The weak yen dragged the South Korean won down to a 29 month low of 1,327.50 to the dollar on Friday despite government promises to take action to bolster the Analysts said the won could go down to 1,350 before it found any support. The fall would be good for exports but bad for South Korea's oil bill.

The won, which closed Thursday at 1,318.60, fell at one stage Friday to 1,330.90. The closing rate was the lowest since it ended at 1,328 won on October 20, 1998.

The Ministry of Finance and Economy said it was ready to take steps to stem the won's fall. But the statement had little effect.

Dealers said the government also directed some state-run banks to sell dollars but that also failed to slow the pace of the fall.

"The government is closely monitoring the forex market trend and is ready to take appropriate steps when necessary," said the ministry statement.

India scraps import curbs on 700 items today Move to hurt small producers, say analysts

AFP. New Delhi

India's plans to scrap import curbs on more than 700 products from Saturday will mean stiffer competition for small farmers and producers, analysts warned Friday.

K.K. Jain, president of the Federation of Indian Export Organisation (FIEO), said there was no major impact when India lifted curbs on 714 new foreign products last year in line with its World Trade Organisation (WTO) commitments.

"But this year things might pinch a little. Last year, India removed import curbs mainly on industrial or luxury items. This time everything from safety pins to agricultural goods will be allowed to be freely imported," said Jain.

"Small producers and farmers will get hurt unless there are adequate safeguards in place. The government has to be sensitive to the fact that they could go out of business if there is no level playing field," he warned.

Sega teams up with Microsoft for Xbox titles

AFP, Tokyo

Troubled Japanese computer game company Sega Corp. on Friday announced it was teaming up with Microsoft Corp. to become a game software supplier for the US giant's new Xbox games console.

Sega, which announced in January it was pulling out of its loss-making Dreamcast game console production, is developing 11 game titles for Microsoft's online games console, due to be launched this autumn, the two companies said in a statement.

"Our decision to go in with Xbox is part of Sega's multiplatform strategy to provide Xbox users with Sega's rich contents services," Sega President Tetsu Kayama said.

Sega's software titles will be customised for the audio and hard-disk capacity of the Xbox console.

"Sega's supply of the Xbox titles represents a major plus for game users worldwide," Microsoft chief Xbox officer Robert J. Bach

He added the partnership would help the company build up its game business. Sega's first four software scheduled for release include the provisionally-titled Jet Grind Radio Future, an action title originally sold for the Dreamcast. The Xbox is due to be launched this autumn, with Bill Gates's Mi crosoft touting it as the most powerful games console yet in a bid to break into the multi-billion-dollar business dominated by Japan. Microsoft says the new ma-

The market was disappointed after European Central Bank (ECB) kept its interest rates - Standard Chartered Bank unchanged.

Maxwell son played role in co collapse

AFP, London

A British government enquiry strongly criticised on Friday leading City institutions, including US investment bank Goldman Sachs, for their role in the collapse nine years ago of the fraudulent business empire of tycoon Robert Maxwell.

An official report into the financial scandal found that Maxwell himself was primarily responsible for the financial malpractice that brought his business crashing down soon after his own mysterious death in 1992. But the trade and industry department report also found that Maxwell's son Kevin bore a "heavy responsibility" for many of the events leading to the collapse of the family's business empire. It further concluded that Goldman Sachs merchant bank bore a "substantial responsibility" for allowing Robert Maxwell to manipulate the stock market.
