FOCUS=

LETTER FROM AMERICA

"Unpresidented" Election Divides America down the Middle

TIME bomb is embedded within the American Presi-A dential electoral process. Every other century the bomb goes off throwing the presidential election into turmoil. In keeping with its confusing nature, the process is called Electoral College, although it has nothing to do with an educational institution. If the popular vote determined the winner, right now Vice President Albert Gore would be the new President-elect. Since the Electoral College determines the Presidency, currently George W. Bush has more claims to the Presidency. The last time America faced this dilemma was in 1888. when Benjamin Harrison defeated Grover Cleveland, although Cleveland had won the popular vote. America's founding fathers did not have much confidence in the wisdom of the masses. They wanted the people to vote for the President indirectly. The masses vote for the President within their state. Whoever wins the maximum popular votes within that state wins not a portion of, but all of the state's electoral votes. (Electoral votes are apportioned according to the population of the state, with 3 being the minimum.) There are 538 electoral votes to be won. If a candidate wins 270, he is the new President regardless of the nationwide popular vote. If it's a tie with each candidate winning 269, the Congress, not the popular vote, determines the winner. If one candidate wins the big population states such as California (54 electoral votes) and New York (33 electoral votes) as Al Gore has done, and the other candidate wins most of the smaller states as George Bush has done, it is possible to have two claims of victory one moral and one legal as is the case now. This year's election has been complicated by the extremely close vote in Florida. As of this writing, after a recount of nearly six million votes cast in Florida, unofficially George Bush is ahead by only 327. A few thousand absentee ballots are not going to change the tally that much. The official result will not be known before November 17. Currently Al Gore has 260 electoral votes, and George Bush has 246, with Ore-

This election has truly divided the nation. Whoever is elected the next President of the United States, will have a tough time governing the nation. The Northeast and the Pacific West voted for Gore while the South and the Midwest voted for Bush. Most men preferred Bush, most women voted for Gore. Overall, liberal whites, African-Americans and other minorities voted for a Gore Presidency, while the conservative whites and the religious right, the gun, tobacco and business lobby worked tirelessly to get Bush elected.

Dr. Fakhruddin Ahmed writes from Princeton be determined. Whoever carries was a column of small levers. Florida's 25 electoral votes, will win the keys to the White House. The writer would like to take an "X" next to that candidate's the readers inside a US voting name as the voter's choice. booth. On November 7 the writer fire brigade house, and reported crats: Al Gore/Joe Lieberman for to a young African-American President, Jon Corzine for Senaclerk who was handling voters tor and Rush Holt for Congresswith last names between A and K. man. The last two columns and (Most of the polling stations are levers had the remaining names, schools, which are closed on such as for Green Party Presidenasked my name. flipped the pages Reform Party candidate Pat of her voter registration book Buchanan. Upon turning the until she came to the pages with appropriate small levers (of my and my wife's signatures from course I am not going to tell you previous votings (my wife had who I voted for!) as I turned the already voted.). "Is this you?" she master lever to the right, the asked. Satisfied with an affirma- screen opened, all the small tive answer, the woman asked me levers went back to neutral posito sign my name on the register as tions and my vote was automatia proof that I had voted. She then cally recorded. (For the record, Al asked for another signature on a Gore won the 15 Electoral votes in coupon book, one half of which New Jersey, Jon Corzine won the she retained and the other half race for Senator and the Congresshe asked me to take to an atten- sional race between Zimmer and dant at a nearby voting machine. Holt is too close to call, with both Upon handing over that coupon, claiming victory!) the attendant allowed me to enter a vacant voting booth.

the voting booth. As soon as I Palm Beach County in Florida turned it left the screen closed who have gone to court to chalbehind me allowing me complete " lenge voting irregularities in their privacy to exercise my rights. In County. Their main beef is that the first column were the names the ballot was confusing. Unlike of all Republican candidates the very simple New Jersey ballot (since the Governor of New Jer- I have just described, the ballot in sey, Christine Todd Whitman is a Palm Beach County listed two Republican, she is allowed to columns of Presidential candifavour her Party in such small dates, and asked the voters to ways): George Bush/ Dick punch their choice in a very nar-Cheney for President, Bob Franks row column in-between containfor Senator (from New Jersey) and ing black balls indicating candi-Dick Zimmer for Congress (from dates. George Bush's name was the 12th Congressional District of first on the left-hand column (his New Jersey) followed by contes- brother Jeb Bush is the Governor gon's seven electoral votes yet to Next to their names on the right Voters were instructed to turn the lever for one candidate, which put

The next two columns had went to the local polling station, a names and levers for the Demo-Election Day.) The young woman tial Candidate Ralph Nader and Al Gore and his campaign have thrown their weights behind a few There was a red master lever in citizens of the heavily Democratic tants for lesser elective offices. of Florida) followed by Al Gore.

