COLOMBO, Sept 4: Heavy fighting gripped Sri Lanka, killing at least 317 people as government forces mounted a fresh offensive to secure the northern town of Jaffna ahead of parliamentary polls, officials said today, reports AFP.

Thousands of army troops backed by aircraft cover advanced into territory held by the rebel Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) at Sarasalai, Maduvil and Mundayil in the peninsula on Sunday, the defence ministry said.

Ministry spokesman Sanath Karunaratne said intercepted radio transmissions of rebel communications indicated that at least 216 Tiger rebels were killed in the intense battles while more than 3000 were wounded.

The defence ministry said its initial reports suggested 71 soldiers were killed and another 479 were wounded, most of them with minor injuries. However, defence sources said 101 troops were killed.

The Tamil Tigers, in a statement issued by its London office, said they put up a stiff resistance to the military offensive and claimed to have killed more than 100 government troops.

"Facing superior firepower from land and from air, the LTTE combat formations are putting up fierce resistance inflicting heavy casualties on the government troops," the LTTE statement said.

It did not give any numbers of rebel casualties, but said "several thousands of civilians" had fled to avoid being hit by government artillery.

Defence ministry spokesman Karunaratne said the Tigers were moving members from other areas of the north to replace their casualties after both sides fired huge amounts of artillery and mortar bombs. The latest fighting came as political parties raced to hand in nominations for October 10 parliamentary elections by Monday's deadline.

More than a dozen political parties are contesting the elections in embattled Jaffna, which will return nine members to the 225-member legislative assembly.

Defence sources here said the latest military offensive, which ended a lull in fighting since May, appeared to be aimed at pushing back rebel long-range guns that could have threatened the town of Jaffna in the run-up to the polls.

