exhibition Computer Graphics Comes of Age

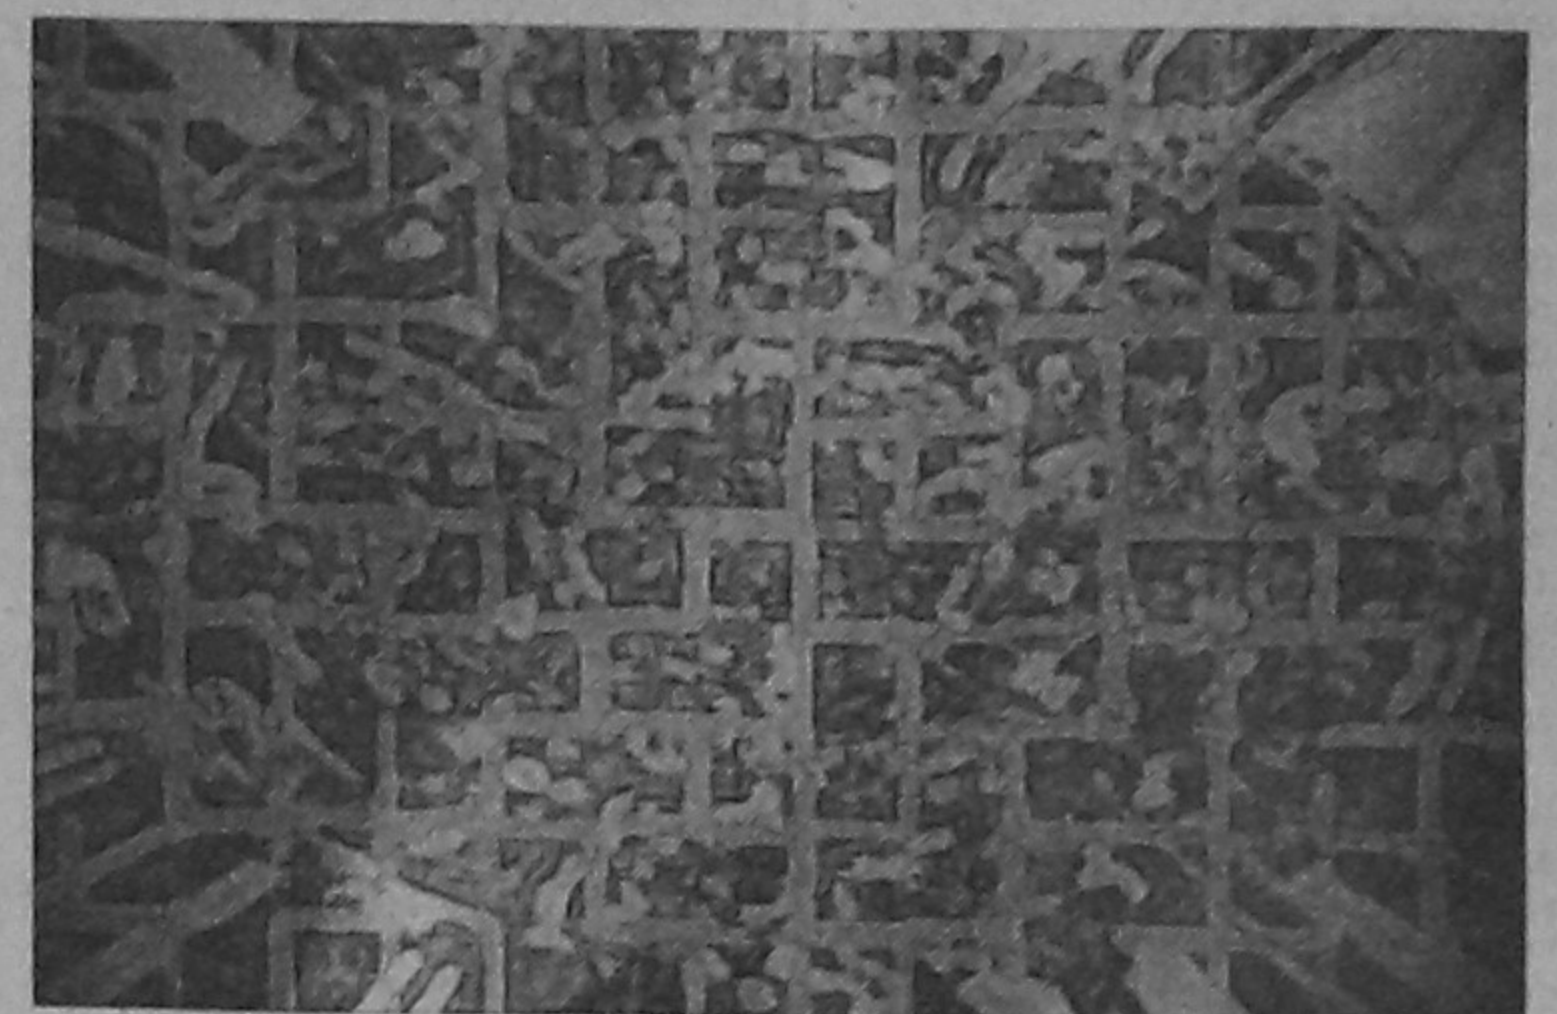

Two-day long computer graphics design exhibition by Aadnan Shahriya ends at the Russian Cultural Centre

By Nafid Imran Ahmed

PRINT media has come of age with the growth of the computer technology in our country. This has opened up avenues for computer graphic designers. New technology has always inspired creative artists. In the history of modern art, abstraction came into practice as a result of the invention of camera.

A free lance graphic designer Aadnan Shahriya held his first two-day long solo computer graphic design exhibition at the Russian Cultural Centre on January 17. Artist Imdad Hossain inaugurated the show. Sergey M Fuskin, first secretary and head of the cultural department, Embassy of the Russian Federation in Bangladesh was also present as the special guest at the inaugural ceremony.

Aadnan exhibited around 60 of his graphic works. Most of them had dark backgrounds. He used light colour on the black background and created a number of patterns and geometrical shapes. His use of red, maroon, blue and green are quite interesting. He used the colours in various shades to form fluid patterns. He has created his designs keeping in mind the need of the publishing industry, for example poster and book cover.

Aadnan worked in Adobe Photoshop, Corel Draw, Adobe Illustrator and many other paint software. He even used a number of them together to create the interesting special effects.