Republicans are exerting enormous pressure on Gore to concede defeat "for the sake of the nation," reminding him that Richard Nixon had conceded the 1960 election to John F. Kennedy even though he lost by only 100,000 popular votes and about 30 electoral votes. (Gore leads Bush by 200,000 popular votes at the moment).

This election has truly divided the nation. Whoever is elected the next President of the United States, will have a tough time governing the nation. With one seat yet to be decided, Senate has a chance of literally splitting

50:50. Republicans have only seven more seats than the Democrats do in the House. The Northeast and the Pacific West voted for Gore while the South and the Midwest voted for Bush. Gore won the populous states whereas because of the overwhelming land area of the states Bush won, he can claim a "landslide!" Most men preferred Bush, most women voted for Gore. Environmentalists and gays gave the nod to Gore, while the businesses and more straights sided with Bush. People who have guns and oppose abortion backed Bush, whereas households that are pro-choice and are without a gun chose Gore. Overall, liberal whites, African-Americans and other minorities voted for a Gore Presidency, while the conservative whites and the religious right, the gun, tobacco and business lobby worked tirelessly to get Bush elected. America's diversity is astonishing. It is said that the northern state of Pennsylvania is Pittsburgh in the West and Philadelphia in the East (both heavily Democratic and minoritydominated) with Alabama in the middle (upstate Pennsylvania is predominantly white and Republican like the state of Alabama, with very little minority population). Fortunately, America is the most affluent nation on earth. Were poverty to descend on America, as this presidential election has demonstrated, the divisions with its social fabric could tear the nation apart.

Garfield

A N extraordinary event is now taking place in the history of the United States as I write this article (November).

Considering the events that are unfolding right before our eyes, I hasten to add that one of the densely populated states of America that is Florida can qualify as part of any of the Third World countries. Judging from the US presidential election result those are coming out of Florida, one may very well say that the election conducting authorities in that state are certainly acting like one of those in a Third World country.

As the Florida vote re-count continues, allegations of wrongdoings and improprieties are coming to light. on November 8, we learned that Bush had won the state by a slim margin of only 1800 votes out of about 5.8 mil lion votes those were cast the day before. As the votes were recounted, more were added to Gore. As of noon on November 9, the difference between Bush and Gore fell to only 795 in favour of Bush. But at 4:30 PM (CDT) I saw that more votes were added to Gore's column. Now the difference has only 360 votes in favour of Bush. Nine more counties are not finished yet with the vote recount. It is expected that Gore might receive more votes. Whether he will receive an extra 403 votes to tie the election is an open question. But there are more to the Florida vote counts than meets the eye. The state is run by another scion of Bush family Jeb Bush, the younger brother of George Bush.

In Palm Beach and Osceola counties, the voters claimed the design of the ballots was confusing enough to cast their vote for the wrong candidate. Voters erroneously punched the wrong hole giving their votes to wrong candidate. When some voters have realized that they voted for the wrong candidate, they punched the hole for their candidate (Gore). But by doing so, they disqualified their votes. Palm Beach officials announced that 19,120 presidential ballots were thrown out (disqualified) before they were counted because more than one candidate was picked. That is a high number no doubt, considering the fact that US Presidential election would be decided at this time by the outcome of Florida election, which Al