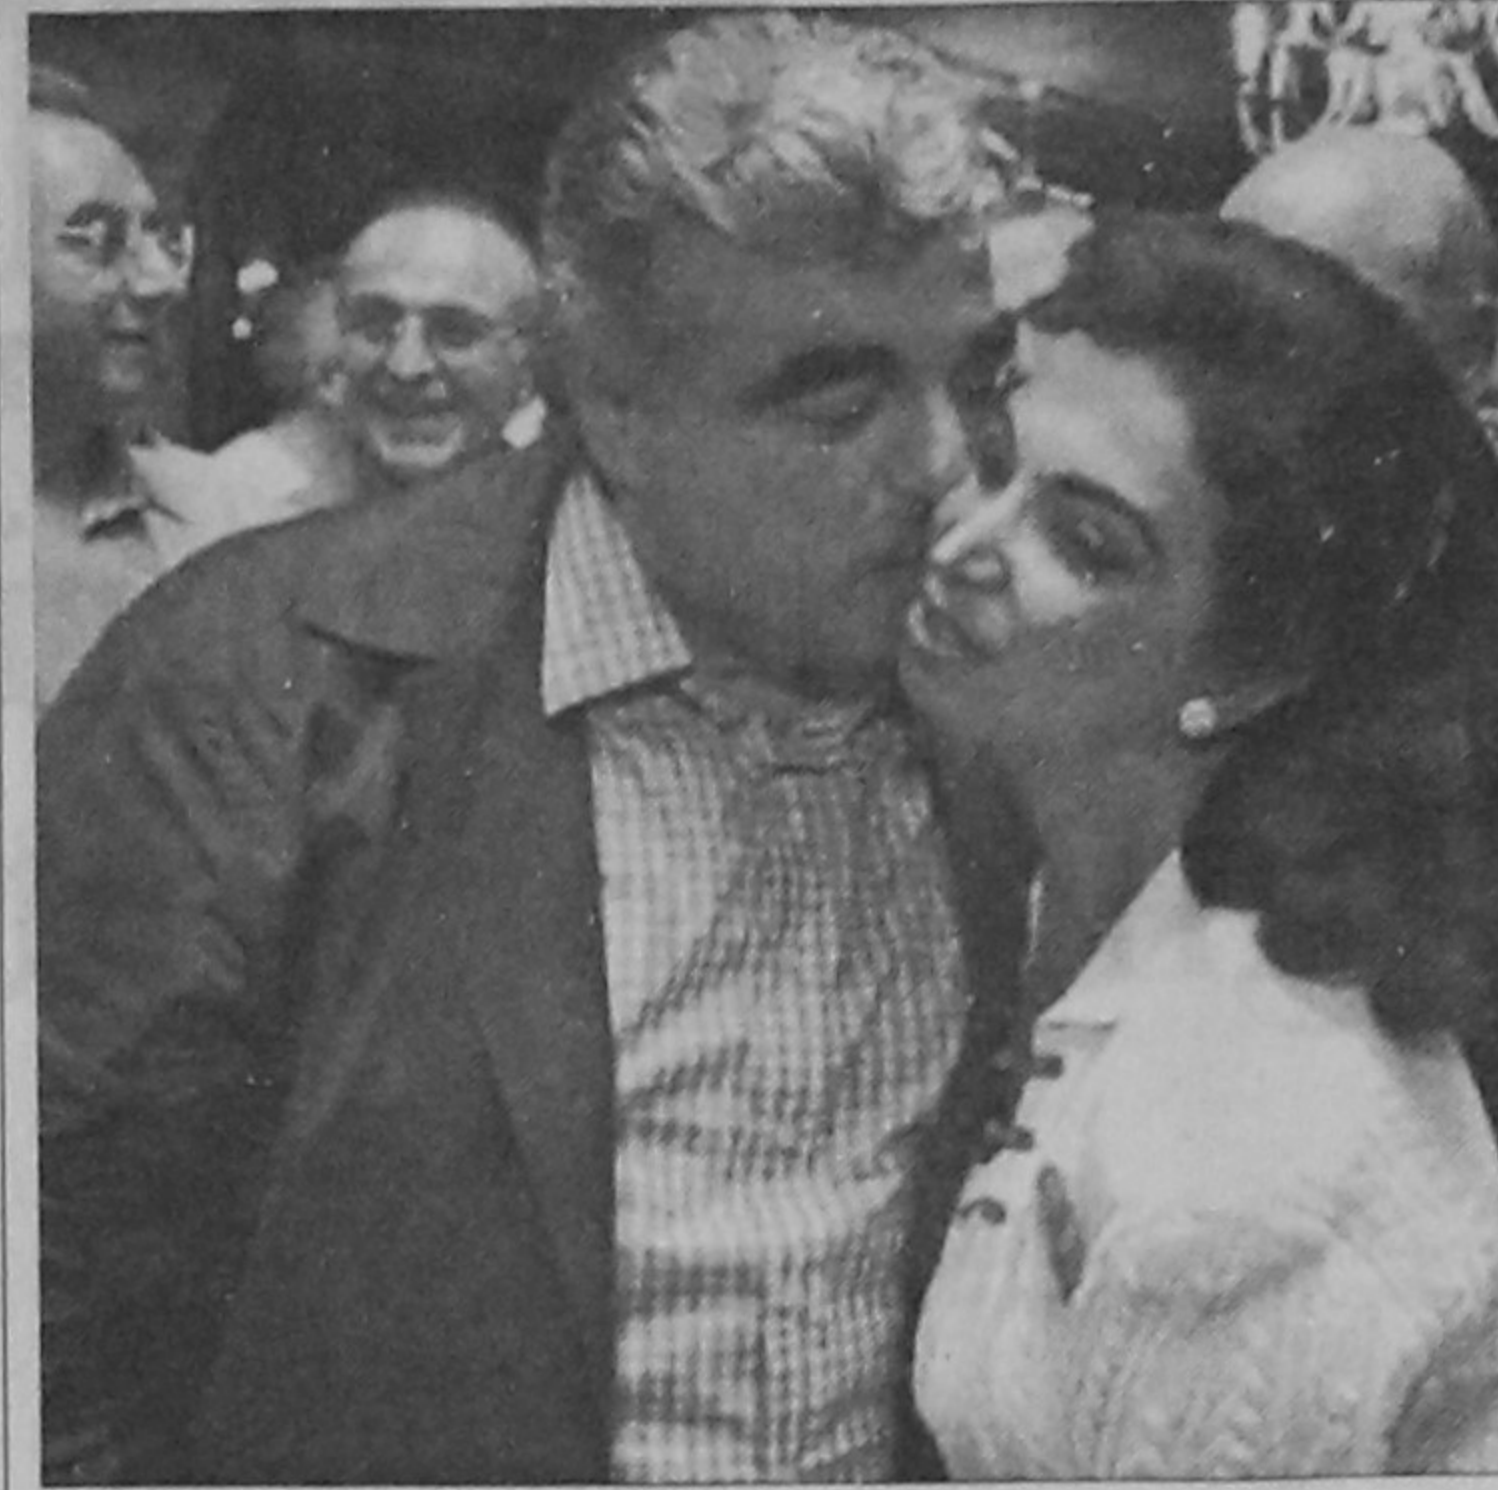

Security forces claimed to have halted a "rolling offensive" by the Tamil Tigers in May after the rebels overran the key Elephant Pass military garrison at the entrance to the peninsula in April.

However, the rebels still hold several areas of the peninsula, and official sources said there had been exchanges of long-range artillery and mortar bomb attacks in recent weeks.

The military has also boosted its firepower with new MIG-27 combat aircraft and field guns ahead of an anticipated showdown with Tamil Tiger rebels ahead of the polls.

The military has begun using the ground attack aircraft while the army deployed multi-barrel rocket launchers to neutralise rebel long-range guns which threatened the only military airfield in the region, officials said.

Security forces wrested Jaffna from rebel control in December 1995 after dismantling a de facto separate state there run by the guerrillas for nearly five years.

Former Lebanese prime minister Rafic Hariri kisses his wife Nazek at his home in Beirut yesterday. Hariri's office announced a landslide victory of his electoral list in Beirut in the second and final stage of parliamentary elections which could see Hariri return to office.

Hariri, Hezbollah sweep Lebanese polls

BEIRUT, Sept 4: Former Lebanese prime minister Rafic Hariri and his supporters took all 19 seats in the capital Beirut in voting Sunday, while the Syrian-backed alliance of the Hezbollah and Amal militias swept the south, press reports said today, reports AFP.

