It's not all that easy to attract the attention of journalists. To do so, one may have to be a little bit innovative. So, cricket officials in Wellington came up with a novel way of getting some headlines for a one-day match played at the Basin Reserve in 1997. They employed a male streaker to run across the pitch during play - and a female entertainer to play the part of the arresting officer.

Mixed bag on Mobasser act

Cricket
SPORTS REPORTER

The much-talked-about polls tale of the Bangladesh Cricket Board (BCB) got another twist on Sunday when Mobasser Hossain tendered his resignation just four days after he was elected one of the 29 Board of Directors.

The sudden change of hearts of Mobasser, a councillor of Brothers Union, caught most of the Dhaka-based directors by surprise.

Although Mobasser's quitting is yet to be officially confirmed with the BCB President Saber Hossain now in Saudi Arabia to perform Hajj, the decision of the country's leading developer has put a question mark over the entire election. It was reported that his resignation has been triggered by allegations of bribery in the polls.

The February 25 election came under severe criticism after a few candidates alleged that the Jafar Imam-led District and Divisional Forum manoeuvred the election with a 'vote for cash' campaign. Besides, there were also reports of arms show-off and political influences before the election of the most affluent sports federation of the country.

The National Sports Council (NSC), the governing body of country's sports, recently formed a three-member probe committee amidst growing dissatisfaction among the sports lovers of the country.

Many feel that the resignation of Mobasser might encourage a few other directors with conscience to follow suits. But there were also others elected from Dhaka clubs who opined otherwise.

"I'm not in a position to make any comment. Besides, I'm not sure yet if he (Mobasser) has resigned. But if that is true, then I must say that it was an act of an escapist", said Mahmud Ul Huq, who notched highest 90 votes in the election for 18 directors from Dhaka-based clubs.

Hooper given the reins

Cricket
INTERNET, BRIDGETOWN

Following a week of speculation, 34-year-old Guyanese batsman Carl Hooper has been named as captain of the West Indies for the five Test series against South Africa on Friday evening.

The appointment of Hooper was announced by West Indies Cricket Board chief executive officer Gregory Shillingford, who explained that the captain had been chosen following a democratic process involving the president of the WICB and all twelve of its directors. The appointment came following the recommendation of the regional selection panel of Michael Findlay, Joey Carew, Joel Garner and Roger Harper.

A veteran of 80 Tests and 182 one-day internationals, Hooper announced his retirement in April, 1999. Hooper has played 80 Tests and 182 one-day internationals. He is a player of immense talent but has frequently disappointed and has a moderate average of 33.76.

But after a stint in Australia with his Australian wife and their child, he returned to the Caribbean for a stunning domestic season leading Guyana. Hooper broke a tournament batting record with 889 runs at an average of 97, including four centuries, took 24 wickets with his off-spin.

There were fears that fans would boycott the Test if Hooper was not made captain.

The first of five Tests against South Africa starts in Hooper's hometown, Georgetown, Guyana next week.

The man whose shoes Hooper now fills, Jimmy Adams, saw a dismal slump in his fortunes over the last 18 months. In the five Test series against Australia which ended in January, Adams scored poorly, with three ducks and no score over 49.

Taking over from Brian Lara last February, Adams led the West Indies to victory in four of his first six Tests at the helm, against Zimbabwe, Pakistan and England, in which he averaged 65.

But his team's fortunes and his own declined dramatically.

The West Indies were beaten 3-1 in the Test series in England last summer, when Adams averaged 24.44, and suffered a 5-0 sweep in Australia in the series that ended in January.

Adams failed to pass 50 in 10 innings and averaged 18.8.

He has not been included in a squad of 16 named by West Indies selectors for a pre-Test training camp in Trinidad.

In a brief official statement released by the WICB Saturday, the board said it "wishes to thank outgoing captain, Jimmy Adams, for his contribution and efforts in leading the West Indies team during a very testing period."

"We wish him the very best in the future," the statement concluded.

Ironically, the two opposing captains in Saturday's Busta Shield final are Carl Hooper and Jimmy Adams.

Adams, in an interview with CANA on Friday, appealed to fans in Kingston not to heckle Hooper during this weekend's final.

"I don't see any reason to boo any player - certainly not Carl, who has done nothing but come back (from retirement) and represent his country with distinction," Adams said in the interview.

Ehlvest pips Vozhin at the post

SPORTS REPORTER

Estonian Grandmaster Jan Ehlvest crowned himself as the champion of the 5th United Insurance Grandmasters Chess Tournament Saturday.

It was a remarkable late rally from the bespectacled Estonian that broke the heart of Russian GM Alexander Volzhin in the final round of the 13-round meet.

