Pope at Mount Sinai

The Horizon This Week

feet of Mount Sinai, which is of Peace Process alm'st on a daily profound significance for humanity. He has called upon the three monotheistic faiths - Judaism. Christianity and Islam to unite at Sinai. Humanity must take serious note of this declaration and find a way of acting in concert.

Mount Sinai is of great importance to the three monotheistic faiths. It is at Sinai that God is supposed to have revealed Himself to Prophet Moses and revealed to him the Ten Commandments. These Ten Commandments are the articles of faith of the Jewish religion. It is on the strength of these revealations that Israel has declared Jerusalem the Eternal Capital of the State of Israel.

Politically Jerusalem is the capital of Israel. Yet not a single state of any consequence has recognised Jerusalem as the capital of Israel. The US Congress, where the Israeli lobby has undisputed sway, has on several occasions come close to recognising Jerusalem as the capital of Israel.

It is common knowledge that any politician of any consequence in the US seeking elected office, must pay a visit to Israel. Yet recognition of Jerusalem as the capital of Israel would dangerously queer the pitch for it would threaten any settlement of the entire Middle East dispute.

Jesus Christ, whose religion Christianity is professed throughout the world and whose undisputed emissary the Pope is, was born in Bethlehem, which currently is administered by Palestinian authority. Jerusalem is the first Kibla of Islam and Muslims used to turn in prayer towards Jerusalem before shifting to the holy Kaaba in Makkah al Mukarramah. The newly emerging state of Palestine, whose formal foundation is expected to be laid during this year, has also declared Jerusalem as the capital of Palestine. Six years ago in Oslo, the capital of Norway, when the Peace Agreement was signed between the Palestinians and the Israelis, the Peace Process received the required shot in the arm. Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin shook hands before TV cameras on the is long gone. verandah of the White House,

THE Pope during his recent Clinton in the middle. From official visit to Egypt has that day on. President Clinton made a declaration at the has remained engaged in the

> That Peace Process has moved considerably forward. The Palestinian authority has been established on bits and pieces of the West Bank and Gaza and the temporary headquarters of Palestine in Tunis. has been wound down. Negotiations between the Palestinians and the Israelis are progressing with continuous road-blocks. There is occasional bloodshed and lot of acrimonious debates. Yet the Peace Process is making headway.

> It is not very clear why the Peace Process between Syria and Israel is not making the kind of headway that one would expect. It is in a sense simpler deal than it was between Egypt and Israel at Camp David in 1979. For it involves the withdrawal of Israel from Golan Heights of Syria in exchange for recognition and more important security guarantee for Israel. For Golan Overlooks Israel and Israel wants iron clad guarantees.

> Since her occupation of the West Bank in Palestine and the Golan Heights in Syria, Israel has built settlements and developed agriculture and tourism in Syria. Dismantling of Jewish settlements is a messy affair but Israel in order to achieve peace must necessarily do it. The occupation of South Lebanon by Israel has been very costly for her. The Hizbollah guerillas has carried on murderous war against Israeli occupation and caused much loss of life among the Israelis.

It is, therefore, that Prime Minister Ehud Barak during his election campaign had vowed to pull out from South Lebanon by Autumn of this year. The fate of Lebanon is inextricably tied with that of Syria and there lies the importance of a deal between Syria and Israel.

The official visit of the Pope to Egypt, the most important Arab country, is a signal that the situation is coming to a head in the Middle East. The tocal point is Jerusalem. The three monotheistic faiths are claimants of Jerusalem. More than a territorial solution a spiritual solution must be at-

As the leaders of the Middle East continue to haggle about the final steps of a settlement of the Middle East Peace Process, they cannot let slip a deadline, the end of the year 2000.

Pope John Paul II receives a present at the Mount Sinai St. Catherine's monastery 26 February 2000. The Pope issued an appeal for dialogue among Christians, Jews and Muslims as he stood at the foot of Mount Sinai, holy to all religions.

vealed. This was the beginning of the journey of the three monotheistic faiths through humanity. When I was Ambassador of Bangladesh in Egypt, President Sadat after signing the deal with the Israelis at Camp David, had launched the idea of a temple at the Sinai for three monotheistic faiths. President Sadat was gunned down by assassins and did not live to carry forward his great idea. The Pope has now picked up the thread. It deserves to be explored with all seriousness.

As the leaders of the Middle East continue to haggle about the final steps of a settlement tempted. The age of the Crusades of the Middle East Peace Process, they cannot let slip It is at Mount Sinai that the deadline, the end of the year with a beaming President Bill Ten Commandments were re- 2000. By that date President nity slip?

