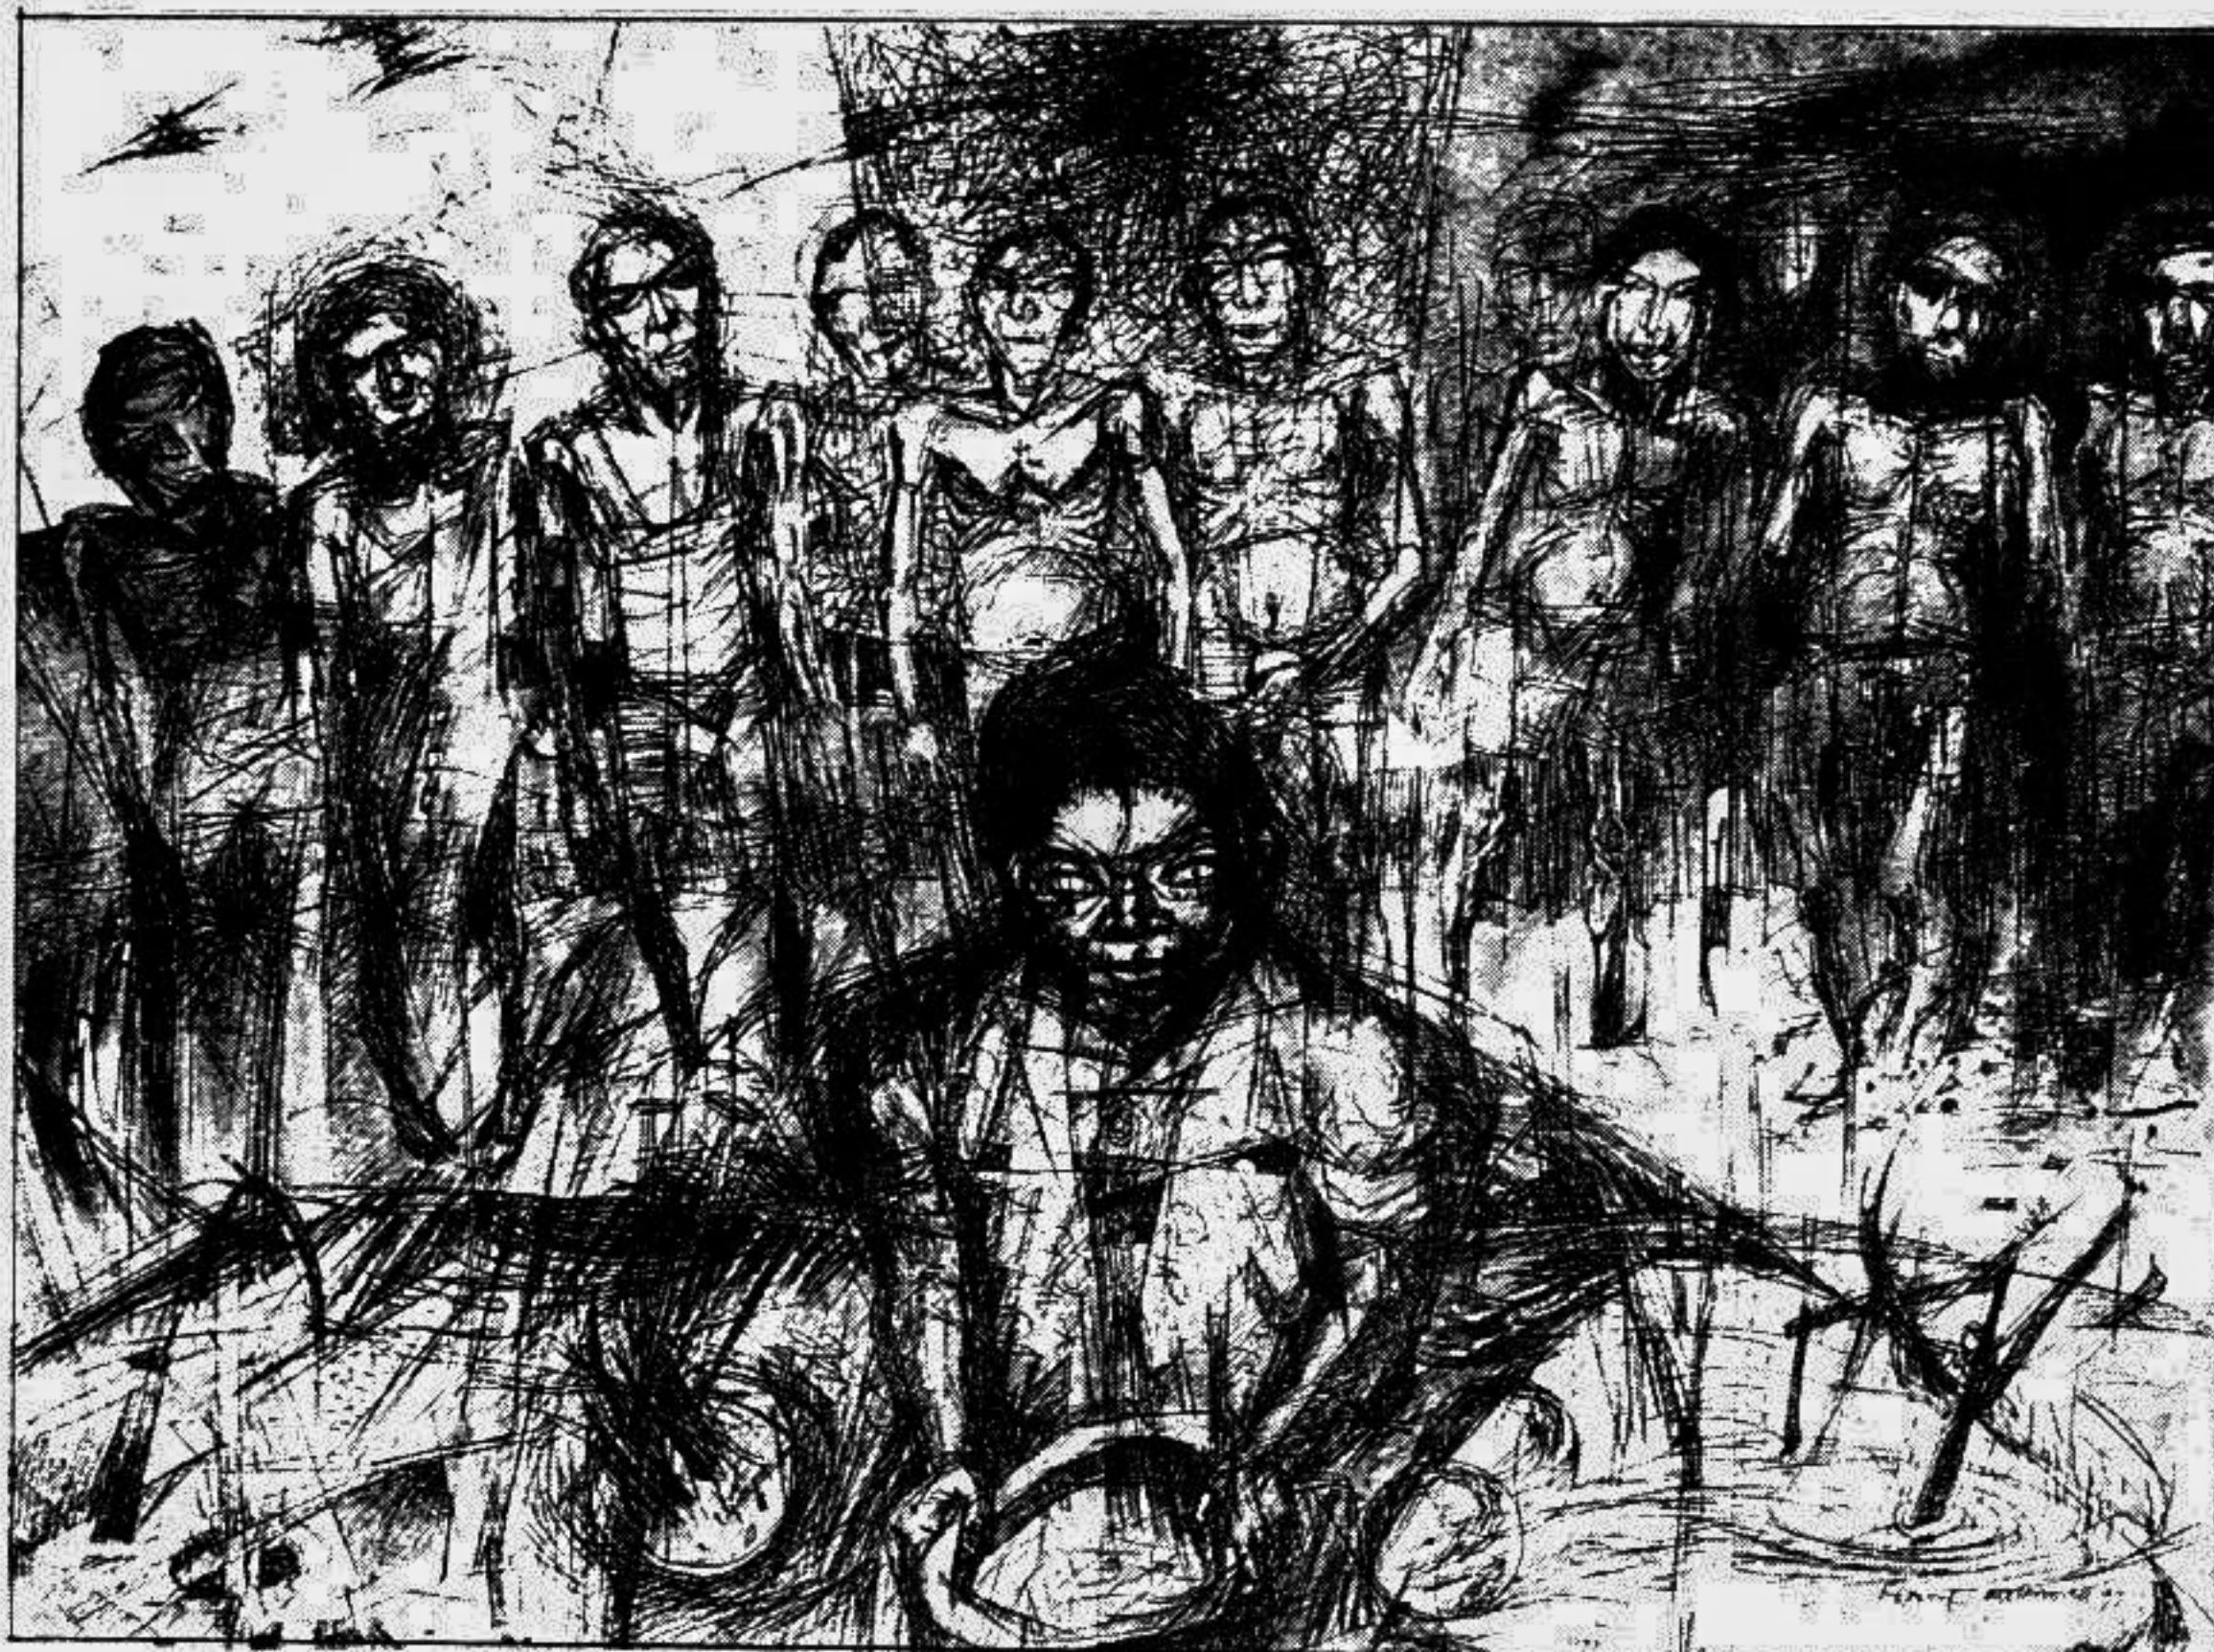

The artist has a unique blend of style and sense of colour, which he uses to create an interesting range of works that immediately catch one's attention. "King of the Street," projects the striking picture of the street urchins in vivid reality. Their popping eyes, the crowd of bony bodies brings the shocking reality to life.

