How do we get 440V?

440V occurs in the 3 phase electricity system while single phase 220V is obtained between NEUTRAL and any one of these phases. Due to negligent connection the neutral junction at a street pole may produce sparks and become open (pl. see picture). The phase to phase 440V is then divided between your house and the neighbourhood.

If your load is much less than that of your neighbour then you may end up with 400V (!!) while your neighbour gets 30 or 40 volts. One such occurrence is enough to damage everything. The only reliable protection device against such abnormalities that you would get is the VOLT-GUARD from Grameen Britek which has been innovated by top local technologists having the most experience in dealing with such extreme abnormalities. It will protect even if 450V appears on the 220V line. The technology is patented and the name 'VOLT-GUARD' is also Trade Mark registered. It has gone through stringent BURETTE successfully which few others would dare to go through.

Protect your whole house (having single phase connection) for only Tk.2320 during the International Trade Fair (Grameen Mini Pavilion, No.39, due south of gate, Office Phone: 9126374, Show-room: 9117538). This package includes a main switch unit (4.4KVA at Tk.1490) and a fridge unit (1100VA at Tk.830). Contact us for other load requirements. It is easy to install and uninstall, so get one even if you live in a rented apartment. There are 'Volt-Guard' and 'Stabilizer with Volt-Guard' models to suit your other appliances like air coolers, Computers, water pump, Photocopier, etc. Fix one today. Tomorrow may be too late!!

Hospital waste posing threat to public health

Sajeda Chowdhury tells seminar

Environment Minister Sajeda Chowdhury has said the environment is seriously being affected as hospitals in urban areas have no waste management system, reports UNB.

"It's a serious threat to public health," she said addressing a seminar yesterday and suggested all concerned to spare residential areas while constructing hospitals and clinics.

Dhaka Dental College and Hospital arranged the seminar titled "Essential Oral Care" at BIAM auditorium in the morning. Principal of the college Prof Syed Mozammel Hossain also addressed it while Prof M E Haq presided.

Blaming emission of black smoke from vehicles and unplanned dumping of hospital and industrial wastes for the environmental pollution, the minister said, "the ecological balance is now at stake due to imprudent activities of mankind."

BAU admission: Date extended

The last date for collecting admission form for the first year classes of Bangladesh Agricultural University (BAU) has been extended up to March 8, reports UNB.

Earlier, the deadline was today.

However, the dates for submission of forms and admission test will remain unchanged, said a BAU press release.

Referring to the government's constitutional obligation to ensure people's healthcare, she said the government is implementing a programme to set up 13,500 community clinics across the country to fulfill its obligation.

Some 2,400 beds have been increased in medical college, district and thana hospitals in addition to recruiting 2,000 new physicians and 4,000 nurses," she told the seminar.

"In our country people are not very aware about their own health and it's due mainly to poverty. Consciousness about dental care is more worrying," Sajeda said adding that the dentists have a special role to play in this regard.

The minister urged the dentists and dental students to help reach dental care facilities to commonmen of remote areas by holding of "dental camps" like "eye camps".

Urging the physicians to come forward to ensure better health for the people, she said good health of the people is a major prerequisite to building a prosperous nation. "Doctors can play the leading role in this regard."

Holzman calls on Tofail

US ambassador to Bangladesh John C Holzman called on the Industries Minister Tofail Ahmed at his office yesterday, reports BSS.

They exchanged matters relating to mutual interests in the backdrop of upcoming visit of President Clinton to Bangladesh.

They also exchanged views to explore new avenues to enhance trade and investment link between the two countries.

The Industries Minister urged the US Ambassador to use his good offices for more US investment in Bangladesh.