Bill Clinton will lay down the reins of office. He has been so intimately associated with taking the Peace Process forward, that a final solution in unthinkable without him. The Peace Process was seriously engaged during another Democrat President Jimmy Carter, under whose stewardship the Camp David Peace Agreement was signed between Egypt and Israel. During the more than a decade rule by the Republicans, the Peace Process went into cold storage. It is during the more than seven-year rule by Democrat President Bill Clinton that the Peace Process has come close to a final solution. Will, the actors of the drama in the Middle East let the opportu-

LETTER FROM EUROPE

Is Spain Gradually Coming to Terms with Its Muslim Past?

Chaklader Mahboob-ul Alam writes from Madrid

In the ninth century, most of Spain and Portugal (Al-Andalus) was ruled as an independent Emirate by the Andalusian Umayyads. Since Al-Andalus with its capital in Cordoba was under constant attack from its northern Christian neighbours, the then Emir, Muhammad ben Abd al-Rahman decided to strengthen its northern defences by building several fortified garrison towns around Toledo, which was then the most important city in this area.

current western trend towards Islam, banned Arabic, ordered using diminutives instead of the burning of Arabic books long names, (just to give couple and outlawed all Muslim of examples, it is not James habits. Even bathing was con-Earl Carter, but Jimmy Carter, sidered as a Muslim habit. swer. "Mahboob Alam."

"What? Say it again, please. We are not familiar with such exotic meaning

Naturally I oblige and repeat baths. They forbade not only my name several times before the Christians but also the my interlocutor gets the hang of Moors from using anything but it. Finally he exclaims, " Que raro!" (How strange it sounds!) Trying to be courteous, I ask, quisitorial purification." What is yours?"

Antonio Almunia." want to make friends with as Catholicism) were either masmany people as possible in this sacred or expelled from the soil country. So I continue the con- of Spain and their properties versation by saying, " I am confiscated. To justify these from Bangladesh and work for measures the Muslims and the a multinational corporation. Arab culture were demonised -Where do you come from? Are they were the enemies of God you with a multinational as and country. Thus religious True, the workers will not be tian King Alfonso VI in 1083, Henares (twenty-eight kilome- the people and the Muslims a good one. In a country, where Maria). This church was demoltres from Madrid) and I work in came to be considered irre- there was zero tolerance for any ished in late nineteenth cen-Madrid as a lawyer."

My interlocutor is flabbergasted when I say, " My name should not sound that strange to you because my name, your name (Almunia), the town where you come from (al-Qal'at an Nahar) and the place where you work (Mayerit) have something very important in common: they are all expressed in the same language and that is Arabic.

This is a typical conversation that I have had dozens of times in Spain at all sorts of social engagements. (There are innumerable villages, towns. valleys and rivers which still carry Muslim names. Recent studies have pointed out that ·even now there are close to eight hundred Spanish words, which are of Arabic origin.) Most ordinary Spaniards are however. idea of the Moorish presence in Spain. think of it as something negative. For them it is so re-mote and so abstract that it is almost unreal. In any case, the term itself (los Moros) now has a disparaging connotation. In the ordinary Spanish mind the term raises the spectre of illegal Moroccan and other North African immigrants, who work as temporary agricultural or construction labourers (nativeborn Spaniards would rather live on the dole than carry out these menial tasks) and live in inhuman conditions in squalid shanty towns around Madrid or Barcelona or in plastic tents in Almeria, (where the local people recently went on the rampage to beat them up and destroy their shacks). They readily equate Islam with poverty and misery. It is hard for them even to imagine that the ancestors of these marginalised poor were the founders of the most advanced European civilisation of its time, i.e. the great Hispano-Muslim civilisation. whose presence can still be found everywhere in Spain, if only one bothers to look for it or one is made aware of it. There are, of course, a few scholars and students of Islamic history who take a genuine interest in deconstructing this negative image that has come down to us through the centuries Recently I have read several articles in the press trying to revive an interest in Spain's Muslim past. At this point several questions come to mind Why and how was this image created? Who can be held responsible for this collective their every day life?