"His Desire and Frustration" clearly brings man's existential tension into focus. A long time ago Eearus wanted to fly very high but his waxen wings melted as he flew too close to the sun, man still has the desire which flies very high and gets broken quite often. Firoz wanted to catch the essence of man's desire and how it gives birth to so many broken dreams everyday. The wings in the picture represent man's desire, the circles symbolize the infinite cycle of time and man's never ending endeavour, and the grim and painful face brings all the frustration in light.

The series 'Hypnotized' has an interesting story to tell. Desire, lust, thirst for money or power make man enslaved to his instinct. A powerful force takes hold of him and he has no way to escape. In this series the picture of the disciples under the spell can easily be compared to anybody who has been defeated by the powerful forces of sin. Firoz uses colours almost recklessly to bring out the hypnotized effect in his 'Hypnotized-2' the bright orange, yellow, and deep brown creates the effect of the fire that has a mesmerizing almost hypnotic effect on the viewers.

Dwindled Life-2 shows the harsh reality of the daily struggle of a Rickshawpuller. The well build body of the Rickshaw puller is the proof of the back-breaking work that he has to do to earn a livelihood. The dark faces of the Rickshaw puller and many of his fellow mates in the background along side the Rickshaws bring the familiar picture that we see every day but perhaps never stop to think about the misery that lingers in the backdrop.

The review would be incomplete if the artist's series on the horses are not mentioned. In his 'Invincible God, Moon and Crocodile Tears of Horse' and 'Furious Horse, Moon and Invincible God' the force and power is felt as if the strength lingering in the horses becomes almost tangible.

In all of Firoz's painting, the figures seem more important than the colours. Colours come to fill the figures according to their need. That doesn't lessen the artist's dexterity in his use of colour in any way; on the contrary, his exact use of colour makes his works more dynamic.

namic. He compiled his exhibition with drawings and oils on canvas both of which projects the artist's talent.

Firoz is still a student of the Institute of Fine Arts, University of Dhaka. He participated in many group exhibitions. He held three more solo exhibitions in Japan, South Korea and Khulna. He won the Elizabeth Greenshield Grants of Award from Canada in 1999. In 1998 he received, 3 prize for figurative painting from 1 Tone International Miniature Art Exhibition, Dhaka and the Countess enid driscoll — spaletti prize for "Bloody but Fresh" from Royal Overseas League, London, at the 15 annual Open Art Exhibition.

Professor Rafiqun Nabi, Institute of Fine Arts, University of Dhaka, inaugurated the exhibition and Professor Mahmudul Haque was present as the guest of honour on the occasion. "Though his colours and arrangements of elements and forms bear essence of modern manners, yet one can find the artist much conservative in having ultra-experiments to create style" said Professor Rafiqun Nabi at the inauguration. Moinuddin Khaled, an eminent art critic saw in Firoz's works, "The virtual representation of a forest of geometric shapes where the familiar motifs are drawn with fine lines. However, he finally reveals in recreating the rhythm of structures in its compactness which he perceives in his surroundings".

