Saidpur now a haven for smugglers

From EAM Asaduzzman

NILPHAMARI, Jan 22: Saidpur, the busiest town in the district, is also known as the Railway City.

Country's largest railway workshop is located here. From Saidpur Railway Station, inter-city trains Rupsa, Simanta, Varendra, Titumir and many local trains start long journey for different destinations of northern and southern districts. The station platform is crowded with passengers when the trains depart and arrive. Passengers departing empty handed return with bags and luggage. Most of these passengers carry the smuggled goods. Due to convenient rail connection, Saidpur has now turned out to be smugglers' haven.

Apart from rendering very fast transportation facilities, inter-city services also protect smuggled goods from clutches of local hoodlums. From nearby borders of Rajshahi Naogaon, Joypurhat, Dinajpur Hili, Birampur. Indian goods specially cloth, sugar, salt, cosmetics, spare parts, spices, fruits, phensidil, heroin as other drugs are normally smuggled by these trains. All inter-city trains stop over in Hili station which borders India and is known as haven of smugglers. Although these trains have no scheduled stoppage in this station, but all trains stop over here. Most smugglers get down in this station from trains on way to Khulna and Rajshahi. Immediately hundreds of Indian nationals appear in no man's land. Some smugglers from this end ran into Indian part. The scene is unbelievable, unless one sees it in his own eyes. Ironically it is an international border and both ends are guarded by armed BDR and BSF jawans. However, whenever at the initiative of honest BDR officers, measures are taken to check such activities, border tension grips up.

When these inter-city trains arrive at Saidpur, Nilphamari, these are once again stopped in Birampur and Hili stations. Hundreds of smugglers with smuggled goods ram into the train. Passenger compartments, bunks toilets corridors, electric bogie, buffet cards are all filled with smuggled goods. A section of BDR and police personnel remain silent spectators. After these trains start moving from Hili station, rail police, TTC and attendants divide the compartments amongst themselves. Based on the value of smuggled items, they collect their tolls from them openly. With their help, trains are stopped here and there and smugglers disappear with smuggled goods in no time. Reports are ripe that Parabatipur, Santahar, and Iswardi railway police have leased out their routes to influential smugglers. Reliable sources on condition of not disclosing their names state that auctioneer "P.C" by name pay more than lakhs of taka to the police stations in this area for a single rail route.

In this way, with the direct patronisation of a section of corrupt railway men and rail police, smugglers in this region have established their huge network. The government is deprived of revenues of large amount. Railway is being deprived of large amount of its income. It is all the more dangerous with these smuggled goods are coming firearms posing threat to our national security.

Unless effective measures and steps are taken against these activities, the slogan of the railway authorities for rendering "safe and enjoyable" journey to the passengers will never come true. At the same time, national and economic security will also remain threatened.

Sirajganj cold victims need warm clothes

From Our Correspondent

SIRAJGANJ, Jan 22: Unprecedented cold wave during the last few days has almost halted normal life in this district town.

Severe cold wind coming from the Himalayas has made lives of the dwellers, specially the homeless people of this small town miserable. At least 10 people died here due to cold wave who had been attacked with various cold related diseases. Intensity of cold worsens after mid-day and turns extremely unbearable in the evening. Everyday, fog clouds the town until 8 to 9 am and vehicles ply in the streets with their headlights still on. Although the sun appears for a while around 10 am, but it soon disappears to the dismay of the dwellers. Last Monday morning drizzles made things even more worse. Destitutes are trying to combat this bitter wave through heat generated from burning heaps of straws and old rubber tyres. On the other hand second hand warm cloths sellers are making best use of this situation, are earning handsomely by raising the prices two and even three times. Disease like fever, cough, cold and dysentery have also alarmingly increased. The only government hospital is crowded with bronchitis and asthma patients. But the hospital is short of oxygen and do not have the "lobolizer machine." As a result distress and sufferings of the patients know no bounds. The owners medicine pharmacies also making good use of this abnormal situation have doubled prices of life saving "salbutamol inhalers."

