The Daily Star

Founder-Editor: Late S. M. Ali

Dhaka, Thursday, October 26, 2000

A Wise Move Indeed

WE exult over the manner in which the High Court has disposed of the three contempt petitions against the Prime Minister, the fate of which the entire nation awaited almost with a bated breath. Intrepid and sagacious, the High Court Division of the Supreme Court refrained from issuing any rule on the question or a showcause notice to the prime minister. Rather it rest content with cautioning her that she better be 'careful and respectful' in making any statement or comment on the judiciary, judges or courts in the future. This is for the second time that she has received such a stricture-type counsel within a year of each other.

The merit of the HC verdict lies in the fact that it has scrupulously avoided any souring of relations between the executive and the judiciary which would have caused public confidence to diminish in both of them. not to mention the impediment it could create to governance. Secondly, if the judgement were any different the judiciary might have been a part of the controversy one saw raging right from the beginning of the reactive process steaming with political, constitutional and judicial implications. It is a great relief to note that the judiciary by its wise move has stepped back from the vortex of politics. It should also be possible for the lawyer community that stood divided on the issue to let off the heat by virtue of a benign piece of judicial dispensation. To top it off, the verdict comes as an assertion of the independence of the judiciary.

As for the note of caution served up to the PM we recall having editorially entreated her several times not to be too simplistic in blaming the high judiciary for grant of bails. First of all, it is the lower courts under the executive branch of the government that give most of the bails. Secondly, it is poor preparation of case that invited such reprieves. Moreover, hardly any grant of bail is appealed by the government.

The PM's remarks were not only injudicious they were also repetitive to a point of courting ire. Thankfully, it has worked out well in the end. Now it depends upon the PM to reciprocate. Basically though, she needs to change her focus from blaming the judiciary to improving the quality of prosecution by concentrating on: (a) legal training of the police officials involved in investigation and arraignment; and (b) strengthening the Attorney General's office with public prosecutors chosen on professional merit rather than by party colour.

Public Money Going Waste

THE special audit report on wastage of more than 1 Tk 1.882 crore in public funds has essentially translated into figures a disquieting fact we have known all along - the departments under the government's wings have become dens for corrupt and incompetent men. Also, it is not for the first time that the Comptroller and Auditor General's office has unearthed evidence of gross irregularities wilful malpractice at the state-run establishments. On many occasions before, the CAG took pains to dig out hidden states of accounts, tally them with the ones made public, list incidents of incongruities and thereafter submit a detailed report to the president and the parliament for perusal and further actions thereon. In November of 1998, the CAG divulged how a nexus between top businessmen and high-level bank officials had burdened the nationalised commercial banks (NCBs) with a huge amount of bad debts. In June of 1999, a similar CAG special audit brought into public attention inexcusable mismanagement at the Bangladesh Telegraph and Telephone Board (BTTB). Unfortunately, in both the cases, the ball stopped rolling right there. To our knowledge, no one was questioned, let alone identified, tried and punished for professional negligence. One could hardly be blamed if one inferred a similar fate for the latest CAG special report.

The special audit reports on the state-run entities can be looked at from two different points of view. First, these are testimony to the fact that the public-sector service organisations like BTTB, PDB, Titas Gas, WASA etc are not up to the responsibility of effectively, efficiently and, more importantly, ethically serving the people in the country. Not only their incompetence and negligence has rendered the public service network in tatters, but also their greed has resulted in siphoning crores of taka off the public exchequer to individual coffers. Second, the government's inaction despite repeated reminders of the irregularities and malpractices at its departments and corporations suggests it is either incapable of or loath to taking any disciplinary measures against the wrong-doers. Both, however, point to one solution - withdraw the government's control over the ailing and non-performing service organisations. It is not a healthy sign that such crucial organisations as BTTB, Titas Gas and the like have become gobblers of public money. It has to stop and stop now.

Stonewalled for More than Two Years!

TN order to apply brake on frequent foreign tours by government officials, Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina had issued a directive at the fifth meeting of National Training Council in 1998 to ministries requiring that they formulate guidelines for the participation in training functionaries' programmes and seminars overseas. Secretaries were supposed to submit draft guidelines by the end of that year. Since then, two-and-a-half years have passed and yet the 'new rules' remain as illusive as ever. This is not for the first time that a prime ministerial directive has fallen on deaf ears. While the previous floutation of PM's instructions had to do with an environmental concern like in the case of encroachment into the river Buriganga, this one is no less shocking because it has occurred at the heartland of government administration viz., the Secretariat. The exercise was sought to be initiated by the PM with a view to averting dislocation in official work entailed through frequent foreign trips by government officials. There is also a huge monetary implication to it. It seems to us that officials are not keen to rewrite the rules, as in a revised form these could affect their interest in tours abroad. Let the PM go into the matter and have the officials comply with her directive for new rules in a few weeks' time.