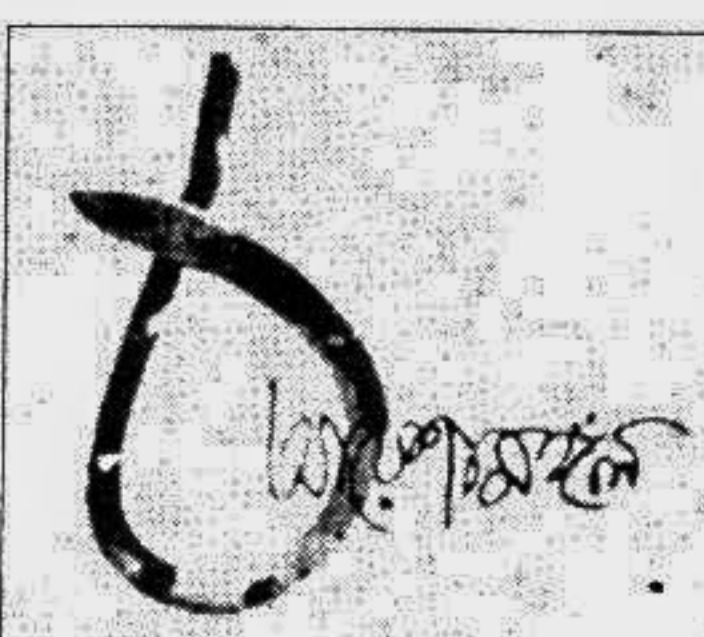

As Eliot used the fragments of images and arranged them to create a master piece, Firoz's canvases also accumulates all the fine lines to capture the snapshots of life in a way to create a united whole which brings the immediacy of life closer to the viewers. Eliot ended his 'The Waste Land' with the hopeful note of 'Shanti, Shanti, Shanti'. Underneath that pessimistic exterior, Firoz's works also reflect man's endless endeavour to achieve his dream in spite of all the obstacles that comes in his way. This unique blend of desire and frustration, struggle and failure, colour and lack of colour is what makes his exhibition an authentic one hence justifying the artist's theme of the exhibition, "Quest of Authenticity".

