Cullinan gets the chop

JOHANNESBURG, Sept 9 (Internet report): The omission of Daryl Cullinan and the inclusion of Shafiek Abrahams were the chief surprises when convenor of selectors Rushdie Magiet announced the Protea team at the United Cricket Board offices on Friday.

According to Magiet, Cullinan was axed from the team for the ICC Knockout tournament in Kenya next month because of a need to introduce new blood as well as to increase the scoring tempo.

Place has been made for Boeta Dippenaar and Neil McKenzie - players Magiet said would be instrumental in SA's bid to win the 2003 World Cup. The decision to omit Cullinan may well spell the end of his international one-day career despite Magiet saying that he still had a role to play for the country in the limited overs format.

Cullinan has only recently returned from a self-imposed one-day exile but after poor performances in Australia and Singapore has been deemed superfluous to national requirements. The other significant inclusion is that of wicketkeeper and vice-captain Mark Boucher, who makes a return to the fold after slicing tendons on his index finger while cutting dried fruit in Australia.

Shaun Pollock retains the captaincy after a good start to his tenure while Allan Donald makes a welcome return after a contractual wrangle with English county side Warwickshire robbed South Africa of his services.

Openers Gary Kirsten and Andrew Hall retain their places and according to Magiet will be difficult to dislodge after some impressive performances.

Magiet emphasised the importance of the tournament in Kenya saying that at this stage it was a bigger priority than the World Cup.

Busy Test dates beckon babes

Pakistan will tour Bangladesh at the beginning of next year if India refuse to visit Pakistan in December.

This was agreed in principle between the president of Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB) General Taqir Zia and the general secretary of Bangladesh Cricket Board (BCB) Syed Ashraf Hq during the Asian Cricket Foundation (ACF) meeting in Dubai on September 6-7.

Bangladesh will play their first home and away Test series against Pakistan if India cancel their proposed tour of Pakistan. We agreed that Pakistan will tour Bangladesh in the first week of January," Ashraf told reporters on his return from Dubai yesterday.

The tenth Test-playing country makes its debut against India on November 10 at the Bangabandhu National Stadium.

"We hope that India will go to Pakistan because it would be in the interest of cricket," said the BCB general secretary who attended the meeting on behalf of Board president Saber Hossain Chowdhury.

"Pakistan will play two Tests and three one-day internationals during their visit to Bangladesh. While Bangladesh will travel to Pakistan shortly afterwards to play in an identical away series."

The prospect of Bangladesh entertaining Pakistan at home opened up following the hard-line stance of the Indian government that has even called for severing of all cricketing links with Pakistan.

India is scheduled to tour Pakistan from December to February to play three Tests and five one-day internationals. It would have been their first tour to Pakistan since 1989.

As the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) has so far failed to get the green signal from the government, it prompted the PCB chief to invite Bangladesh as a makeshift opponents.

"India must set us a deadline so that we can make alternative arrangements. We will either play a series against Bangladesh or a World XI in case India refuse to come," Zia told AFP before leaving for Dubai on September 5.

His India counterpart AC Muttiah, who also attended the ACF meeting, on the other hand was quoted as saying, "A final decision (on the matter) would be subject to the views of our country."

The fate of the India-Pakistan series hinges on the September 29 board meeting of the BCCI.

At the ACF's two-day meeting, some major decisions were taken.

Chaired by former ICC president Jagmohan Dalmiya, the meeting agreed to hold the second Asian Test Championship at the end of 2001.

But ACF has proposed shifting of the eighth Asia Cup to be hosted by Pakistan, from 2001 to 2002. Unlike previous editions, two more teams, the winners and runners-up of the ACC Trophy, will compete in the traditional four-nation event.

Also according to Ashraf, the umbrella organisation of the Asian Cricket Council will be based in Sharjah.

Besides, the ACC will get fifty per cent of the profit, which is expected around 6.5 million dollars, from the second ICC Knockout tournament.

The ACF intends to observe the 'Cricket Week' annually in case the ICC is unable to hold it.

The meeting was also attended by the Board of Control for Cricket in Sri Lanka (BCCSL) president Tilanga Sumathipala.

