

Undying embers of democracy

Like in 1952, then again in 1969 through 1971, the students again moved out from campus to the streets mobilising against the tyranny of the autocrat in 1990. People from all walks of life joined them in tandem and the mass burst into agitation and convulsed the corridors of power of the tyrant. The despot unleashed his unlimited force of oppression — first by police, then by the armed forces, only to blemish their names to secure his selfish interest. But he only didn't know that his days were marked . . .