Hezbollah and Amal also took Baalbak and pro-Syrian candidates won in the eastern Bekaa valley, where the Syrian military presence is strong, the reports added, quoting unofficial results.

Hariri's success makes him favourite to resume the office which he quit in 1998 amid differences with newly-elected President Emile Lahoud, who has accused his administration of corruption.

Lahoud seemed to accept the situation late Sunday, when he said that his consultations with Parliament on the choice of the next prime minister would take place in line with the constitution.

With the defeat of Salim Hoss plus three of his ministers, it was the first time in modern Lebanese history that a serving prime minister was defeated at the polls.

In the south the alliance of Amal and Hezbollah, the Shiite militia groups which led the fight against the Israeli occupation, took all 23 seats, the press reported.

The alliance also won all nine seats in the Baalbek constituency, while candidates approved by Syria were heading for victory with possibly one exception, at Zahle, where, where a different pro-Syrian candidate was tipped to win.

Official results of Sunday's polling, the second of two rounds, were expected to be announced later Monday.

Voting on August 27 covered the Metn region near Beirut, where Hariri allies also did well, and the north of the country.

Hariri won in the face of a vicious campaign by the state-run media, accusing him in the six years while he was prime minister of plunging the country into a bottomless economic crisis and running up debts that will total 25 billion dollars at the end of 2000.

