JU first year classes from Mar 18

JU CORRESPONDENT

First year honours classes of Jahangirnagar University (JU) under 2000-2001 session will begin on March 18, official sources said.

A total of 869 students - 509 male and 360 female - have been enrolled at 24 departments under three faculties and one institute.

Besides, 100 more students have been admitted under different quotas, such as freedom fighters' ward quota, players' quota, tribal students' quota, cultural activists' quota and university teachers, officers and employees' ward quota.

The newly admitted students of this session are beginning their classes much earlier than the previous batches. The previous batches began their classes after an average of 22 months from completion of their HSC examinations. This batch begins their classes after 11 months of completion of HSC examinations.

Following directives of the Education Minister, the university authorities decided to begin this session's classes from March 18 to reduce session jam.

However, the new batch who are entering the university against the 1998-99 session masters batch will have to face acute accommodation problem. The university has to provide seat to each student as it is the only full-fledged residential one.

As the final year students of 1998-99 session will need more six to seven months to complete their studies, the newcomers will have to share beds with the senior students for this period.

JU Eid vacation begins Mar 3