The process of acculturation and collective amnesia started that most of the holidays, if not there one could easily control in 1492, immediately after the all, are religious (Catholic) the passes of the nearby mounfall of Granada, the last Muslim holidays. Most public buildings tain ranges. But, in my opinion, kingdom on the Spanish terri- ( schools, colleges, government why Emir Muhammad chose tory. The Church joined forces buildings, hospitals ) have this site was the possibility of with the Crown to eradicate the Catholic icons and insignias having abundant underground last vestiges of Islamic culture. like crucifixes and statues of water supply. He wanted the It was not an easy task because virgin Mary. Until recently the place to have enough water not even among the Christians, only form of marriage that was only to support the military Arabic was used as the language of culture. The sophisticated the Catholic marriage. (Even tial civilian population. and the noble families of Christian Spain had adopted the civil law were not entitled to ing to the famous etymologist many Arab habits in food and social benefits). A substantial Oliver Asin , the Arabs named clothing. The influence of Muslim culture was so pervasive in nanced by the government from because of its abundant water is your thing drastic had to be done to the clergy still depends on the revolutionary water supply sysacculturate the people. So the Following the conquerors by law prohibited it is not William Jefferson Therefore, too much cleanliness provision exists for Islamic, use for close to a thousand Clinton, but Bill Clinton) I an- came to be considered as Jewish or Protestant religious years, i.e. up to 1858. As another unchristian. The Church organisations. "induced Ferdinand and Isabella (the Catholic Kings), at ways been identified with the talks to locate the remains of the conquest of Granada , to close and abolish the Moorish > came the grand element of in-All the Muslims and later even the Cypto-Muslims (who intolerance was allowed to take ing centuries of Muslim domi-

and the Muslims used to live in holy water. Fire, not water, be-peace and harmony. tolerance was followed with religion and that they have a greater or lesser intensity during the next five hundred years tution. I agree that it is a slow or so. Even Franco, who started process but it has started. the Spanish civil war in 1936 by invading continental Spain at the head of a large contingent of Moroccan soldiers followed more or less the same policy. He denied legal status to all other religious denominations inchuding the Jews and the Protestants and prohibited the practice of any other religion unless one did it in the privacy of one's home. No wonder, after Franco's victory in the civil war , he received a telegram from Pope not aware of their Muslim her- Pius XII saying : ".....we rejoice itage. The few who have a vague with your Excellency in the victory, so greatly to be desired, of Catholic Spain." Franco returned the complement by passing a series of laws to bring the law of Spain in to line with the teachings of the Church..... Roman Catholic religious instruction was made compulsory in public as well as private education at every > Franco died in 1975. The 1978 Spanish constitution introduced democracy in Spain and gave religious freedom to its citizens. There is no doubt that at least from a theoretical point of view it was a major step forward. The Muslims, the Jews and the Protestants could legally build or renovate their places of worship without any fear of being dragged away to the dungeons by the police.

But the Catholic church still retained its privileged position. While the governmental authorities (state, regional and local) gave official recognition to many Catholic churches and cathedrals as part of Spain's cultural heritage and made generous grants or gave subsidies for their renovation and maintenance, other religious denominations had to depend on private donations from their followers for such activities.

that no religion will be given the status of a state religion. This is true that after so many centuries of religious persecution, today one can publicly amnesia? (The Romans and the state that one is a Muslim or a now known as Madrid. Visigoths came to Spain before Jew or a Protestant and openly Muhammad I chose this site to on the bank the river Tagus has the Arabs and the Moors. The pray in a mosque or a synagogue build the castle -alcazaba - for modern Spaniards still proudly or a Protestant church. But the various reasons. [It is interesttrace their ancestry back to second part of the article where ing to mention here that althem. Spanish history books it says that no religion will be though the original Muslim are full of Roman and Visig- given the status of a state castle was seriously damaged othic contribution to their religion is more theoretical in an earthquake in 1466, even civilisation. They often refer to than real. Catholicism is today the vast royal palace octhe Muslim period, if at all they synonymous with Spanish na- cupies the same site.) Its stratedo so - close to eight hundred tional identity. (This does not gic position - a promontory years- as an afterthought, a however, surprise me. Over 98 overlooking the Manzanares mere parenthesis in their his- per cent of the Spaniards are river- was such that from there tory.) When will they accept the Catholics.) All official cere- one could control the trade fact that without knowing it. monies (does not matter routes to Segovia, Toledo and in many different ways, they whether they are state, regional Zaragoza. Its altitude- 650 mestill carry Muslim legacy in or local) start with Catholic rit- tres above the sea level - al-

