Clay Ornaments and Trendy Dresses Go Together

Two exhibitions by Daman and Sisters' Ideas are being simultaneously held at the Alliance Francaise de Dhaka

By Abdus Saboor

FASHION has made an indelible mark in our day to day life so is the fashion accessories. A joint exhibition and sale of dresses, saris by Daman and pottery, non-conventional jewelry, terracotta and gift items by Sisters' Ideas for the millennium and Eid festival at the Alliance ated at the Alta Plaza in Dhanmondi, this is the second exhibition. Lopa, the designer of the saris and dresses, is the guiding force behind Daman. Lopa is a self-taught designer but she has completed a course on painting at the Bulbul Academy of Fine Arts.

Daman mainly displays

Pottery by Sisters' Ideas

France de Dhaka is a testimony to the growing popularity of fashion accessories side by side with dress materials.

The exhibition is being planned in two parts. The first part is being held now will continue until December 30 and after an interval of four days the second part will take place between January 4 and January 7, 2000.

For Daman, a boutique situ-saris and salwar-kameezes in the exhibition. Lopa generally works on cotton and Rajshahi Balaka silk. She uses machine embroidery, block print, hand paint, brush paint designs on her dresses.

'People are now becoming dress conscious, they do not wear whatever fascinates them but they pay attention to what suits them most,' said Lopa and added, 'through our collections we only try to make things easy for our valued customers'.

The prices of the items of the dresses is within the limit of the trendy Dhakaite. For the cotton saris the prices varies between 700 taka and 875 taka and for the silk saris the price is between 2000 and 3350 taka. For the salwar-kameezes the price range is between 1200 and 3000 taka.

The other part of the exhibition showcases clay jewelry, pottery, terracotta, cards, new year gift items, few leather goods and a variety of handicrafts by Sisters' Ideas.

The two sisters, Purba and Neepa, behind Sisters' Ideas started creating clay ornaments way back in 1982 but for the past seven years they are doing it professionally. The Sisters' Ideas has an outlet at 2/A/6 Myensing Road, Aziz Super Market.

The clay jewelry is priced between 50 and 400 taka. The price range of dry flower ornament is between 250 and 400 taka and the prices of hand painted sets ranges between 200 and 350 taka.

In our country clay jewelry is not yet popular but over the past few years clay ornaments have come a long way, said Purba. Both Neepa and Purba have training from BISIC and Jatiya Mahila Sangstha in handicrafts designing. The exhibition also displays hair band and earrings.

The exhibition will remain open from 3pm to 8pm.

A Blend of Tradition And Novelty

KarnaSubarna presents its Eid collection at Drik House.

By Muneera Parbeen

EID is the time to update one's fashion wardrobe. Naturally the fashion houses and boutiques come up with their best collection. KarnaSubarna is a boutique which draws its inspiration from the tradition and mingle it with the modern look to suit contemporary tastes; holds on exhibition of its latest collection at Drik Gallery beginning January 1, 2000.

KarnaSubarna began its

journey way back in 1997. It is a house that specializes ready-to-wear clothes. KarnaSubarna means a golden earring. There is another story attached to this very name. It was the capital of the first independent Bangalee king Shasanka the Great (606 BC). The word KarnaSubarna is thus related to the glorious history of the Bangalees.

Like its name the house also specializes in traditional designs involving motifs and stitches that are typical to the region. Nakshi stitches, hand-painting and batik work are the main forms of art that is seen in KarnaSubarna's designs. Saris, Salwar Kameez and panjabis are the main pieces that this house designs.

The main designer of KarnaSubarna is Farzana Ripa. A graduate of the Institute of Fine Arts, Ripa works with a variety of colours and forms that give her designs a glamorous yet traditional touch.

Block printing, brush painting, applique Batik, embroidery and nakshi embroidery is prominent in the saris. The saris are all in silk, muslin, chiffon and georgette. There are also some items in cotton and handloom.

Ripa's designs in salwar kameez are mostly in silk, chiffon and georgette. The range of panjabis that she has designed are also in silks and cotton fabrics.

KarnaSubarna presents its Eid collection in an exhibition at Drik Gallery at house no 58, Road no 15A (new), Dhanmondi R/A from January 1 through to January 5. The display will remain open for all from 12 noon to 8.00 pm every day.
