Call for greater participation of men in family planning

Health and Family Welfare Minister Sheikh Fazlul Karim Scrim yesterday called for greater participation of men in the family planning programme to contain the population boom.

He said the size of the population can be kept within a limit of greater number of men opt for vasectomy.

He was speaking at an international seminar on "No-scalpel vasectomy" at Matuail on the outskirts of the city.

The minister also cautioned that Bangladesh is likely to face grave situation due to population explosion in the next two decades if corrective measures are not taken right now.

A total of 250 experts from India, Pakistan, Cambodia and Iran attended the one-day seminar organised by Health and Family Welfare Ministry.

While underlining vigorous steps to carry forward the population control programme, the Minister said unless the rapid population growth could be checked Bangladesh would be in trouble with more than 25 crore people by 2050 due to its limited resources and land.

The Health Minister said although the rate of male sterilisation was numerically lower at the early stage of family planning programme, but compared to the overall activities, its impact was remarkable. The number of males who were sterilised in 1969 was four lakh. He said although the acceptability of female sterilisation has gone up since 1980, the rate of voluntary male sterilisation has gone down drastically during the period.
