Number of crimes drops to a three-year low

Law and order in the country improved significantly last year with the number of crimes dropping to a three-year low, police said, reports BSS.

They said 1,08,784 cases were filed with police last year for crimes compared to 1,19,742 in 1999 and 1,14,226 in 1998.

A senior official at the police headquarters told BSS that according to official statistics, the crime rate of 2000 dropped by 9.15 per cent compared to 1999.

The official said the number of the violent crimes like dacoity, robbery, murder, rioting, and child repression was less last year than that of the previous year. The incidents of women repression and smuggling, however, went up over the period.

The statistics showed that the crime rate in 1996 rose by 12.51 per cent compared to 1995 and in 1997 the trend of rise continued to grow by 9.48 per cent compared to 1996.

The year 1998 posted highest increase in crime rates when 11.81 per cent more crimes were committed in the country compared to 1997. The year 1999 also saw a rise in crime rates by 4.83 per cent compared to 1998. The number of crimes continued to rise till 1999. But, last year, the number dropped breaking the ever-rising trend. According to the statistics, 1,02,161 crime incidents took place in 1997, 93,310 in 1996 and 82,931 in 1995.