3 Pak nationals arrested with explosives in Nepal

KATHMANDU, Sept 4: Police in Nepal have arrested three Pakistani nationals carrying 35 kilos (77 pounds) of a highly explosive material known as RDX which was destined for India, police said Monday, report AFP.

The three were heading for India via Nepal but were detained Saturday night, the source said. "After a tip-off, the Kathmandu District Police office arrested the three Pakistanis also with the explosives," it said.

Police got information that the three had brought the RDX into Nepal and after an extensive search they were arrested at a hotel in Kathmandu along with the RDX.

"This is the biggest amount of RDX explosives confiscated in Nepal so far by police," the police source further said.

Police discovered the explosives were intended for terrorist attacks in India. The last haul of RDX in Nepal, two years ago, totalled 19 kilos, also found at a hotel in Kathmandu.

Putin rejects Japanese sovereignty over Kurils

TOKYO, Sept 4: Russian President Vladimir Putin today rejected a Japanese call for sovereignty over four disputed islands, officials said, dashing hopes of a peace treaty this year, reports AFP.

Japanese Prime Minister Yoshiro Mori had proposed that Japan's borders be expanded to include the islands, known as the southern Kurils in Russia and Northern Territories in Japan, they said.

The Japanese idea is brave and well-considered but it does not correspond exactly with the Russian idea," Putin told Mori, according to a Japanese government official present at talks between the two leaders.

The islands were occupied by Soviet troops in the dying days of World War II, blocking the path to a peace treaty ever since.

The two sides agreed at a summit three years ago to forge a peace accord by the end of 2000 but progress has since been glacial because of the festering dispute.

Japanese rightist groups meanwhile drove through Tokyo's streets demanding the return of the islands. In one convoy of about a dozen trucks, a loud-speaker blared repeatedly "Give them back."

Police set up roadblocks outside major government buildings.

"It is important to find a peace treaty by resolving the issue of the four islands," Mori told the Russian leader, who arrived here Sunday for a three-day visit.

Kunashiri (Kunashir in Russian), Etorofu (Iturup in Russian) Shikotan and the Habomai group of islets -- are home to about 16,000 people, according to Russian statistics.

Based on the idea of the islands being incorporated within Japanese territory, "we would like to see a peace treaty that is very acceptable to both sides," Mori said.

"I would like to insist on the idea that we will do our best to make it by the end of 2000."

Japan wants a Hong-Kong style handover under which Russia would cede sovereignty but keep administrative control of the islands during a phased return.

But the Russian president would not move.

Smokers more likely to get back pains

BERLIN, Sept 4: People who smoke are more likely to suffer from back pains than those who do not light up, according to several international studies presented by Swedish doctor Wolfgang Rauschnig at the recent World Spinal Column Congress in Berlin, reports DPA.

The degree of risk, according to Rauschnig of Uppsala University Orthopaedic Clinic, is between 20 and 80 per cent and varies between men and women and between older and younger smokers.

"Smoking has a negative effect on the transfer of nutrients to the spinal column," said Rauschnig. "The transfer is cut by half after only three hours of smoking," although tests show it recovers as soon as nicotine consumption ceases.

"Operation times are longer for smokers, they lose more blood and they need longer to recover from anaesthetics," said the surgeon. This applied to all operations and not just those carried out on the spinal column. "People who give up smoking a few months before an operation show between results," said Rauschnig.

Clinton to make last attempt for ME peace

WASHINGTON, Sept 4: US President Bill Clinton will launch a last-ditch bid to rescue the Middle East peace process in separate talks with Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat on Wednesday, reports AFP.

The talks, to be held on the fringes of the UN Millennium Summit at the United Nations in New York, are likely to be tinged with pessimism, however. They seek to bring an end to the half-century of conflict between Israel and the Palestinians, and following on from the latest three-way talks at Camp David which ended in failure at the end of July.

For the US president, who leaves office at the end of January, a successful outcome to his Wednesday discussion with the two leaders is far from assured, despite a succession of trips by his advisors to the Middle East to prepare the ground for him as a decisive September 13 deadline looms.

