Disease takes toll on guava

From Aroop Talukdar

BARISAL, Oct 7: Southern districts in the country are regarded as major guava producing areas. The popular fruit, often dubbed as apple of Bengal, is being produced in abundance in the districts for over hundred years. But in the last two or three years, disease has seriously affected production, causing huge loss for garden owners.

A kind of fungus is responsible for spreading black dots on guava, said an agriculture official. The disease spreads fast like wildfire from one fruit to another, he added. This infection is visible from the change of colours of plants. The disease is also responsible for growing low quality of the fruit.

Recently agriculture experts termed this fungal infection as 'Anthracnose' which is responsible for change in shape, colour and taste of the fruit. According to Swarupkathi upazila agriculture office, gardens on at least 300 hundred hectares of land in different areas have been attacked by this fungus this season.

The Agriculture Research Institute (ARI), Barisal region has now started working to stop the menace. The research revealed that 'nolin' and 'topsin'—two kinds of anti fungal medicines—were more or less effective in controlling the disease in the guava gardens.

Among the southern districts, Phulpur is leader in guava production. A large number of gardens are situated in Swarupkathi upazila of the district. Besides, the fruit is also produced abundantly in Barisal and Jhalakati.

Elderly people say guava cultivation started in the region more than one hundred years ago by the then Hindu zamindars. Now guava is the second largest agricultural produce in the area after paddy. As guava is now profitable, more and more people are showing interests in the cultivation, said Abul Hossain, a local wholesale trader of guava.

According to Swarupkathi Upazila Agriculture Office, guava is currently being cultivated on more than six hundred hectares of land divided into six blocks in the upazila. 240 hectares are under the cultivation in Kuriana, 260 hectares in Dhaluhar, 22 hectares in Muslimpara 7 hectares in Dalabari, 52 hectares in Ganapatikathi, and 20 hectares in Madra blocks.

Guava provides the area with steady employment opportunities, as some 1,200 families are engaged in guava farming.

We prefer guava cultivation to paddy farming because the fruit gives a higher return, said Phanindra Nath Sikder, a school-teacher of Kuriana Girls High School. Sikdar, who owns two guava gardens, said "I have a 90-year-old garden and it is still making money."

RN Mandal, teacher of Adamkati Government Primary School and owner of 8 gardens, however, complained that farmers in the area are getting little help from the government.

Special measures should be taken up to introduce HYV kazi variety in the area, he added. The HYV variety does not grow easily in the area.

Pending cases pile up

NAOGAON, Oct 7: Crimes on women and children are mounting in the district in absence of separate court under Woman and Child Repression Prevention Act, reports UNB.

Sources said 45 cases were filed under the act with 11 thanas and court in August of which only eight cases were settled. With this, 703 cases have been lying pending with the court.

When the matter came up in a recent meeting, Public Prosecutor said the number of woman and child repression cases is high being big territory of the district and these are being handled by the judges along with other cases in absence of the separate court.

The meeting on Woman and Child Repression Prevention held with Deputy Commissioner in the chair also discussed various aspects of the smooth trial of the repression cases.

Another report from Netrakona says: A good number of cases under Woman and Child Repression Act have been lying pending in the district due mainly to the absence of investigation officers, medical officers and witnesses.

A Public Prosecutor told the news agency that want of proper coordination among the three separate departments of law, police and health the number of pending cases is increasing day by day.

Despite court orders, the concerned police investigation officers and medical officers often remain absent during the hearing date, he alleged.

Admitting the fact, an official of police said they are overburdened with many other businesses due to shortage of staff.

Besides, many police officials were transferred just after the completion of their investigation hampering the trial procedure, he added.

Local elite said women and child repression incidents are increasing in the district day by day due to the inordinate delay in the dispensation of justice.

Another report from Feni adds: Judicial and administrative works in the Collectorate office in the district are being hampered due to lack of magistrates and necessary officials, creating a judicial logjam.

According to official sources, a total of 68 posts, including that of magistrate, have long been lying vacant in the Collectorate office.

They said there are only two first class magistrates against five posts for five upazilas of the district. One of the two magistrates is now discharging the duties of five as another is going to be transferred somewhere else.

An official, who declined to be named, said a standoff will be created in the lower court if the authorities fail to appoint first class magistrates to it soon.

The situation in other departments is not different. The posts of NDC, District Election Officer, AD (Local Government), RDC, Land Acquisition Officer and General Certificate officer are also lying vacant.

More importantly, some posts of sub-inspectors and constables are lying vacant in the police department.

Because of lack of patronisation

From Our Correspondent

MOULVIBAZAR, Oct 7: Srimongal Adarsha College, a higher secondary level college in Srimongal upazila headquarters has been closed down due to ineffective management and lack of patronisation.

According to the college source, the managing committee of the college decided to close down the college after five years of its establishment.

Mohsin Miah Modhu, Chairman of Srimongal Municipality in association with some local elite had established the college in 1993. A 31-member managing committee was formed headed by the municipality chairman. At that time seven teachers including the principal were appointed and activities of the college started at Srimongal Municipality Library and auditorium as its temporary campus.

A total of 95 students were admitted in the first batch. In 1994-95 and 1995-96 academic sessions total number of students in this college rose to 215. In the meantime, the managing committee of the college became inactive and the principal also failed to show his proficiency.

The college was not included in the MPO list and salaries of teachers and employees became irregular. Since then teachers of the college started deserting. At this crisis of the college, the committee played a silent role. Students and guardians had also lost attraction towards the college.

Last year, the Board of Secondary and Higher Secondary Education, Comilla refused to renew its affiliation. In the last year's HSC examination, 17 examinees from the college appeared in the examination. However, as there are no registered students in the college, it will not affect any student for declaring closing of the college.

A safe haven of anti-socials

From Our Correspondent

SIRAJGANJ, Oct 7: Sirajganj Bazaar railway station is in deplorable condition for a long time.

Lack of latrine, sitting problems, lack of security and vagabonds' disturbance have made the station a hell for the passengers. In first class, second class and third class waiting rooms there is no arrangement for sitting. First class waiting room remains always under lock and key and the railway employees use it as bedroom. In second class waiting room which is for females, there is no arrangement for sitting. It is now being used by anti-social elements. The second class waiting room remains under lock and key.

The station has become a safe haven for gamblers, hemp-smokers and other anti-socials. Just after sunset, anti-socials enter into the first class waiting room. They move freely in the platform and make obscene remarks to woman passengers and take money from the passengers forcibly.

After sunset, the floating prostitutes move freely in the station area and give obscene hints to the male passengers. Due to lack of latrines, the waiting passengers mainly woman are in trouble. After 10 pm the platform of the station becomes a garage of rickshaw.

When contacted the station master told this correspondent that he has no capacity to solve these problems.

Sirajganj Bazaar Railway Station has become a safe haven of anti-socials. Photo shows an inter-city train standing here, while beggars, goat and hawks are seen on the platform. Such is the situation due to indifferent attitude of the station authorities. Besides, snatching is a regular affair here.