Where will it End? by A H Jaffor Ullah

CAMPAIGN FOR THE WHITE HOUSE

Gore is losing by only 403 votes. Some of the voters in Palm Beach county think they have wrongly voted for Reform Party candidate Pat Buchanan who had garnered 3,407 votes. One holocaust victim in Palm Beach who wrongly voted for Mr. Buchanan said on November 9 to TV reporters that she was very much agitated knowing what she did and she could not sleep because of what she did. Mr. Buchanan himself said he believed most of the votes he received in the county were intended for Mr. Gore. In a statement Mr. Buchanan said, 'I don't want any votes that I did not receive and I don't want to win any votes by mistake. It seems to me that these 3,000 votes people are talking about most of those are probably not my vote and that to Mr. Gore.' There is more election ballot blunder than just the one I mentioned above. Take the bizarre case of Volusia county, which is located south of Daytona Beach on Florida's Atlantic coast. In this county Mr. James E. Harris, an obscure Socialist Workers candidate polled 9,888 votes. He received 10,471 votes throughout Florida. Why did he receive 94 per cent of his total votes in an obscure county is puzzling. It was revealed that Mr. Harris received 0, 1, or 2 votes in counties surrounding Volusia. Voters in heavily populated may be enough to give the margin

Miami-Dade, Browrad and other nearby counties complained about delays in delivery of ballot boxes to polling. It is noteworthy that these urban areas are the strongholds of Democratic Party. It makes one wonder whether these were deliberate act to help one candidate over the other.

NAACP, the organization that represents the minority citizens, has received complaints on election day that some voters were told that there were no more ballots, or that polls were closed. These are gross civil rights violations. Therefore, serious allegations against the state organization conducting the presidential poll raised by NAACP are quite

Both Democratic and Republican Parties have sent their highpowered emissaries to the battleground, i.e., Florida to oversee the vote re-count. Meanwhile, Mr. Bush is pretending to be the President-elect while Mr. Gore is in seclusion. The way Democratic representatives are talking in Florida one thing is for sure: the decision of Florida State's presidential election result will be contested in the court. On November 9, in the middle of the day we read in the Internet network news that Gore representatives had asked the Florida Election authorities to hand count the votes in three counties including the Palm Beach. The normal vote re-count is done by reading the result given by each polling booth or box. Three women have already filed a complaint against the Palm Beach County Canvassing Board in the Circuit Court of the 15th Judicial Circuit (Case No. CLOO 10965 ANJ. This is just the beginning of lawsuits centering the impropriety that may have taken place in Florida.

There are other legal problems, too. Because of his vested interest in the outcome, Mr. Jeb Bush, the governor and younger brother of the republican candidate, excused himself from the panel that will certify the election results of the re-count. But the other members of the panel are Republicans.

Contrary to what Mr. George W. Bush may think, this election for presidency is far from over. Litigations would delay the outcome of the Florida result. The state of Florida by revealing these instances of impropriety on the part of polling authorities has marred the election results. The big guns from both the parties are there in the state capital. Tallahassee, to make sure that the election result conveys the wishes of Floridians. Since no one really knows how many absentee ballots are coming this year, it makes it next to impossible to guess who really have won the state. Till that happens, speculation, news report, analysis would satiate the interest of the citizens here and abroad. This would give us food for thoughts. Who says that handful of votes do not count! So, stay tuned. More is yet to

The writer, a senior research scientist, writes from New Orleans.

by Jim Davis

Emerging Thaw in US-N Korea Relations

OVES to kickstart US-North Korea ties have lately been in evidence. After nearly half a century of the found a huge ally in South enitity, the United States and Korean President Kim Dae Jung. North Korea are trying to mend The latter's "sunshine policy" their relationship. The initial move in this context was taken by aid to the North helped Kim Jong Jo Yong Rok, the second-mostpowerful man in North Korea who visited the White House in the Perry strategy and the prossecond week of October. No deal pect of a Clinton visit to Pyong- wants North Korea to expel four Seoul and Washington have been was forged during Jo's three-day yang, US officials cautioned that members of Japan's red Army chiefly symbolic, and of signifivisit, but as diplomatic forays go, good feelings must be reinforced faction who in 1970 hijacked a cantly greater value to Kim than it was a promising start. The two with concrete actions by the countries issued a joint North. "Our countries are moving the reports from Seoul said, communique that broke no new in a positive direction," said Washington has indicated it will ground, but was encouraging Albright, US Secretary of State. remove Pyongvang from the list of nonetheless. It stressed the 'but as both sides recognise, we importance of the dialogue still have far to go." Fundamental Doing so could open the way to between North and South Korea. issues like lack of transparency missile testing. the 38th parallel against nearly a breakthrough." million adversaries. Yet Jo's visit. the culmination of two years of ing up intriguing signals. Since painstaking diplomacy, has the North-South summit, for moved the peninsula from a state example, Kim Jong II has hinted of near-constant crisis to the that his government might counbrink of rapprochement. The tenance US troops in Korea even United States aims to encourage after reunification a 180 degree

Most of the discussions in talks. Washington during Jo's visit North's satellites into orbit.