Ayeshamangal - A True Story

The premier show of Ayeshamangal held at the Indian Embassy Auditorium

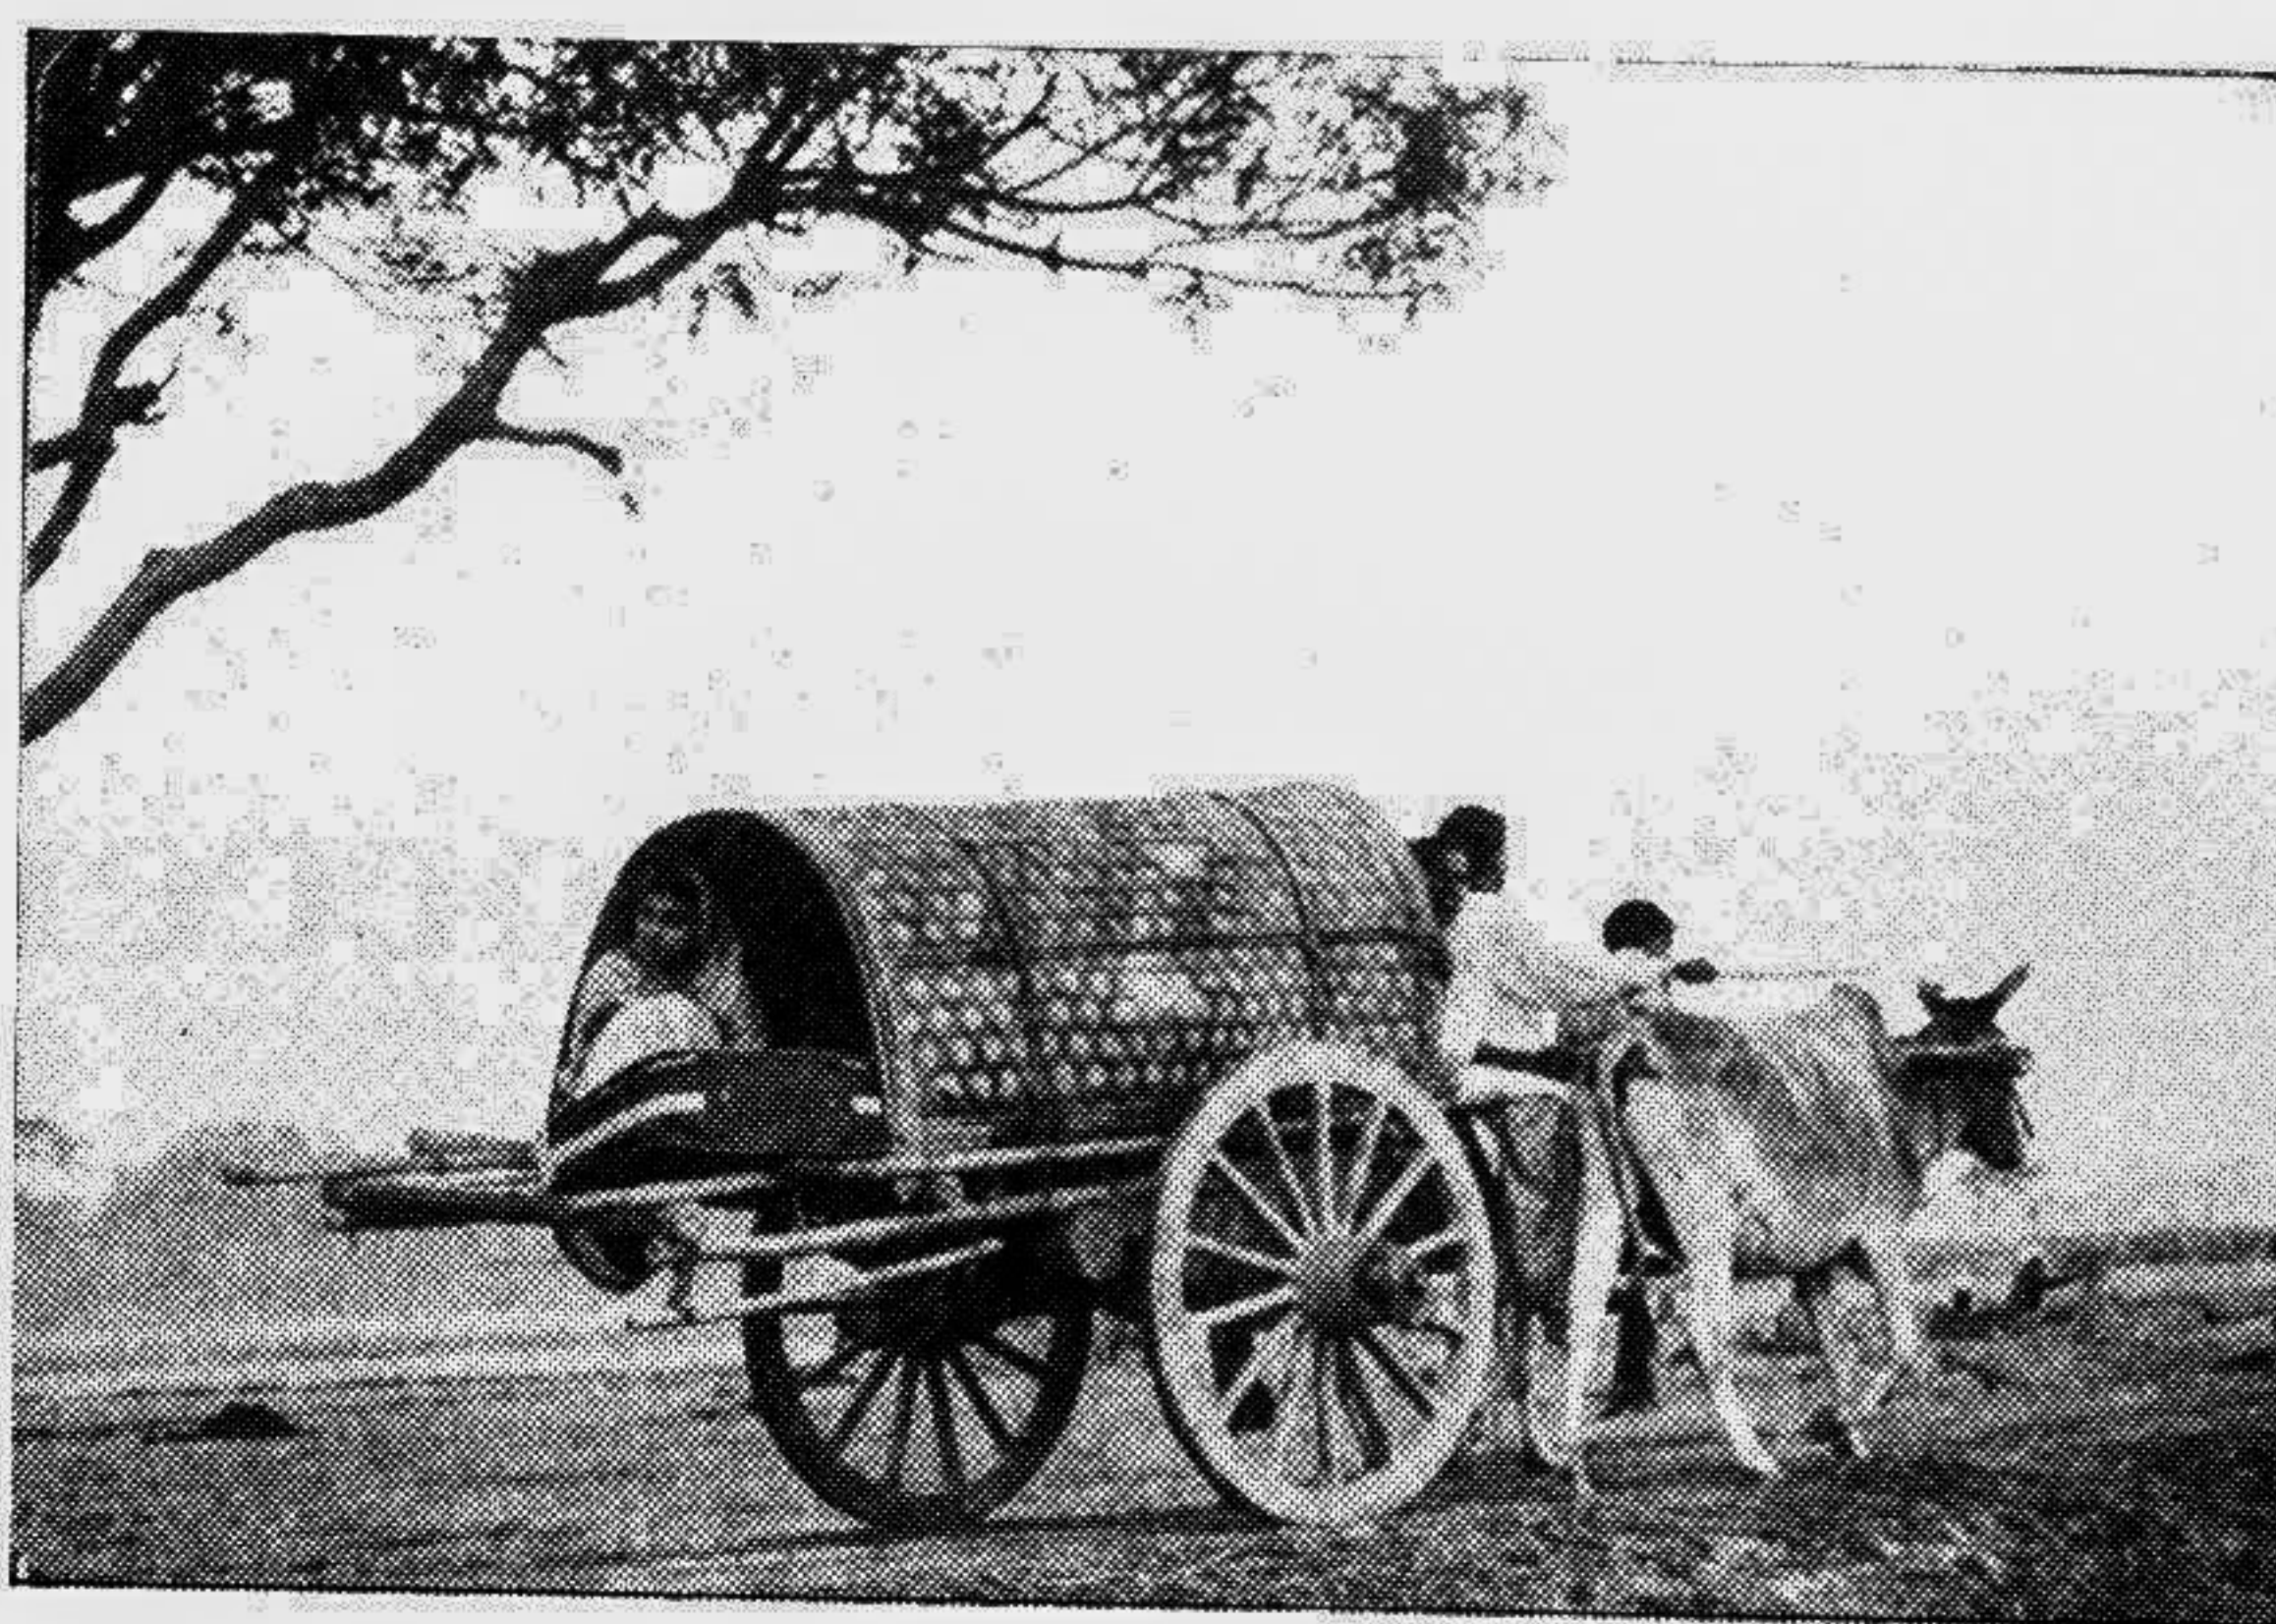

By Nafid Imran Ahmed

OCTOBER 2, 1977. A mysterious fallout in Bangladesh Air Force resulted the death sentence of many soldiers. One of them was innocent Corporal Joyanal Abedin, who was hanged during that period. This is his story.

The premier show of the telefilm Ayeshamangal was held at the Indian Embassy Auditorium on December 19. Based on a novel written by Anisul Islam and directed by Mostafa Sarwar, Ayeshamangal is a Chabial presentation.

The story focuses Corporal Joyanal Abedin's wife Ayesha. After their marriage Ayesha and Joyanal were living happily.

Enjoying their new life together. After an year their first child was born. Joyanal was doing his job properly and taking care of his family. Then after some time a little baby girl was born. Joyanal was quite happy to get what