Save the Children UK in Bangladesh is seeking to appoint a Programme Manager for its 'Children's Justice Programme' aimed at protecting socially marginalised and vulnerable children from institutional violence. The Programme Manager, who will directly report to the Programme Head, will contribute in particular by providing legal expertise, strong managerial and research skills, and political judgement, to enable the development and implementation of all projects under the programme according to SC UK's guidelines and standards. This is a senior level position that requires a genuine commitment and sensitivity to child rights issues in Bangladesh. The salary range is between .20,000 to 23,000 taka per month, depending upon experience and qualifications.

Key Responsibilities:

- · To monitor, investigate and analyse child rights conditions in the existing justice system, including cases and patterns of violations as well as political and legal developments through extensive networking and by conducting and supervising programme activities and research within the team and by partners including children - and key actors.
- · To provide SC UK and its partner organisations with expert and authoritative advice on legal issues and processes in relation to children and women
- To lead the timely and effective development and implementation of strategies and actions.
- To prepare, all projects and advocacy material for internal and external use.
- To participate in and facilitate the collective co-ordination of the work of the programme team; preparing and agreeing detailed work plans, budgets and schedules; monitoring progress and quality control.
- To identify training and development needs for the programme.
- To represent SC UK in the field, nationally and internationally as appropriate.

The successful candidate must have:

- Proven analytical skills and legal experience in Bangladesh: to gather and analyse information from a variety of sources, evaluating quality of information, legal framework and complex political and social situations affecting children for developing and implementing programme; the ability to assess how and what arguments and approaches should be made in order to carry out a legal action, given the position of different actors and court procedures in Bangladesh: the ability to summarise research results in a clear format that can be used for action and to carry out research independently, if necessary. Prior advocacy work with NGO or government programmes and understanding of their various roles in development would be extremely valuable.
- Excellent communication (written, oral and interpersonal) skills: in English and Bangla to express ideas in a direct and easy fashion. Understanding child participation and possessing skills to facilitate child participation would be an added advantage.
- · Organisational skills: to plan, organise and prioritise work within deadlines and to be able to work in a challenging
- Team skills: to participate in the collective co-ordination of the work of the programme team by setting priorities. directing and monitoring team work and communicating effectively with other team members; conflict resolution/negotiation skills and willingness to participate in cross-programme teams would be desirable. Gender sensitivity: an awareness and clarity concerning gender issues.

To apply please send a detailed covering letter explaining your suitability to the job and a CV on or before 7th February.

Millennium celebration incident shatters BCL image

By Abul Kalam Azad

Assault on a young woman on the night of millennium celebration on Dhaka University campus embarrassed the Chhatra League leadership.

Leaders of the ruling party's student front Bangladesh Chhatra League (BCL) now feels ashamed and having hard time in regaining the lost image of the organisation that has an everlasting impact.

To hide the shameful incident and some of their comrades alleged involvement. many BCL leaders are trying to avoid the campus nowadays.

Even they are not meeting journalists on the campus in their desperate bid to refrain from making any comment on

A good number of BCL central and DU unit leaders including president Bahadur Bepari are yet to come to the campus. "He (Bepari) is now staying at his village home only to escape the harsh experience of the incident," claimed one central leader who preferred anonymity.

They admit, in confidence, the involvement of some of their activists in assaulting the young woman, Shaon Akhter Badhan, but officially they Moumen visited the Ansar and don't open their mouths on ground of image problem.

"BCL leaders should I ave taken organisational steps against these responsible. But their indifference over the issue rather further tarnished the BCL reputation," a 10ther BCL worker commented. Many others in the organisation feel the same way. Most BCL leaders who are now available on the campus, think that the incident has shattered the "image" of the country's leading student organisation. They also said that the incident would remain as a black spot in the history of the