States was close to attacking United States, Bill Clinton, to suspected nuclear weapons labs visit. While Washington politics in North Korea. It took a last- could yet throw a wrench in ditch peace mission by former Pyongvang's 'Clinton meet the president Jimmy Carter to pro- People's Paradise' plan, there is duce compromise. Known as the for now less cold water being Agreed Framework, Pyongyang splashed over the notion than pledged to mothball its A-bomb might have been expected. test-fired its newest ballistic Korean moderation. missile. Declared as a "satellite launch", the missile soared over tion genuine? The signs are said northern Japan and crashed into to be positive. For one, it has the Pacific.

in Japan and enraged hawks in out of talks on replacing the Washington. To appease Con- armistice that has been in place gress, Clinton deputized former since the 1950-53 Korean War. Defence Secretary William Perry The North now agrees that a to review his North Korea policy, a formal end to the state of war can Instead Perry adopted a softer the two Koreas, China and the efforts aimed at coaxing Pyong- China and the US.

by ASM Nurunnabi

for South-North dialogue". And focussed on providing financial Il out of his communist cocoon. and Pyongvang and affirmed border or to release Korean War Monetary Fund. North Korea's moratorium on POWs are still outstanding issues It's too early to declare peace in ment, according to an analyst in now claim to have steered the Korea. Some 690,000 South Washington. In his opinion, "Jo's actions of the world's most pow-Korean soldiers and 37,000 visit will help keep tensions in erful nation in war and peace. uniformed Americans still guard check, but it cannot be seen as a Kim might be forgiven for feeling a

That said, analysts were pickthe process while keeping the shift from Pyongyang's longpressure on North Korean leader standing demand that the "impe-Kim Jong II to make concessions. rialists" leave ahead of peace

North Korea has long shown a focussed on North Korea's ballis- flair for forcing the outside world tic missile programme. US to take note of its diplomacy. But Administration was considering on October 12, barely four Kim's proposal that North Korea months after the first summit would end its missile programme between the leaders of the two if other countries agree to put Koreas, Pyongyang dropped a news bombshell by announcing it Barely six years ago the United was inviting the President of the programme in exchange for two Whether Clinton's trip comes light-water nuclear power plants off remains to be seen, but the now under construction in the developments that have led up to North. The crisis flared anew in it are already being seen as an August 1998, when Pyongyang unprecedented show of North

Is North Korea's new moderaabandoned a longstanding insis-The provocation sparked panic tence on shutting South Korea move wisely anticipated to be discussed in the currently harden Washington's stance. stalled four-party talks between view of North Korea's behaviour. United States. That may be suffi-He interpreted North Korea's cient to restart the dialogue, as it missile programme as largely a brings Pyongyang closer to bargaining chip for a desperate Seoul's so-called "two-plus-two" regime fast running out of formula, under which North and options. Rather than push con- South Korea would sign a peace tainment, he endorsed diplomatic treaty first, to be endorsed by yang towards moderation. Last Government analysts in Seoul year he became the highest rank- view Pyongyang's invitation to ing US official to visit North Korea Clinton as sincere. The offer, since the war. At the core of his along with the other measures thinking "was a recognised need agreed to by the North, is interpreted as early but genuine willingness by the North to end its isolation, and move towards peaceful coexistence with the South, if not reunification. According to South Korean media reports, Pyongyang is While relishing the success of considering additional confidence-boosting steps. The US Japan Airlines plane. In return, states sponsoring terrorism. assistance from international a mutual declaration of 'no hos- on food aid, Pyongyang's refusal financial institutions such as tile intent' between Washington to pull its Army back from the World Bank and International and its allies have yet to retake the initiative. While the objective of Washington's diplomacy may be to make Northeast Asia a tangibly safer place, that goal is distant and uncertain. And while Albright's October 23-25 visit produced hope that North Korea may be on the way towards shelving its missile programme, Pyongyang's exchanges with both to his interlocutors.