Severeness of cold in this small district town situated near the Jamuna river side is usually bitter than other areas of the country. Which usually deteriorates in January and February observers feel that this cold will worsen further during next few weeks. Cultivation of winter crops, particularly potato is facing damage from this unnatural coldness.

Although some voluntary organisations have come forward with warm clothing for the destitutes, but this is extremely merger compared to requirements. Authoritative sources believe unless the government and the rich section of the country come forward with arrangement for distribution of sufficient warm clothes for the homeless people in this area, possibility of loss of life from this bitter and severe cold may not be ignored.

People here are crowding winter garment shops. Sellers display varieties of warm clothes in shops. Many vendors are also selling garments including old ones, on footpaths and in public places. A large number of make-shift shops have also sprung up in SS Road, Jam-e-Mosque area, station road area, court premises area Bahirgola area. But prices are comparatively high this year, local residents said.

"People of low-income group are flocking shops which sell old warm garments," said Abdul Baten, a resident in the district headquarters.

A threat to wildlife in Cox's Bazar

From Abdul Monayem Khan

COX'S BAZAR, Jan 22: Wildlife, particularly mammals, are gradually disappearing from Cox's Bazar forest region.

Rampant poaching and unabated deforestation are threatening the existence of wild animals in Cox's Bazar, causing imbalance in ecosystem in Chittagong Hill Districts.

It is learnt that 21 species of wild-life have already disappeared and 45 other species are on verge of extinction.

Experts said, poaching, expansion of human settlements, industrialisation and extension of arable lands are the reasons behind the natural degradation.

According to forget officials, the 21 extinct species of animals include nil cow, wild buffalo, wild cow, big horny deer, wolf and three types of rhinoceros.

The species gradually disappeared mainly after the liberation of the country and were totally wiped out in the last 15 years. Besides, the number of tigers, elephants, deers, monkeys, ghorial and dolphin are also decreasing, they added.

The number of wild animals is decreasing every day in five of the seven upazilas of Cox's Bazar due to various reasons for quite a long time. Teknaf, Ukhia, Ramu, Chokoria and Cox's Bazar Sadar upazilas of the district were once teeming with different types of wild animals such as fox, jackal, wild cat and wolf.

But these are now rarely found. These animals mainly live on rats and harmful insects and thus saved the crops.

But during the last three decades the number of wild animals have decreased in an alarming proportion.

The population of the district has been increasing at an alarming rate. Every year new human settlements are established by clearing the jungles. Felling of trees for fire-wood have badly affected the habitat of wild animals.

According to experts, in Bangladesh there are 105 species of mammals, 567 species of birds, 129 species of reptiles and 14 types of amphibians which constitute a rich wild-life resource.

Local people urged the concerned authorities to take proper steps to save the wild animals from further extinction to maintain a healthy environment.

At the same time, indiscriminate felling of fruit-bearing trees caused a serious threat to the ecology and fruit production of Cox's Bazar district. Fruit bearing trees in all the seven upazilas of the district are on verge of extinction, due to large-scale felling.

According to sources, Cox's Bazar Sadar, Ramu, Ukhia, Kutubdia, Moheskhal, Chokoria and Teknaf upazilas were once famous for abundant production of jackfruit, lichi, mango, palm, guava and pineapple.

But now these trees are very few in number due to indiscriminate felling of trees. As the economie condition of the rural people is rapidly deteriorating they are compelled to sell their fruit bearing trees to a section of traders.

Agricultural experts said, the district situated in a region where fruit bearing trees grow with minimum care and cost. A huge quantity of surplus fruits were marketed by the growers.

Some farmers said, they took loans from the money lenders by mortgaging their trees to meet their daily expenses. They failed to refund the loans and ultimately they lost their trees after a few years.

It may be mentioned that there are 80 brickfields and 65 saw-mills in the district.

Hundreds of wood-loaded trucks are seen on their way to different areas of the country every day. On the other hand, planting of fruit-bearing trees is rare, causing ecological imbalance which is changing the rainfall and weather pattern of the district.
