Three mobile courts to check air, noise pollution

STAR REPORT

The government will set up three mobile courts to check air and noise pollution in the city.

The decision came after a highlevel meeting on November 1 at the home ministry.

The court consisting of one magistrate, an inspector and three experts from the World Bankaided Air Quality Management Project (AQMP) will be in operation on December 4, 5 and 6, 2001 in three zones, sources in the Ministry of Environment said The three main points are Manik Mia Avenue where the court will be set up on December 4, Sayedabad Bridge on December 5 and the Airport Road in front of Rural Electrification Board on December 6.

Most of the vehicles will be inspected for exhaust emissions and hydraulic horns between 10:00 am and 1:00 pm everyday.

In recent years, the use of hydraulic horns and the emission of black fumes have reached alarming proportions.

The director general of Department of Environment (DoE) and the DMP police commissioner have been assigned to implement the action programme, which was aimed at disciplining the traffic

Exclusively for you control system in the city. According to a 1997 study by the Bangladesh Atomic Energy Commission (BAEC), the deposit of lead in the air was 463 nanograms per square metre. In a DoE study of 2000, the deposit of lead in the air ranges between 80 and 180 nanograms per square metre, but the figure came down to 67 when tested last month by the same department. On November 13, the DoE also detected sulphur dioxide in the air in Farmgate, Jatrabari and Tejgaon areas. The level at some places was found beyond the recommended level of 100 micrograms per square metre. The level of nitrogen oxide in the air was found well below the recommended limit of 100 micrograms per square metre.

Environmentalists, however, differ with the findings saying the results are not satisfactory and lead is still present in the air beyond the recommended level of 500-1,500 nanograms per square