The Middle East Peace Process on the Rocks

The final stumbling block is Jerusalem. President Clinton appears unwilling to leave it for his successor. For a deal on Jerusalem must take place sooner or later. The peace process Aclashes in Palestine behas moved too far forward to reverse gear. tween the Palestinian youths and the Israeli security forces. the peace process between Pal-scheme. The world refused to estine and Israel appears to acknowledge the Israeli claim have come to a position which and no state agreed to move its calls for a pause. And this in embassy to Jerusalem not even

FTER long and tortuous negotiations and violent tenure of President Clinton.

The situation has appeared to have come to a dead end on the thorny question of Jerusalem. Let us recall that Jerusalem arouses passions in the densely passionate Middle East, like no other issue does. It is the holy place of Islam - Arabs and non-Arabs. It was the first Qibla even before the Holy Kaaba. Until 1967 it was under Jordanian sovereignty. During the long reign of the Ottoman Sultans, it was administered by the representative of the Ottoman Empire. During the recent negotiations between Palestine and Israel, the Turkish-authorities opened their archives and the Palestinians and the Israelis consulted those documents. During the 1967 war between the Arabs and Israel, Israel annexed East Jerusalem along with several other Arab territories. Israel had declared Jerusalem her eternal capital and annexation was implementation of that

T appears that personal vilifi-cation has turned out to be a favourite pastime with many of our politicians. Unfortu-ment's policies is invariably synonymous with criticizing the person, viz. the Prime Minister herself. Likewise, any criticism of the opposition would mean tirade personally against the leader of the opposition. The most intriguing aspect of this process has been that irrespective of the party taking seats in the opposition it is mandatory for it to find fault with the government. This is the irreversible tradition our political parties.

who matter, have been patronising with little or no departure.

President Justice Sha-habuddin Ahmed had time and spite of the US President Bill Israel's benefactor, the USA. After many ups and downs Clinton's prodding of the Chairman of the Palestinian in the negotiations between the Authority Yasser Arafat and two parties the focus is finally Prime Minister of Israel Ehud on Jerusalem. The question the peace between Egypt and Barak. It will be a major miracle arouses such violent passions, Israel, has recently suggested if peace is concluded between that former US President that the peace process should the two adversaries during the Jimmy Carter, who brokered be completed keeping on hold

The Horizon This Week

Despite Sharm el-Sheikh, violence continues: Yet peace is the only answer.

lieve that they can solve any problem and since the question of Jerusalem has been taken up very earnestly, there can really be no going back. confrontation between the Palestinians and the Israelis, one matter became crystal clear: The peace process has a life of its own and no force on earth is why at the height of tension no politician has called the peace process "DEAD". The tragedy appears to be that following the landmark agreement leading to the first Camp David success between Egypt and Israel, the new follow up came after 12 years with the coming on the scene of another Democrat President Bill Clinton in the USA. There was thus an interregnum of 12 years when US initiative on the peace process was virtually frozen. President Clinton has devoted more energy, time and effort on the peace process than any other President of the USA. He has on President Clinton will ocachieved remarkable results cupy the White House for nearly like the handshake between the Palestinian Chairman and the Israeli Prime Minister. He seemed tantalisingly close to wrap up the entire peace process. For he had engineered the deal between Jordan and Israel and between Morocco and Israel. He had nearly clinched a deal between Arafat and Barak.

He had taken the fast track between Syria and Israel on the question of Golan Heights. The deal between Lebanon and Israel could not have taken place without Syria's blessing. Thus Syria was positioning herself for a deal with Israel. This would mean that all the issues of the Middle East would be settled. During the recent bloody And Bill Clinton had brought the parties very close indeed. Much has been made in the > Arab world of a government of National Unity in Israel. Thus Ehud Barak has extended an olive branch to his opponent Ariel Sharon of the right wing Likud party apparently in an effort to wrap up the peace process between the Arabs and Israel. He seems determined to expend the last ounce of his energy for a deal between the Palestinians and the Israelis. The final stumbling block is Jerusalem. President Clinton appears unwilling to leave it for his successor. For a deal on Jerusalem must take place sooner or later. The peace process has moved too far forward to reverse gear. The US Presidential elections are due on 7 November next. From that date two months but strictly as a lame duck. It is very difficult to see how he could take any important initiative during this period. Whatever happens President Bill Clinton deserves the gratitude of humanity for being so energetic to bring peace to the strife-torn Middle East.

