7pc people carrying Hepatitis B Virus'

Around six to seven per cent of the total population are carrying Hepatitis B Virus. This was revealed at a press conference held at a local hotel on the eve of a three-day Hepatitis B Awareness Programme, being organised by Glaxo-Welcom Bangladesh Limited, reports BSS.

Hepatitis B, a serious infectious disease, finally damages the liver of a man. It claims one million lives every year across the globe.

Prof Mobin Khan, Dr Rashid-e-Mahboob, Prof AK Azad Khan, Prof Mahmud Hasan and Dr Sharifuddin and Managing Director of Glaxo-Welcom Bangladesh, Syed Fazlul Huq spoke on the occasion.

"Three out of every 10 Hepatitis B infected patients suffer from liver damage which gradually push the patients toward death if the disease was not treated properly," Syed Fazlul Huq said in his video presentation. He said Hepatitis B infects patients through infected blood transfusion, drug abuses, sex abuses, or accidental needle-stick injuries.

Mobin Khan said Hepatitis B is a DNA virus which is affecting 350 million people of the world in a year. He said anybody can be affected by HB virus but the children under the age of one year are at higher risk of chronic liver disease due to the viral infection.

He said although a large number of people were infected by bloods, a sizeable number were also infected by unknown means. Referring to a small-scale survey in hospitals, he said a total of 2.4 per cent voluntary blood donors possess HB positive virus while around 20 per cent professional blood donors found carrying the germs of Hepatitis B.
