Jubo League men damage buildings as contractor refuses to pay toll

From Our Correspondent

JHENIDAH, Oct 14: A group of youths allegedly belonging to the ruling party-backed Jubo League damaged two under-construction buildings of the Directorate of Youth Development on Friday night as the contractor refused to pay toll.

Police and witnesses said the youths, numbering about 15, attacked the buildings with iron rods, hammers and lethal weapons at about 12 midnight and damaged property worth about Tk 10 lakh.

The buildings are located at Loudia, about three kilometers off the town.

According to sources they demanded Tk one lakh from the contractor as toll on Thursday night but being denied attacked the buildings.

The same group took away cement, iron rods and other construction materials from the spot a few days ago.

A case has been filed with local police in this connection but none was arrested till filing this report.

KCC mayor allegedly prevented from going abroad

From Staff Correspondent

KHULNA, Oct 14: Mayor Sheikh Tayebur Rahman today condemned the government for preventing him from visiting the Philippines and Cambodia.

"I was among three other mayors of the country selected by the government for going to these two countries on an education tour under Urban Primary Health Care Project scheduled to begin October 6. But the government did not issue 'Government Order (GO)' in my favour on the pretext of my being one of the accused in a corruption case filed last month by DAB, Khulna," the KCC Mayor told a press conference.

All the four accused are now on anticipatory bail granted by the Supreme Court. Tayebur said he got a letter on October 3 from the ministry concerned expressing its regret for not issuing the GO.

He said the government of Awami League has been trying to politicise Khulna City Corporation only because of my being a leader of BNP. For this I have been insulted in this undemocratic and uncivilised manner, he said.

The city mayor also said an officer of the Military Intelligence DFI was exclusively engaged for taking him to the Prime Minister's Office. "I refused to call on the Prime Minister time and again and rejected his proposal to join Awami League," he said.

Redesign healthcare system to reach the poor & the needy

By staff correspondent

Discussants at a roundtable in the city yesterday expressed the view that the existing healthcare system in the country is not poor and is highly urban-biased.

There is severe management crisis in the system, causing waste and misuse of scarce material and human resources, they said.

They suggested re-designing of the system to take healthcare services to the poor and the needy.

The Daily Star organised the roundtable titled 'Fallacy of Free Medical Treatment -- for a Genuine People's Healthcare'.

The existing facilities vastly remain under-utilised, which can be used to meet the needs. There are enough potential and we need not depend on foreign 'prescription' to run our healthcare system, the speakers said.

But there is lack of transparency and accountability in implementation of health sector programmes, they said.

The current five-year plan for the health sector was prepared without considering the needs of those for whom it was meant. Preparatory discussions on all policy documents were limited to a few government officials, high-ups in the health ministry, some selected consultants and the donors.

Dr Dhiraj Kumar Nath, Additional Secretary in the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare said the government has brought down the population growth to 1.5 per cent and made significant progress in mass immunization.

However, we are still far behind in addressing maternal and infant mortality.

Referring to giving autonomy for the Health and Population Sector Programme (HPSPP), Prof Rashid-e-Mahbub, President of Bangladesh Medical Association, said it should be implemented in phases through trial and error.

It would be wrong to think that donors come here to look into our problems. "Are we not serving the

TFCA accord with US to help save Sundarbans & wildlife

From Raffat Binte Rashid

HOUSTON, Oct 14: Bangladesh and the United States have signed the Tropical Forest Conservation Act (TFCA) which will help conservation of the Sundarbans and the wildlife there.

This will give Bangladesh a waiver of soft loans it owes to the US government and help it generate funds for conservation of the tropical forest.

Bangladesh will save over 10 million US dollars from loan repayments in the next 18 years and establish a Tropical Forest Conservation Fund with 8.5 million dollars, USAID officials said in Washington.

State Minister of Foreign Affairs Abul Hasan Chowdhury signed the agreement on September 12 on behalf of Bangladesh, the first country to benefit from the TFCA.

The Fund will be administered by a board, which will include two government representatives, one from the US and the other from Bangladesh. It will also include one member each from environmentalists, NGOs and forestry organizations in Bangladesh, said Jim Hester, Environmental Coordinator, USAID and member of the President's Board for Tropical Forest Conservation Program.

The Fund will promote activities like restoring parts of a protected area, developing a scientific system to protect natural resources, training and motivation to protect forests and animals, stopping illegal logging and research on medicinal use of plants. It will also help support livelihood of people in and around the forest.

"Conserving the tropical forest does not mean building fences around the Sundarbans, but helping people with the

Gas purchase: Petrobangla to incur Tk 375 cr loss this yr

By Sharier Khan

Petrobangla will incur a loss of Tk 375 crore this year due to purchase of gas from foreign oil companies at a higher rate and sale at much below half that price in the local market.

This loss will be over 10 per cent higher than that in last year.

Petrobangla will be paying around Tk 700 crore to two US oil companies this year, sources said. Payments for gas purchase are made in US dollars.

The recent oil price hike in the world market, with which the gas price of international oil companies (IOCs) is linked, and devaluation of taka have pushed the loss to a higher level.

The government devaluated taka against US dollar by 3 per cent in November last year and again by 6 per cent in August this year. It also increased the gas price by 15 per cent in October.

The IOC gas price follows a formula linked with the price of high sulphur fuel oil at the Singapore market. But there is a floor rate and a ceiling rate. Under the formula, Petrobangla pays a minimum price of around 1.2 US dollars (when the global oil price is low or even lowest) and a maximum of around 2.9 dollars (when the oil price is high or the highest) per unit (one thousand cubic feet of gas).

Petrobangla is paying Shell for the Sangu gas and Unocal for the Jalalabad gas at a ceiling rate of around 2.9 dollars per unit for nearly a year now.

Even the 15 per cent gas price hike is of no help to Petrobangla as 55 per cent of it is being taken by the National Board of Revenue (NBR) as tax and the remaining is absorbed by the recent devaluation of taka, the sources said.

Coupled with this, poor gas revenue collection by Petrobangla's distribution agencies has put it into a tight financial position.

"Ironically, the distribution agencies owe Petrobangla Tk 850 crore," said a Petrobangla official. The situation calls for improving the revenue collection system drastically, he added.

Before taking a decision to devalue taka, the government never considered its impact on the gas sector, a financial expert involved in the sector said.

"While devaluing taka, the government should not only consider country's exports but also the loss to be incurred by different agencies," he said.

Students, employees clash at IU

20 hurt: 45 rooms ransacked: Vehicles damaged

Coalition seems to stay as long as Vajpayee in driver's seat

From Pallab Bhattacharya

NEW DELHI, Oct 14: As Prime Minister Atal Behari Vajpayee recuperates from a knee surgery in a Bombay hospital, the government headed by him completed its first year in office amidst signs that the coalition is here to stay as long as he is in the driver's seat.

Compared to the previous stint in office (1998-99) at the head of a coalition, which faced almost daily convulsions triggered by a temperamental AIADMK supremo J Jayalalitha, Vajpayee this time has found the going comparatively more smooth with much less pulls and pressures from coalition partners which are regional parties each with their separate political agenda.

The regional allies of BJP, lead party in the 24-party coalition, have this time so far refrained from adopting a belligerent posture as Vajpayee made it clear more than once that he would not allow governance to be dictated by compulsions of coalition politics.

That is why when Mamata Banerjee-led Trinamool Congress had recently threatened to pull out of the ruling combine protesting the hike in prices of petrol products, there was no sign of panic in the Vajpayee government in spite of the fact that withdrawal of support by nine members of parliament belonging to the Trinamool would have spelt trouble for the government.