With talk of a visit by US Presirequiring attention for settle- dent Bill Clinton, North Korea can little pleased. By contrast, the US and maintained.

Between them on the right hand side was the name of Pat Buchanan. Many elderly and African-American voters thought that if they punched the second ball from top they would be voting for Gore. Wrong! They voted for Pat Buchanan. Buchanan himself admitted publicly that his disproportionately high votes in Sensing their mistake, some voters punched the ballot twice, for Buchanan and Gore, which disqualified their ballot. In all over 19,000 ballots were disqualified in Palm Beach alone; most of it would have gone to Gore. The will of the people was not reflected because of the faulty construction of the ballot, the Gore people argue. They also want a hand recount so that imperfectly punched ballots can also be counted. The Democratic voters of the county want a "revote"

(another massacre of Queen's English by the Americans.) First Lady turned US Senator from

New York, Hillary Rodham

Clinton says that she will sponsor legislation to abolish the Electoral College and allow direct from state to state is that the holding of an election is the state's responsibility and is subject to state, not federal laws. It is hard to imagine any judge in Florida ordering a "revote" in any county. That will essentially ensure the election of Al Gore. If the will of the people were truly reflected, Gore would win Florida and be the next President. In the imperfect world we live in, unless the absentee ballots and hand counting drastically alter the vote count, George Bush will win

Florida and the Presidency

The reason why ballots differ election of the President.

Palm Beach belonged to Gore.

What is clear is that North Korea is the driving force behind the recent diplomacy. What may be propelling North Korea's haste in its diplomatic initiatives is concern at the country's protracted food crisis and the dangers that is posing to the longterm survivability of Kim's regime. Washington-based analysts believe there is a realisation in Pyongyang that outside help, at least in the form of trade and investment, will be needed if basic prosperity is to be achieved