> recognised under the law was contingents but also a substanpeople who got married under part of church budget is fi- the town as madinat Mayerit government for its subsistence. tem - which they had learnt There is a provision in all tax from the Persians - by building returns for earmarking a fixed underground canals which inpercentage of tax-payable as terconnected the natural wells. donation to the Church trea- I think, it is not inappropriate sury or to other charitable or- to mention here that the system ganisations. At present no such was so efficient that it was in stations and also indirectly exerts influence over other forms of media.

pessimistic. Yet one can sense a protective walls surrounding certain change in the Spanish the town. The regional govern-I am an immigrant and I had been forcibly converted to attitude towards Islam. Recently the labour unions and cavated part of this wall and reemployers' associations in vamped it. It has been declared southern Spain have reached as a national monument, which an agreement to give leave of will no doubt help its mainteabsence for two days in a year to nance in future. the Muslim workers for celebration of religious festivities. quest of Madrid by the Chrispaid for these two days. Even the mosque was converted into "I am from Alcala de roots in the collective psyche of then, I think it is a start - and deemably as "the other". No one other religion than the official seemed to remember that dur- one, this small concession indicates a change of heart in the nation, the Jews, the Christians Spanish mind. This is a recognition of the fact that after so many centuries, the Muslims This policy of religious in- can again openly practice their Muhammad. But the way things right to do so under the consti-

> According to some estimates. today there are over four hundred thousand Muslims in Spain. Although most of them live in Ceuta and Melilla Spain's North African possessions), there are many who are native-born Spaniards. The number is increasing every year because of conversions in Southern Spain. Some say that these are the descendants of old Muslims, who were forcibly converted to Catholicism and somehow managed to survive in spite of successive massacres and mass deportations. From my point of view, what pleases me most is not the fact that the number of conversions is on the increase but the principle behind it, that one has the freedom to choose one's faith. As a late recognition to the fact that Madrid (Mayerit) was founded in the ninth century by Emir Muhammad I (852-886) now there is a public park in Madrid called el l'arque de Emir Mohamed. In the ninth century, most of Spain and Portugal (Al-Andalus) was ruled as an independent Emirate by the Andalusian Umayyads. Since Al-Andalus with its capital in Cordoba was under constant attack from its northern Christian neighbours, the then Emir, Muhammad ben Abd al-Rahman decided to strengthen its northern defences by building several fortified garrison towns around Toledo, which was then the most important city in this area.

Although ostensibly they were built to defend the northern frontier against attack from Christian enemies, the reality of the situation was far more complex. The Muslim nobles of Toledo, although paid lip service to the idea of allegiance to the authority of the Emir in Article 16 of the Spanish Cordoba, rebelled against him constitution guarantees ideo- at every opportunity. So the logical and religious freedom to idea behind building these new all Spanish citizens and for- enclaves was not only to be well eigners living in Spain. In the prepared against any possible same article it is also stated invasion from the north but also to keep an eye on the rebellious Muslim nobles of Toledo.

No one is absolutely sure whether there was a Visigo hic settlement on the site which is lowed its occupants to dominate A look at the calendar shows all the surrounding areas. From sign of reconciliation with the The Church has almost al- past, recently there have been most conservative and reac- this water supply system, which tionary forces of the country. It in Spanish is known as los still owns schools, colleges, viajes de agua and preserve universities, newspapers, radio them as vestiges of Madrid's Muslim past.

As a matter of fact, accordevery walk of life that some- public funds. In other words, supply. The Arabs introduced a hopeful sign for the future.

Emir Muhammad, not only built a castle on this site, but -All this may sound rather also built a large mosque and ment of Madrid has recently ex-

Immediately after the cona church (Iglesia de Santa tury. Today, a visitor can find a plaque here on this site saying that once there was a famous church here but no mention is made that the church itself was the famous mosque of Emir are moving, I am sure that sooner or later someone in the government will not find it demeaning to acknowledge that fact on the plaque.

Something similar has happened in the city of Toledo

(Tulaytulah in Arabic), which was the most important town in this part of Spain. Actually the reader will remember that one of the reasons why Madrid was founded was to defend Toledo from attacks by the Christians from the North. After so many centuries, Toledo, with its Arab-built inner and outer defensive walls, massive gateways and narrow winding streets still looks like a North African town. In its heyday, there were dozens of mosques ( some of them were built on sites occupied previously by Visigothic places of worship) and luxurious mansions in Toledo. The mosques (including a small one called Bab-al Mardom, which is an exquisite example of Moorish architecture) were handed over to the Catholic Church. Many of them were converted in to churches. Some were completely demolished. Access to Bab- al- Mardum (which was built in the year 999 i.e. exactly one thousand years ago) is limited but with a bit of patience one can visit it. But here again one can sense a mood of change in the air. The regional government and the Archbishop of Toledo are investing money for its restoration admittedly to attract tourism from Muslim coun-