he dreamed for a long time, a happy family. On the other hand 6 years after the Liberation War, an internal coup took place in Bangladesh Air Force. Joyanal was sleeping at his house along with his family at that. But when he went to work the following day he was arrested and was sentenced to death after a mock trial.

Ayesha was totally in darkness. All she knew that her husband was out on duty for a month. With two children Ayesha went through a very hard time. After a few days she was ordered to leave the Air Force Quarter. She went to her in-law's place at Rangpur. There she received the news that her husband was to be hanged. She did not even know the date. After the news she was a burden for Joyanal's parents. They wanted she was kicked out from her in-law's because her student's father gave her a ride back home which created a scandal.

Ayesha started her new life and established a school where she taught how to recite Quran properly. Time went by and after 20 years in an article in the daily 'Bhorer Kagaj' for the first time she knew that her husband was hanged though he was innocent.

The telefilm reflects the situation of Bangladesh during 1977, the post war period, which is illustrated through the her to leave with her daughter. And they would keep her son as he is the light of their family. Ayesha started working. She taught The Holy Quran, and started earning. But every night she listened to the radio and conversed with her husband in her imagination. Her love for him could not make her believe that he was dead. Then one day life of Ayesha. The killing of Bangabandhu. The Marshall Law, the Yes/ No vote and the game of money during that dark period forms the basic for the story. Ayeshamangal stars, Nagen Barman, Raaj Biswas, Banna Mirza, Hosne Ara Lily, Ro Lo, Badal Shahid, Reshma, Abdullah Baki Rana, Ahmed Rubel and the actors from Rangpur.