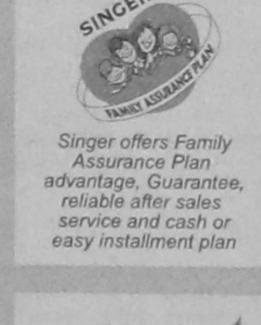

14" Colour Television

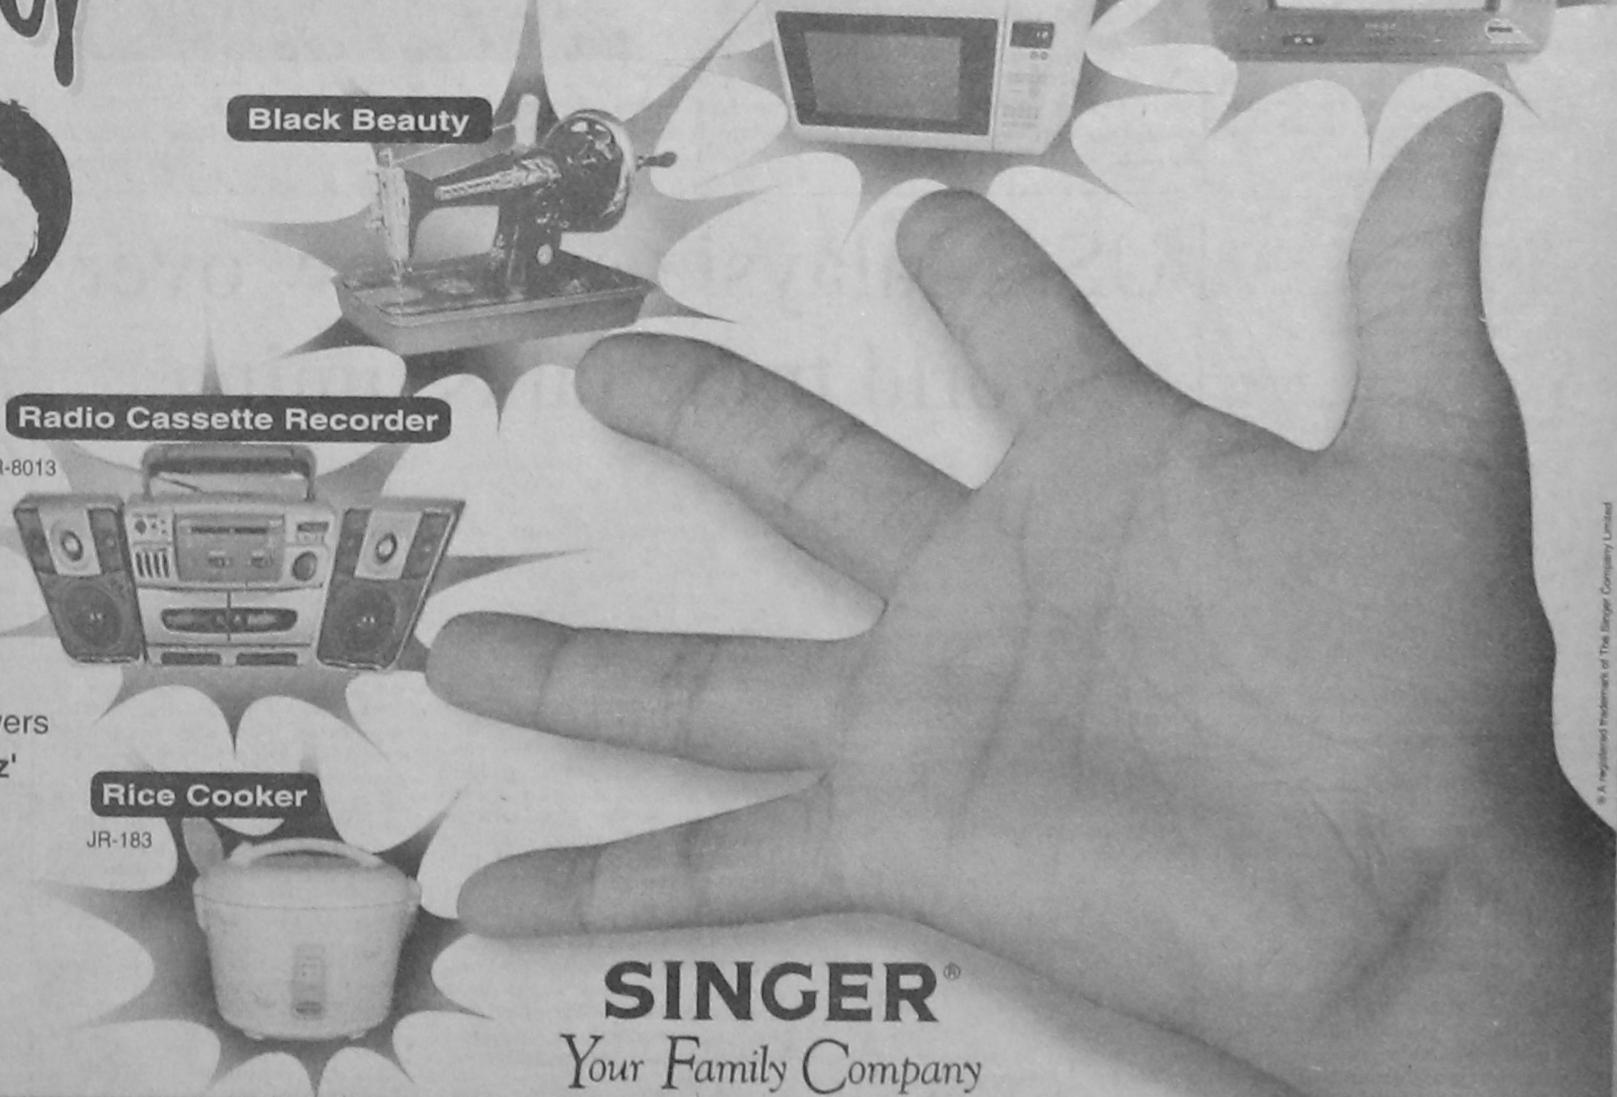

SRCR-8013 All you need to do is send the correct answers to the 'Eid Ananda Quiz' on Channel i and win attractive prizes from Singer.

To find out more details keep an eye on Channel i.

Microwave Oven