Celebrating The Millennium in Style

Kay Kraft's millennium exhibition at Alliance Francaise de Dhaka

By Saima Islam

WINTER, Eid and the Millennium, the celebration does not get bigger than this. All these together has put the fashion industry of Bangladesh into a swing. Keeping all these festivity in mind, Kay Kraft, a leading fashion house of the country, has organized their millennium exhibition at the Alliance Francaise de Dhaka from December 23 to January 2.

Over the years Kay Kraft has made their mark in our fledgling fashion industry and people now eagerly wait to see what the K K has in their Eid collection. The latest collection will definitely cater to the demand of trendy fashion wear.

Eid and winter has influenced the designers of Kay Kraft this year and the fashion line they have presented in the exhibition bears the testimony to that. As usual they have used a lot of cotton but keeping the winter in mind they have used a lot of khadi as well. For Eid they have brought a creative line of silk and georgette.

The consumers look for something gorgeous and colourful for Eid has been brilliantly materialized. Colour plays a vital role in this year's fashion trend. There are a few works in light colours but the main attraction of the exhibition is no doubt the colourful panjabis, dresses and saris.

Usually a design in block, embroidery or handprint is chosen to work on a designer wear but this year the works done in mixed media are getting popular. A combination of stencil, spray print and machine and embroidery and irregular pattern in hand spray or spray and block are used together to the dresses a gorgeous and festive look. The sherwani and angarkha cut brings in something new for those who want a variation in cuts.

Colorful panjabis are very much in fashion now a days and Kay Kraft has a great variety of colourful panjabis for men. They have included a salwar and a shawl along side the panjabis making it an attractive package. Khadi is being frequently used keeping winter in mind but there are also cotton and silk panjabis. White panjabis are gaining their popularity once again and sensing the demand the fashion house has also a collection of white panjabis as well for the Eid shoppers.

Their collections of west coats are catching everyone's attraction. They have made a number of variations in cuts, colours and materials to create an interesting range of coats that are quickly catching Eid shoppers interest. The specialties of these coats are that these can be worn with shirts, T-shirts as well as the panjabis.

The main attraction of the exhibition is no doubt is their sari collection. The designers have used a lot of gold and silver to make this collection fit for the last Eid. Machine Jamdani, tatal work, chumki, tie and dye, block, machine embroidery make their collection a sensational one. The designers' attraction for the colours is also noticeable in their saris as well. The ravishing colours along with the Egyptian and Jamdani motif no doubt stands out in the crowd of so many beautiful piece of works.

Kay Kraft has kept their price range well within the reach of the middle-class customers. The prices of the dresses range between Tk 775 and 3500, panjabis range between Tk 350 and 3500 and the west coats are priced between Tk 425 and 465 and last but definitely not the least saris range from 500 to 4000 Tk.

In his interview to the Eid Fashion special of The Daily Star Khalid Mahmood Khan the director of Kay Kraft said, "Fashion is no longer an elitist preserve. Fashion houses are now targeting the wider middle class and even want to go beyond that to reach the masses". His words prove true when one sees the price range Kay Kraft has offered for this Eid. More-over Kay Kraft has used moderate dress material and combined them with delicate spray pattern which is usually done on expensive materials to attract a greater number of consumers.

A visit to Kay Kraft's show at Alliance Francaise will definitely prove worthwhile for the Eid shoppers.