Needing a victory on the final day, Ehlvest did it in style, defeating an otherwise impressive Uzbek IM Vakhidov Tahir, to tie the score with Volzhin at 8.5. But Ehlvest clinched the title, winning more games than his Russian counterpart.

Although Ehlvest led the board through out the tournament, he paid the price of a series of dull draws at the final stage including his Saturday's game against Latvian IM Igor Rausis.

Another Latvian GM Normunds Miezis captured the third place with 8 points. Miezis beat IM Zaur Rahman in the final round.

Although the tournament offered a perfect opportunity for Zia to earn his final GM norm, but he disappointed the home supporters with timid showings.

Niaz Murshed, the lone GM of the country, did not start well but eventually finished with a respectable fourth position collecting seven points. Niaz defeated GB Prakash in the final round.

The event traditionally favoured Englishmen with three of the four previous title going to them, but GM Nigel Davies failed for a change. He could manage seven points.

Champion and runner-up won cash awards of 1550 US dollars each. Miezis got 700 US dollars and Niaz got 300 US dollars.

Moidul Islam, chairman of the sponsors United Insurance Company limited, distributed prizes among the winners. Bangladesh Chess Federation President Dr. M. Mostofa Chowdhury also attended the ceremony.

Fiesta in calm city

Hockey
SPORTS REPORTER

There will be less traffic and air pollution in the city when the eight foreign teams would be arriving in Dhaka to take part in the Prime Minister's Gold Cup Hockey Tournament.

The nine-nation meet, which will also include hosts Bangladesh, will kick off at the Maulana Bhasani Stadium on March 10.

Five teams including India and Pakistan will arrive on March 8, the day after the Eid-ul-Azha. China will be the first team to come over on March 7 while Japan reach on March 9. Only Ireland are yet to confirm their arrival.

This was going to be the biggest international hockey tournament since Bangladesh staged the Asian Cup way back in 1985.

All the foreign teams will stay at Hotel Sheraton while hosts Bangladesh will be housed at Grand Azad.

The national team had its last practice session Saturday. But the players had been asked to reach the hotel on the night of Eid.

The organisers Bangladesh Hockey Federation has finalised the rate of gallery tickets. A gallery ticket for the first round matches will cost Taka 10. For the two semifinals ticket will be on sale at Taka 20, and a ticket for final will cost Taka 30.

Bangladesh, who have been pencilled into Group A, will play the inaugural match against Japan.

Apart from Bangladesh matches, the home supporters will certainly be looking forward to enjoying another India-Pakistan clash in the final. Back in 1985, the two bitter rivals fought in the final of Asia Cup at the Bangabandhu National Stadium.

Same old Gough

Cricket
AFF, Sri Lanka

England fast bowler Darren Gough was given his marching orders by skipper Nasser Hussain after another tantrum during a limited-overs practice match against a Sri Lanka Colts XI here Saturday.

England won the match easily coasting home by eight wickets with more than six overs to spare in what is their final match in preparation for Wednesday's second Test against Sri Lanka in Kandy.

England scored 250 for two wickets off 43.4 overs, in reply to the Sri Lanka Colts XI's 249 for seven off 50 overs.

This match replaced a three-day game which was originally scheduled to be played here.

The Yorkshire bowler was accidentally tripped by Colts XI batsman Indika de Saram as he went to field off his own bowling in the 37th over of the innings.

He fell to the ground and having got to his feet pointed his finger at the batsman. At the end of the over Gough snatched his sunglasses from umpire TM Samarasinghe.

Hussain followed the disgruntled bowler to third man and, pointing to the dressing room, appeared to tell Gough to go and cool down. The stocky paceman stormed off and appeared to say a few words to Samarasinghe on his way.

He returned later to complete his quota of overs and take the wicket of De Saram.

This was not the first time that Gough has lost his temper on the tour.

In England's first game in Colombo he waved a bat in the face of a schoolboy and verbally abused a Sri Lankan bowler after being caught at bat pad.

He was reported to the Sri Lanka Cricket Board, but no action was taken by the England management as the opposition did not press for any charges.

Gough's incident apart, England had a scare when their informant batsman Marcus Trescothick sustained a knee injury while fielding.

Trescothick pulled up in his follow through during his third over, clutching his left knee. He was forced to hobble of the pitch with physio Dean Conway assisting him. Craig White completed the over.

The injury to Trescothick didn't appear to be serious as he raced to a well struck half-century off 35 balls that included nine fours. Together with Hussain they laid the foundation for England's victory with an opening stand of 138 off 21 overs.

Trescothick went on to make an attractive 85 off 68 balls with 13 fours, and with Hussain scoring a fluent 73 off 99 balls England won quite comfortably.

The local team's batting was boosted by De Saram's entertaining knock of 62 off 64 balls. Lanka de Silva chipped in with a com-
