Parisian Portraits: A Movable Feast for Readers

An almost spiritual look into Paris Parisian Portrait, a book by Raana Haider, launched

By Ziaul Karim

PARIS is a feeling and not a city. It is un cri de coeur or a call of the heart. Parisian Portrait is written in such a sentimental spirit...

Raana Haider speaks about her sentimental engagement with the most beautiful city in the world, Paris, and how she has presented the city in the pages of her book Parisian Portrait at the launching ceremony held on Friday January 21 at Alliance Francaise premises.

As one of the admirers of an infinitely long list of admirers of the city, Raana said that the city of her feeling was an accomplished mistress in blending the avant-garde and the past...

fects how it is quintessentially so. Parisian Portrait inflicts in me a joie de vivre that I had experienced in my recent visit to the city...

"Parisian Portrait," said Foreign Secretary Shafi Saimi, brings the intricate canvas of my experience alive and through the pages of the book I take a tour down the memory lane to the 70s when I was there as a diplomat.

And this book will enrich the deep friendship between Bangladesh and France.

The second edition of Raana's A Perspective in Development: Gender Focus was also released at ceremony.

Also present at ceremony was the publisher of the books Mohiuddin Ahmed, France Lasnier, director of Alliance Francaise de Dhaka, introduced the book the author earlier.

Beauty in Black And White

Tia's exhibition of sketches is being held at Alliance Francaise

By Saima Islam

AN exhibition of pencil sketches by Tia, a young artist at her twenties, has begun at the Alliance Francaise from January 17.

In a number of her creations she has put her self composed poems beside the sketches to give the poems a different structure to stand on and to be appreciated visually.

Tia, a self-taught artist, who has never been to art academy. Perhaps that's why her style has a strange freshness to it. Her choice of subject shows her interest in popular culture in other words the essence of youth culture that drives the artist to express her in visual arts.

Her use of light and shade brings the eternal conflict between the good and the bad. In all her works her sense for the details can easily be traced. In 'Meditation' a woman is seen meditating but only her bare back is being seen.

An interesting aspect of her sketches is that, she leaves a space for different interpretations. 'What is beauty to me, may not be to many,' said the artist. She wants to bring out this duality in her works.

She has a special fascination for figures, be it human or animals. But one or two landscapes that she has done definitely catches one's attention.

All her works surely projects the amount of hard work that has been put into it. The exhibition is dedicated to her mother, Lalla Hasna Banu, the source of her inspiration.

Butterflies, pencil sketch

She has also published a book called Human Nature. When asked about her future plans she expressed her hopes to hold more exhibitions in future. She also added that she has begun her first exhibition with only pencil sketches and plans to fill her canvas with colours. The exhibition will remain open till January 31.
