Regional cooperation needed to combat human trafficking

SAARCFUW seminar stresses on effective action to fight cross border smuggling of people

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Speakers at the day-long seminar on "Trafficking of Women and Children in SAARC Countries" in the city yesterday called for forging cooperation among the South-east Asian nations to combat human trafficking, one of the main problems of the region.

Expressing grave concern over the growing incidents of women and children being trafficked in the region, they observed the necessity of a well thought-out plan of action and its effective implementation to reduce the rate of women and children trafficking.

SAARC Federation of University Women (SAARCFUW) organised the seminar on the occasion of its 4th council meeting. Foreign Minister Abdus Samad Azad referred to the various government initiatives including adoption of a special legislative measure for empowerment and protection of women and children. He however pointed out "All the efforts will be in vain if we fail to generate public awareness about this menace and create effective social resistance against this crime".

Termining human trafficking a major concern for all the countries in the region, the Foreign Minister said that women and children constitute almost half of the population but they are also the most vulnerable in the society.

Foreign Minister Abdus Samad Azad referred to the various government initiatives including adoption of a special legislative measure for empowerment and protection of women and children. He however pointed out "All the efforts will be in vain if we fail to generate public awareness about this menace and create effective social resistance against this crime".

While explaining the theme of the SAARCFUW, Prof. Najma Siddiqi said an estimated 200,000 women have been trafficked out from Bangladesh in the last ten years. She further said that an average of 4,500 women and children are trafficked to Pakistan for prostitution and bonded labor.

She also said that the incidents of trafficking in women and children in South Asia have reached a dangerous level in the recent days. "It has become a national, regional and international matter of concern."

The participants at the end of the discussion set a series of recommendations to combat human trafficking.

The recommendations include enhancing cooperation among the SAARC countries, taking up a plan of action and its effective implementation, bringing the offenders to justice, creating awareness among the people, making the women more conscious about themselves and rooting out the causes of the problem.

Among others, member of SAARCFUW Zeenat Ara Bhuiyan and director general of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs Mollamujarar Quayas addressed the function.