Even then, I think it is a major change in the attitude of the ecclesiastical authorities. In a place where for many centuries. the authorities publicly tried to hide or deny Muslim presence, it is a major step forward to acknowledge that fact. Now that the authorities are in a generous mood, I am minded to ask them to place plaques at the famous churches of San Lorenzo and San Sebastian stating that they were originally Muslim places of worship. I should also mention here that one can also visit mosque, (Tornerias), which has not been restored as a mosque but as a Centre for Arts and Crafts One of King Al Mamun's palaces, now known as the Galiana Palace, which is located outside the city walls also been opened to the public.

It is also heartening to note that recently there have been several conferences of thinkers and intellectuals to trace Muslim heritage and to promote mutual tolerance among the Catholics and the Christians. The Muslim immigrant community in Madrid has petitioned the regional government to provide teachers (education is a regional subject) to teach the basic principles of Islam to their children. Although no positive reply has yet been given, the petition has not been rejected either. Only ten or fifteen years ago it would even be inconceivable to make a request of this nature. So things are certainly changing. These are only a few examples of how after so many centuries of ignorance, prejudice and intolerance Spain is gradually coming to terms with its Muslim past. If I make further research, I am sure that I will be able to come up with more examples. This is a slow process. but what is important that it has started. This, indeed, is a

US Tries to Avert Clash with Europe over IMF Chief

Vasantha Arora writes from Washington

of the new International the number two official at the Monetary Fund (IMF) chief by fund, was nominated by an unrestating its willingness to back usual coalition of African and one of the latter's Arab countries and has demonrepresentatives.

rence Summers said the US did not oppose a European at the head of the IMF but urged Europe to come up with the right person for the top-flight

A diplomatic row had erupted on Monday after the US vetoed the European Union's candidate for the job. German Deputy Finance Minister Caio Koch-Weser. All 15 European Union finance ministers rallied behind Koch-Weser's candidacy and the US move was widely perceived as a calculated snub to Germany.

charges that Washington had pushed developing countries to didate of maximum stature who nominate Stanley Fischer. a would be able to command naturalised American who is broad support around the currently the IMF's acting world". Fischer faces competimanaging director. Fischer tion from former Japanese fi-

HE US has sought to avert took over last week after the re- nance ministry official Eistike a possible showdown with tirement of Michel Camdessus Europe over the selection as managing director. Fischer. strated the skill to head the Treasury Secretary Law- fund, the New York Times says quoting his backers. Talking to newsmen after testifying before the US Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Summers said the US had not sought to influence the position of other countries. "Others have made their own judgements based on their own information and on their own impressions of the needs of the organisa-

US President Bill Clinton had telephoned German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder over the weekend to tell him that Summers denied German Koch-Weser did not meet the US requirement for a "strong can-Sakakibara, also in the run in addition to Koch-Weser.

Clinton's rejection of Koch-Weser makes the succession at the IMF the biggest battle for leadership of a major international institution since the United States fought to oust United Nations Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali and replace him with Kofi Annan in 1996, says the daily.

IMF board members may begin informal voting later this week, taking a straw poll to determine whether any of the three candidates have strong support. It is still possible that one of the candidates could gather enough support to force a formal vote. Supporters of both Fischer and Koch-Weser are working to line up support from developing countries and generate momentum, the daily

Meanwhile, Summers, in his Senate testimony, said the US' plans to reform the IMF were new global financial system the begins October 1. private sector was the overwhelming source for capital. "This means the IMF will have to concentrate on helping countries make certain key reforms that will facilitate the flow of private capital," he added. The key IMF reforms, he suggested, included helping speed up the flow of needed economic information from governments to markets, paying closer attention to financial vulnerabilities and focussing financing on emergency situa-

The IMF reforms, called for as a condition for the US Congress to approve IMF refunding in 1998, are moving ahead, Summers said.

Summers urged Congress to approve additional funds for the World Bank/IMF-administered Heavily Indebted Poorer Countries (HIPC) debt relief initiative. He called for the approval of $210 million in supplemental funding for the current fiscal year and $375 milbased on the reality that in the lion for fiscal year 2001, which

India Abroad News Service

LOOKS LIKE WE'RE

TAKING TURNS

by Jim Davis

Garfield ®