Munna bails MSC out

Sports Reporter

An 86th minute strike from mid-fielder Motiur Munna let holders Mohammedan Sporting Club off the hook against Rahmatganj Muslim Friends Society in the lone National Bank Premier Football League match at the Bangabandhu National Stadium yesterday.

Munna's side volley from a Rezaul right-side cross four minutes from the final whistle gave Mohammedan a hard-fought 1-0 win against the spirited old town outfit.

It was Mohammedan's third successive win that took them atop the table with maximum nine points.

But it was equally a disappointing day for the popular Motiur outfit because of their off the field animosity among some of their star players came into play in yesterday's match.

To add to their misery, the supporters of the black and whites also played a nasty part in the match - pelting stones in protest against a ruling forcing the game to be suspended for about five minutes in first half.

Rahmatganj, who gave a testing time to their more illustrious opponents during the Federation Cup, played neck and neck and could have turned the encounter around had their strike duo of Tipu and Moni been accurate in their efforts.

Although Mohammedan lacked firepower in the middle mainly because of Motiur being totally off coloured, they still created some distinctive chances in both halves.

Star striker Alfaz Ahmed came up with a spectacular side volley in the 30th minute, but only to be saved by Deen Mohammed on goal-line.

Eight minutes later, Alfaz had only to beat Moni, but headed the ball over the bar.

Rahmatganj got their best chance in match shortly after the lemon break, but Moni hopelessly watched his long range shot cannon off the post with substitute Mohammedan goalie Hakim beaten fair and square.

Mohammedan were also denied by the metal-work when an Alfaz pile-driver in the 54th minute bounced off it.

Mohammedan pressed hard as the game progressed but were denied by the stubborn Farashganj defence before Motiur came to the rescue.

It was Rahmatganj's third defeat from as many matches. Yellow cards: Selim (Mohammedan), Zaman, Shamim and Tipu (Rahmatganj).

A day on the Fast Track

Lenin Gani

On the fourth day of the International Cricket Council's 'Fast Track Programme' former Test stars Sarfraz Nawaz of Pakistan and Roshan Mahanama of Sri Lanka were imparting training to youngsters at the Dhanmondi playground on Friday.

Sarfraz, a fiery character in his hey days, seemed to have lost none of the passion for the game while showing up and coming bowlers the tricks of the trade.

The 51-year-old ex-Pakistan and Northamptonshire speed demon spoke to the Daily Star Sport during the break interval.

"When I began the programme on Tuesday I noticed most of the bowlers had several problems. Basically, they didn't know either how to grip the ball or deliver it. Also their run-up was not satisfactory. I had to remodel the run-up of eight to ten boys since some were too long or too short.

Thus after modifying each person's delivery stride according to individual heights and strengths they are now bowling better.

"On Thursday, one of the bowlers Babu (Mushfiq) was struggling with his run-up. There was no momentum because he kept his arms low and the upper part of the body slanting in the other direction. But after explaining to him how to co-ordinate his whole body he was running a lot quicker and don't see why he can't regain his place in the national team.

"Another aspect I worked on was the jump if you jump too high often it tends to stop momentum in the air. On the other hand, a low jump means an inability to create momentum and as a result the last stride cannot be developed."

He also laid emphasis on raising their fitness levels. "Essentially what they have to do is build leg muscles by running. Perhaps doing ten laps around the Bangabandhu Stadium every morning is a start."

The firebrand cricketer suggested that the BCB should send some youngsters over to Pakistan to attend special bowling clinics held in the winter.

While Sarfraz was supervising in the field Mahanama was in the nets showing his pupils how to cut and pull inside the gymnasium nearby.

