Technology news - Grameen Bitek

From our last week's ad you know by now that a UPS doesn't protect, you must have a protector before it. Why our VOLT-GUARD? Due to a carelessly done 'NEUTRAL' junction at the street poles 400V may appear on your power line anytime. All our Volt-Guards & Stabilisers are designed to protect up to 440V (get yours tested when purchasing). Surges of thousands of volts may appear due to a lightning nearby, switching of lift, pump, fan, etc., even due to a cheap computer power supply in the vicinity. For this, our special models have specially designed surge-suppressors not available in other brands. We have controlled hysteresis at every step of our fast relay based stabilisers, and in the high-low trip points of our Volt-Guard; this is most likely unique in the world. To achieve top quality we deliberately did not go for product diversification so far.

With your children's education in mind, we now present two IPS, 150VA & 300VA, at Tk.8800 & 13800 respectively, to give electricity back up for about two hours. They have PWM, and most of the needed protections.

You'll get reduced prices during DITF at our stall (no.139, due south of gate) & at our sales centre at 20/2 West Panthopath (behind Sundaram Plaza) Tel. 9117538.

BNP and its allies out to destroy democracy: Razzak

A senior minister told the Jatiya Sangsad yesterday that BNP and its allies were out to destroy democracy by creating anarchy in the country, reports UNB.

Water Resources Minister Abdur Razzak blamed the anti-liberation forces for the bomb attack on CPB rally that left four people dead and several dozens injured.

"They want to destabilise the political atmosphere and fish in troubled water," he said.

Razzak demanded exemplary punishment of those involved in the bomb attack.

"Otherwise democracy and development initiated by Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina will be at stake," he said, as his cabinet colleague Nasim, the Home Minister, also made similar allegations and ordered police action.

The Water Resources Minister was speaking on the thanks motion on the President's speech in parliament.

He observed that Begum Zia's immediate reaction to the incident and bringing out procession by the BNP were all a staged drama.

Abdur Razzak reminded the House of the New Year speech of President Justice Shahabuddin Ahmed in parliament where the president warned against anti-liberation forces.

The Minister said the nation knows who had published parody of the national anthem and hoisted Pakistani flag. "When these forces get united, their masters come up to speak against the independence of the country," he said in an oblique reference to the recent comment by a Pakistani diplomat.

Razzak accused that Pakistan's intelligence agency ISI were involved in these incidents.

The Water Resources Minister said the freedom fighters had been neglected by the previous governments.

Referring to the successes of his Ministry, the Water Resources Minister said it was possible only on the part of this government to ensure a permanent agreement on sharing of the Ganges waters with India.

"Desertification has stopped and steps have been taken to increase agricultural production in the northern areas."

Abdur Razzak expressed his hope that the Bangladesh-India Joint River Commission would be able to reach an agreement regarding sharing of the waters of river Teesta on which both the countries have built barrages.
