New phone system introduced for quick police action in city

UNB, Dhaka

Dhaka Metropolitan Police yesterday introduced a new phone system for quick police action against crimes.

"If you need any police help, just dial 999 from digital or non-digital phone. It is toll-free," said AIG (E&T) Bazul Karim who supervised the new system to deal with crimes fast.

The Prime Minister opened the newly-built system pressing 999 on Sunday night and talked to the Home Minister. It's a hunting number.

Police sources said one more telephone link is being given to 21 police stations so the police could get information instantly.

Several police teams armed with equipment and logistic support including cars will remain ready in police headquarters for instant movement to the scene of crime anywhere in the DMP area.

Using the new method, police took instant action after receiving a message at 999 about a fire that gutted more than 150 shanties in Mohammadpur Satmasjid Basteer at about 3 pm.