Sterile Politics, Stingy Politicians

by Kazi Alauddin Ahmed

There is no use in shifting the onus on politics, rather, it should be shared by the politicians themselves who are unable to rise above self to vindicate the rights of the people whom they represent.

nately, very few top ranking political leaders in the major parties could be excepted. Re- again urged the political parties ing the state of insecurity. The Minister Buta Singh, charged any other party. Because these marks and counter remarks to sit together and forge a con- whole socio-political scenario with corruption, were sentenced are the men who often do more being traded are often crude, sensus on major national isutterly offensive and devoid of sues. Concurrently, he also decency. The exchange is all the urged the political parties, their more malevolent and obnoxious leaders in particular, to freeze when the second in command students' politics at least for in the party defends his chief. five years. His appeals born of In fact, on such occasions his genuine anxieties, have fallen enthusiasm is boundless, his on deaf ears. words are highly provocative. Here criticizing the governterrorism continue compound- PV Narasimha Rao and Home party should not be welcome by they are the harbingers of the or on the streets. rule of law. In the height of their pretensions they loudly counter within the major politiproclaim that the law should be cal parties is yet another omiallowed to take its own course. nous obsession with the re-Harbouring criminals by the But in actual practice we see spective party bosses. There major political parties has again something different. The politi- have been sporadic attempts to been a malignant tumour on cal leaders imputed with spe- compose such intraparty tussle the body of the civil society. The cific charges of corruption want but the results are hardly posiemergence of the diabolic 'god- us to believe that they are tive. The bosses are apparently fathers' in the political scenario falsely implicated claiming po- unable to hit at the roots and continues to make things more litical vindictiveness on the part keep the problems ever comand more difficult. Armed party of their adversaries in the gov- pounding. The appropriate precadres having direct or indirect ernment. Such a stance on scription, in my humble opinblessings of the leaders of the their part often provoke the ion, would be to expel both the major political parties have followers into veritable rowdism contending parties to the feud been perpetually creating law in the court premises interfer- after a specific period. Under and order situation. Brandish- ing with the smooth proceed- such compulsion the disturbing ing of fire arms and lethal ings. The leaders on the other elements will do the patch-work weapons openly, one killing the hand, do not take lessons from themselves and the bosses will other. snatching. hijacking. similar legal action being taken not be blamed by either of the extortion, kidnapping at gun- freely in neighbouring India, contenders of being one sided. points and many other acts of Former Indian Prime Minister Likewise deserters from one has now assumed the ugliest to three years' imprisonment harm than good to the welproportion that beggars de- but the Indian Congress didn't, coming party creating conse- Rahman, a senior member of at any time, stage a demon- quently large-scale dissention Our leaders often feign that stration in the court premises among the dedicated and tested workers of that party. The Internal rift and bloody en- status in BNP can be cited as a glaring example. Very recently the former finance minister and BNP leader ers' Unity that personally he from the Jativa Sangsad session. He plainly confessed that he was compelled to follow his whom they represent.

party decision. Prior to this. parliamentarian Major (retd) Akhtaruzzaman ignored party directives and participated in the proceedings of the last session of the Jatiya Sangsad. Now he is about to loose his seat. However, he had shown the guts but Saifur the standing committee could not. He has instead allowed himself, nay, his moral obligation to his electorates, to be eclipsed by the stubborn overtures of the party leadership. There is no use in shifting Saitur Rahman told the Report- the onus on politics, rather, It should be shared by the politiwas not in favour of abstaining cians themselves who are unable to rise above self to vindicate the rights of the people

Political Power Failure Abul M Ahmad

trical power sector (DS going to be bigged down in this A editorial. Oct 2) cannot be political hell? rectified as it symbolises the system loss. The two main genetically-engineered political lapses are: practically complete seeds, and we are still waiting absence of departmental disci- for the approved deshi variety. plinary action: and failure to control the trade union activi- failed dismally to steer the naties (CBAs in the different sec- tion out of the various vicious tors) which go against public circles and vested interests.

