Teachers want edn system based on spirit of Liberation War

Leaders of Bangladesh Shikshak Samity, an association of the non-government teachers yesterday called for removing disparity in education between the government and the non-government institutions and introduction of an education system based on the spirit of the Liberation War, reports BSS.

"The disparity in education increased mainly due to the suppression of the Dr Quadrat-e-Khuda Education Commission report that suggested introduction of people-oriented scientific and vocational education in the light of Liberation War," they said while exchanging views with the journalists and intellectuals here.

Chaired by President of Bangladesh Shikshak Samity Principal Mohammad Kamruzzaman, the function was also addressed by Vice-President of the samity Hena Das and General Secretary Chowdhury Khurshid Alam.

Khurshid Alam said erosion moral values started in the education sector after the political change in 1975 and the military rulers shelved the Quadrat-e-Khuda commission report.

The military governments of General Zia and General Ershad during their regimes rehabilitated the fundamentalist communal forces and patronised the rich, the looting class, who in fact influenced the education system, he said.

Alam said then-governments in collaboration with the fundamentalist forces increased the number of madrasas substantially and the looting class helped mushroom kindergartens schools.