Arafat has threatened to declare an independent Palestinian state after the deadline, although US and European pressure has led to indications Palestinian leaders may hold off the move for another few months.

Clinton prepared for the meeting with an impromptu stopover in Cairo last Tuesday on his return from a tour of Nigeria and Tanzania, for discussions with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

Clinton's concern is to find a compromise angle in the key stumbling block to an accord: the status of East Jerusalem over which both Israel and the Palestinians claim sovereignty.

Four rebels shot dead in Aceh

BANDA ACEH, Indonesia, Sept 4: Security forces shot dead four suspected separatist rebels in the latest violence to hit Indonesia's troubled province of Aceh, residents and police said Monday, reports AFP.

The first three victims, believed to be members of the Free Aceh (GAM) chapter, were killed in a gunfight in Pidie district on Sunday, the Mutiara sub-district police chief, Superintendent Endang Bagus said.

The skirmish took place after a failed ambush attempt against a convoy of police trucks, passing through Pidie's Mutiara sub-district, Bagus said.

"They were the ones who confronted troops while they were in the middle of a routine patrol in the (Mutiara) area," said Bagus, adding that police had seized two automatic rifles, a handgun and more than 300 bullets from the victims.

Myanmar junta under fire for crackdown on Suu Kyi's party

YANGON, Sept 4: International pressure mounted on Myanmar's military government Monday as it kept up its crackdown on the leaders of Aung San Suu Kyi's opposition National League for Democracy (NLD), reports AFP.

World leaders and exiled opposition members today slammed the Yangon junta for detaining Aung San Suu Kyi and her chief lieutenants, after her nine-day standoff with the authorities ended on Saturday.

Armed guards were Monday encamped outside the NLD headquarters and NLD leaders' homes, preventing them from leaving and barring any visitors from visiting the detained NLD members.

Authorities continued a search of the NLD's offices for information about recent meetings between the opposition and a group of foreigners who visited Myanmar and smuggled out a video of Aung San Suu Kyi, a spokesman for yangon said.

There was no sign of Aung San Suu Kyi, Tin Oo or any other leading executives.

"Reports concerning further infringement of the freedom of movement and the freedom of political expression are particularly disturbing" in Myanmar, Fred Eckhard, the spokesman for United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan, said in a statement.

The secretary general emphasised the need to respect the human rights of Aung San Suu Kyi and other NLD leaders,

Coolant water leak at Japanese N-plant

TOKYO, Sept 4: Japan's fifth-biggest power utility, Tohoku Electric Power Co Inc, said on Monday about one litre (0.22 gallon) of coolant water had leaked from a pipe at one of its nuclear plants in the north of the country, report Reuters.

The pipe connected one of six machines that filter coolant water to remove impurities at the plant in the Miyagi district, 325 km from Tokyo, a company spokesman said.

No radiation had escaped into the environment outside the 524-megawatt plant in Saturday's incident, he added.

The equipment was stopped immediately and remains closed while the cause is investigated, he said.

the statement added.

The NLD's headquarters were raided in the early hours of Saturday, just before the junta announced that Aung San Suu Kyi had been "escorted" home from the roadside standoff.

Aung San Suu Kyi and a dozen NLD supporters had been camped out in their cars on the outskirts of Yangon for nine days after being prevented from travelling to a party meeting outside the capital.

On Sunday, the junta ordered Aung San Suu Kyi and other NLD leaders to remain at home, effectively placing them under house arrest, although the Yangon regime spokesman told AFP no one had been officially arrested.

In Thailand, Aung Thu Nyein, secretary general of the All Burma Students Democratic Front, a group of exiled opposition members, said: "We condemn the action against Aung San Suu Kyi. The junta's action has made the situation in Burma much worse."

"The recent blockade, illegally restraining and obstructing Aung San Suu Kyi and members of her NLD, is indisputable evidence of the junta's unlawful strategy to deny a legal political party," said opposition group Burma Lawyers Council in a statement.