perts may like to calculate the available to the nation. cost of poor leadership, and is time to reverse the scenario. ministry. but the necessary in due time. The musical-chairs reforms and operation clean-up game has to go: and internal were not, or could not be, formulated and implemented, per- parties has to be cultivated haps due to political meekness. Besides, management, admin-are not yet in place. The whole management en-(as recommended by the inter- nation. national bodies). This is not companies is not the full solu- is orbital slavery. tion, as experience has revealed so far. Modern marketing ori- thinking about the reforms. entation concepts have to be before the next general elecincorporated in the strategies, tions. Old stereotyped manto ensure no-loss environment. dates won't do: new proand encourage revenue surplus. grammes have to be included. The political will and consensus including the basic ways we are lacking, as pointed out re- carry out our nation-building peatedly in the mass media. activities. There are two sides of Who will, and can, undertaken this silent revolution? at the national level, political exploitation amongst the major the promises made by the polipolitical parties will keep the nation divided. The national ability of the politicians is like a political base is still weak. The foundation has to be built first. but the elected regimes are still suffering from hastiness and hurried safety-first measures after 16 years of autocratic rule. The party insecurity synad hoe and contingency policies. The Awami League is keen to bridge the 21-year gap; and the BNP is suffering from the cantonment party propaganda; and the Islamic parties do not get the benefit of the doubt. The stake, when the voters analyse their performance since independence. The current bureaucratic set-up is a liability and burden. With the political game at loggerheads, governance is topsy-turvy. The nation cannot get the freedom from stalemate

HE system loss in the clec- situations. How long are we

The leaders have to tend the failure of political power or will. root first before clamouring The main problem is human from the tree-tops. There are no

The political leadership has Success through change of Politicization is the hidden leadership will take time, as enemy of the nation, and this several operations would be slow poisoning is worse than required in phases. Hence the arsenic poisoning the na- Bangladesh has a long way to tion is experiencing. The ex- go before leadership stability is

Leadership is a scarce complace the inventory before the modity, and money and influnation for judgement. There are ence cannot buy it, notwithtoo many political judgements standing the infiltration of at the fringe or marginal level; it black money and armed cadres within politics. The filtration The PM took over the power process will take its own course democracy within the political transparently: forgetting charisma and historical bias (give istrative and financial controls others a chance for practice). The factions within the political parties seriously damage the vironment has to be changed team capability to deliver to the Service to the nation has possible in the public sector taken a back seat. Unless this without the civil service re- becomes the number one priorforms. Creating public- ity, the nation is doomed to controlled corporations and orbit in the vicious circle. This

This is the time to start this reforms coin: to create public awareness, for support Without political consensus and backing: and to demonstrate the ability to deliver on ticians. At present the account-Black Hole. The Parliament has to be revived, as it is the Base

> There is a lot of misconception as to how a politician becomes a political leader; and then a chosen few are accepted as national leaders. At present we have no pool of national leadership, only party leaders, who cannot rise to the occasion to guard the national interest. when the emergency arises.

Camp

rection only

When a nation is let down at the top, the burden on the bottom tiers become unbearable. The political voke has to be analysed afresh by the political scientists, as the local political leaders appear to have lost the sense of direction; although the national goal leads to one di-

Letters for publication in these columns should be addressed to the Editor and legibly written or typed with double space. For reasons of space, short letters are preferred, and all are subject to editing and cuts. Pseudonyms are accepted. However, all communications must bear the writer's real name, signature and address.

"Future Development Potentials of Chittagong Port"

Sir. The more than half page advertisement of Mr A. B. M. Mohiuddin Chowdhury. Mayor of Chittagong City Corporation with captioned headline published on the front page of several national dailies (16 October) reminds me of an article I read in the Institute of Engineers' (Pakistan) magazine of 1966 on the possibility of a very large sea port at the Swandip Channel. Like the way it has been shown in Mr Mohiuddin Chowdhury's advertisement. the article in the institute magazine also looked very impressive. The main snag is. however the mobilisation of the colossal amount of capital required for such a massive project. It surely is beyond the means of our government. The donor agencies would not be interested in such a large port that will remain highly underutilised even after 50 years from now considering the growth potential of the suggested hinterland of the proposed port.

