Give Us a Break!

Cracker Saleheen

all this. Well my point is you do not have to buy what you don't need. I mean not the computer, but the computing power. Think of it, do you really need a Pentium III to type a letter? I've heard of (and seen) people buying a computer only because they want to be in the swim. They do not want to be left out of the IT revolution. What do they do with it? Leave it in the living room, for all the guests to gawp at. So why buy an Athlon when a K-6III will suffice? It's ok for you to buy a powerful machine if you are doing 3D modeling or creating a top-of-the-world multimedia software. But for the average user, a less powerful computer is enough in the perspective of our country. But, our vendors do not want the people to know the truth.

They have created a techno-hype to increase their sales. They don't want to know what you want, what you really need, and they don't care. All they want is your money, the more, the better. Another friend of mine has learnt the truth the hard way. He has bought a computer only a few months ago. Each hardware carries a prestigious logo. But, the performance is disappointing. He could not play NFS II, when he was supposed to play Quake II or Tomb Raider IV or MDK or games like that. Most surprising of all, his machine crashed when he wanted to play Mortal Kombat III! So, it was stripped down and after thorough investigation, we found out that his vendor has given him a graphics card that conflicts with his mainboard's chipset. The manufacturer of the card specifically warned not to use it with that specific chipset, but who cares! The vendor just assembled and sold it. DirectX 7 blandly refused to run the 3D test, and inevitably crashed every time. Even the CD-ROM drive was not an original Creative Infra. They swindled him every way they could.

So my advice to all you wannabe whizzes is, be sensible, buy sensibly, know what you really need and what you can afford. Be informed of the upcoming changes, and when buying a system, check its compatibility with those changes. Learn as much as you can about hardware. And if you find that too hard, ask someone whom you trust, someone who knows about these things. Your armory of knowledge will defend you against the cheats. Let's pay the vendors something else other than our hard-earned money.

Paul McCartney is in his home studio in the U.K. preparing an album for a fourth-quarter release, says Billboard. The album will be released on Capitol in the U.S. and EMI in other markets. The collection of self-penned songs follows last year's "Run Devil Run," a set of rock 'n' roll oldies. "Run Devil Run" peaked at No. 27 on The Billboard 200. Last December, McCartney returned to Liverpool's Cavern Club --the site of many of The Beatles' classic early shows --to perform selections from the album. The artist is also reportedly compiling a video anthology of his post-Beatles band Wings.

Weird Web Weekly

I'm baaack. O'levels over, SATs coming up. Picked up some new indispensable utilities during these exams. First, ICQ. You need instant messaging. And ICQ is probably the best. Get it from <http://www.icq.com/download/step-by-step.html> (full version is 5 megs, but if you already have the MFC42.DLL file you can download the 4.5 meg version). My nick is "alien-angel" (there's only one), my IUN's 58895095.

To co-ordinate your global chats, pick up an internet time clock, like the 17kb one at <http://www.lss.com.au/lss/windows/sit/sit.htm> (it also has links to others). Internet time's a lot like GMT, but simpler to keep track of. The clock displays the same time, no matter where in the world it is. Ideal for choosing a time to chat. Right now, the time is @317. I hear that British copy-cats are shamelessly trying to launch something similar of their own called GTe or something...I support swatch any day.

Next is ClipCache Plus [<http://www.sns-access.com/~netpro/download/ccsetup.exe>] (870kb), which is absolutely the best clipboard capturing and managing utility I've ever had. Automatically captures everything that goes to the clipboard, lets you organise stuff in groups, delete/modify clips, store oft used ones, set pasting shortcut-keys, access clip-menus through keyboard shortcuts in any program...everything else too...the reg code is 97508b86-ecb6a779

Next is Jingle Keyboards [<http://www.fortunecity.com/skyscraper/analogue/923/jinglek.zip>], 400kb. U know how ICQ makes those cute typewrite sounds while you type? This baby lets you assign .WAV sounds to all keys on your keyboard. Very cool. But it occasionally displays annoying "Register please" windows, and I can't find a crack to fix that...tell me if you find one.

That's it for this week...next week...same bat time.

- CMBRLARA - Super Batmen.
- FINISHED - All Classic matches enabled.
- NONOTOUT - Unbreakable wickets.
- TIMEWARP - Fast match.
- MEDICINE - Large cricket ball.
- SLIPPERY - Makes fielders drop catches.
- SETMOUSE - Use LCTRL and ALT to rotate the mouse for free look.
- OLDTIMER - Add World XI Team
- SUNSHINE - Beach around the field on Friendly matches.