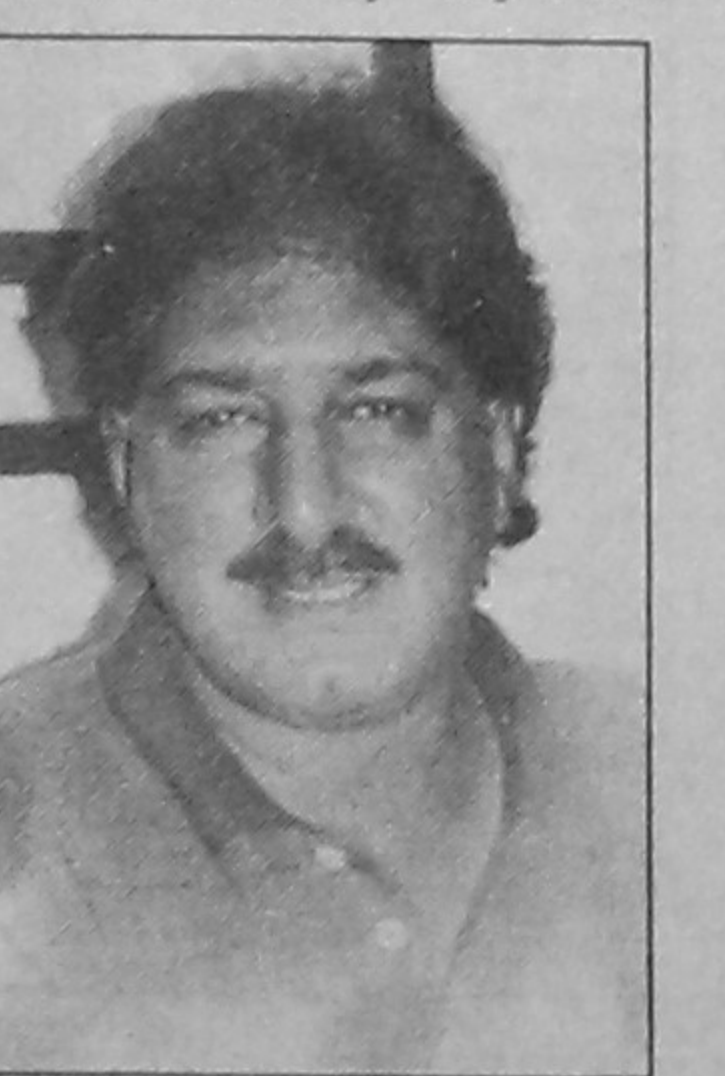

Commenting on the state of the batsmen Mahanama, 34, who will also be teaching the finer points of fielding, said he thought there was no lack of talent but still they must work hard to improve.

"I've seen an improvement in some of the players but as most of them are new here I feel they are not practising, as they should."

"It's not possible to teach everything in such a short period of time - each course lasts five days. So it's up to individual players to use the techniques while training at home."

Expressing his disappointment at the duration of the camp Mahanama thought the instructors were being rushed. Within the allotted time frame efforts have been made to demonstrate necessary drills for

Kenya to meet Zimbabwe in final

NAIROBI, Sept 9: Steve Tikolo scored a chanceless 86 to lead Kenya to an emphatic eight-wicket victory over South Africa in the semifinals of the Africa Cup one-day cricket championship here Friday, reports AFP.

Tikolo, one of four professionals drafted in to lead the Kenyan youth development side, staged a solo effort against the South Africans who only managed 139 after winning the toss and opting to bat first.

Off-spinner Mohammed Sheikh took three wickets in the tight Kenyan bowling and Tikolo added another two as the defending champions strolled into Sunday's final to meet Zimbabwe.

Zimbabwe ended Uganda's magnificent run in the week-long championship when they beat the East Africans by 41 runs in the second semifinal at Nairobi's Jaffrey's Club.

Zimbabwe's decision to bat first paid dividends when they set a huge target of 248 for seven in 50 overs. In reply Uganda staged a fightback, but their challenge ended when they were bowled out for 207 in 47 overs.

Bad news for England stars

LONDON, Sept 9 (Internet report): Two England players could be named in an interim report by Delhi police into match-fixing and corruption in cricket due to be made public at the end of this month.

The probe by the Central Bureau of Investigation follows the corruption charges levelled in April by the Delhi police against South African captain Hansie Cronje and three of his team-mates, who could face possible prosecution after admitting their involvement.

According to a report by the AFP news agency, a "highly-placed source from the federal agency" claims the CBI's interim report is likely to list corruption charges against two English and three Pakistani cricketers and "will contain an exhaustive picture of corruption in the game."

The report by the CBI, who have recently visited Britain in connection with their investigations, is likely to be treated seriously by the England and Wales Cricket Board as they were the organisation who first revealed information implicating Cronje in match-fixing.

Andrew Walpole, the ECB's media relations officer, confirmed: "We have had no official contact from the Indian police on this matter and until we do, there is not a lot we can say on the matter."