I feel that our national purpose and objective will be better served with a similar but much smaller port at Kutubdia Channel. This port can be developed at a fraction of the cost of the massive size port suggested at the Swandip channel. Depth of water at Kutubdia Channel is higher than that exists at Swandip Channel besides this island is only two nautical miles away from the Mainland while Swandip island is roughly 30 nautical miles away from the mainland. So the cost of the road/ embankment at the northern tip of the island and break water at the southern tip of the island required for the project will be fraction of the cost of the proposed port at Sandwip channel. As this project will be much smaller but adequate to meet our requirement for at least next 100 years, mobilisation of the requisite fund will also not be that difficult. Besides working environment in Chittagong Port is showing the Sandwip channel. very poor. Work stoppage and strikes are rampant and this has made this port the most inefficient and at the same time the most expensive port in this region and any new investment tisement has been published by in the development of port facility at Chittagong will be sheer wastage. It will be more practical and feasible to have new port at Kutubdia channel which will be cost effective and at the vertisement. same time meet needs of our country besides that of Nepal, . stand the objective, motive and Bhutan. North East Indian significance of the advertise-States. Southern China and ment. Is it meant for the per-North western Myanmar for next 100 years at least.

As the size of this project will not be over ambitious arranging fund for the project is not going to be very difficult. Our port facilities are inadequate and cannot even meet our present need. It is essential for us to develop new port facilities to meet our present and future trading needs. It takes at least 15 to 20 years to develop a port. Present congestion of the port and unionisation of the workers to a high degree has made Chittagong the costliest port in this area and this extra cost is borne by the poor consumers of the country and our exporters have become uncompetitive compared to our neighbouring countries.

So for our very survival and existence as a nation, development of new port at Kutubdia is a must. I hope the concerned authorities would consider this development of port facilities seriously so that our industrial development can be expedited and poverty alleviated at the quickest possible time. Salahuddin Ayubi 75, Indira Road Dhaka-1215

What is the justification?

Sir. A huge advertisement "Future Development Potentials of Chittagong Port in Bangladesh" was published in the Bangladesh Observer on October 16 with a sketch map jetty facilities and R.C.C embankments in Sandwip and Chittagong from Sitakund to Patenga. It appears that the adver-ABM Mohiuddin Chowdhury. Mayor, Chittagong City Corporation. It so indicates because his name is written in bold letters on the bottom of the ad-

However, we fail to undersonal publicity of the Mayor or for some other noble purpose?

If it is aimed at developing the both sides of Sandwip channel from Sitakund to Patenga as a modern sea port then what is the financial implications involved in the project. how and when it would be taken in hand and completed?

Why the above basic information are not mentioned in the advertisement?

and wastage of public money.

Ministry of LGRD kindly look into the matter, inform us the amount of public money spent on the advertisement and the very justification of publishing the ad?

A Citizen 6. Hare Street Wari, Dhaka 1203

Dhaka facing economic collapse?

Sir. It looks like Dhaka is facing an economic collapse in the near future due to the huge bank-loan default culture, running into thousands of crore of Taka. Two regimes have been grappling for a decade with this menace at the highest level of the society, but the penetrative effect of the regulatory measures is not transparent, due to political links working through the back doors (it is an open

Dhaka appears to be blindly following the Bangkok example, with huge but shallow and hollow structures. When the time comes, the collapse will have an uncontrollable cascading effect. as happened in the SE Asia a few years ago. Weak Bangladesh will find it difficult to recover quickly from this damage. What a pity there is none in the society who can nurse ailing Bangladesh! We have to live in this limping sonar Bangla for quite a while. There are no silver linings in the clouds. The solution can only come from tough political will, to endure transparent politics. Only the people can bring it about. not the players (the politicians). Unless our politics is cleaned inside out, there is no hope for Bangladesh. The writing is on the wall, and it is not invisible or in erasable ink.

Dhaka needs another cleanup mass movement, as it happened in 1990. The power drunk politicians won't listen. as they have lost the gift of We consider the advertise- communication. The voice of ment a fantastic vanity and the people are not being heard | drome is still there, leading to braggadocio on the part of by the decision makers. We Chittagong City Corporation have got independence, but have not yet learned to govern For the sake of accountabil- ourselves. It is the fault of the ity and transparency would the voters who have propped up under-grade leadership: and now we are paying the price of | credibility of the politicians is at third class decision-making phobia. In fact, the whole world is facing a leadership crisis, and Dhaka is part of the universal malaise.

> A Mawaz Dhaka