SYDNEY SIDELINES

all athletes and officials will get a bed.

Pere Miro, director of National Olympic Committee relations, said 7,000 athletes and officials representing 153 NOCs had already moved into the village.

Organizers expressed concern when the anticipated 10,300 Olympic athletes appeared it would escalate to almost 11,000 as increasing numbers of competitors met qualifying criteria.

Sydney organizers had budgeted initially for a total of about 15,000 athletes and officials in the village, but Miro says on the most crowded days the village could house 16,000 people.

"Some days ago people were concerned about overcrowding because the figures were a bit higher than forecast, but it's not creating any problems for the managers of the village," he said.

BIGGER, BETTER

The Sydney Games will be the biggest on record, outgrowing Barcelona in 1992 and Atlanta in '96.

Pere Miro said all 199 National Olympic Committees would be represented in Sydney and would be joined by four independent athletes from East Timor, who'll be competing under the IOC flag.

IOC estimates show about 10,600 athletes will compete in Sydney in 28 sports.

In comparisons between the Barcelona Games and Sydney 2000, the number of sports has increased from 25 and the number of medal events has increased from 257 to 300.

The number of competitors has increased about 13 per cent from 9,364 and the number of National Olympic Committees participating has increased 17 per cent from 169, the IOC reported.

Accreditations for TV personnel has increased 54 per cent in eight years, rising from 7,705 in Barcelona to 11,900 in Sydney.

Miro said 471 Olympic Solidarity Scholarship athletes from 110 nations would compete in Sydney, an increase on the 150 who competed in Atlanta. Solidarity athletes, who are subsidized by the IOC to train and compete, picked up 16 medals at Atlanta in '96.

SAMARANCH STRANDED

IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch reportedly cancelled an inspection of the International Broadcast Center at Olympic Park after being left waiting for a bus for 20 minutes.

Olympic Roads and Transport Authority spokesman Paul Willoughby told the Australian Associated Press that "human error" was responsible for the major transport bungle.

Samaranch and other IOC executive board members waited at the Regent Hotel in downtown Sydney for a bus, provided by the Sydney organizers, until giving up in frustration when asked to wait another 10 minutes.

Willoughby described the incident as a "misunderstanding." He said the bus was sent to the headquarters of the Sydney organizing committee instead of to the IOC hotel.

Sydney has been plagued by transport problems in the last two weeks after a series of delays and accidents on the rail network and dozens of instances of Olympic buses getting lost or failing to pick up passengers.

Goodwin to begin again

SYDNEY, Sept 9 (Internet report): Zimbabwean player to leave the Test arena for greener pastures, hopes to kick off at the WACA next week.

Goodwin is hoping he can pick up his Australian domestic career where he left off in 1996: scoring a lot of runs for the Western Warriors based in Perth.

Goodwin rocked Zimbabwe cricket earlier this year with his announcement that if Western Australia offered him a contract, he would return to his adopted country. He left behind him a superb Test career, scoring 1414 runs at 42.84 in 19 Tests, with a top score of 166 not out.

An excellent series against England in June during which he averaged 89.00 with a highest score of an unbeaten 148 opened the eyes of the Australian state selectors. But getting noticed and getting selected are two very different things in a country blessed with a glut of talented batsmen.

A pre-season clash next week in Perth against Queensland could be his chance, as Adam Gilchrist and Damien Martyn will be away on national duty.

"To give up international cricket was a huge thing, but I'm happy with my decision," Goodwin told the Sydney Morning Herald on Thursday. "My goal is starting up first game, but it's bloody hard with all the Australian contracted cricketers." According to the Herald, he could continue to play for Zimbabwe during the Australian winter, but only on condition that Zimbabwe's cricket authorities improve their attitudes towards the players.

He reportedly contacted the chief executive of Zimbabwe cricket asking for details on his new contract, specifically asking about a pay increase to match his native country's 65% inflation, but the reply came too late: Goodwin's move back to Australia was underway.

"It hurts you because you feel as though you are worth more than that playing international cricket against the best teams in the world yet you are being paid a fraction of what all the other teams are being paid," he told the Herald.

Meanwhile fellow Zimbabwean star, all-rounder Neil Johnson, also left Test cricket to pursue a career with Western Province in South Africa.
