Fusion in fashion

Leading fashion house Andes' latest collection speaks volumes about its designer Aneela Haque's originality and her unique fashion statement like to make men look trendy" - said talented fashion designer Aneela Haque while talking about her latest collection. Aneela Hague, managing director of AnDes Ltd, a house for advertising, event management, graphic design and boutique, is running her business successfully for more than one decade now.

Aneela graduated in Visual Arts from Stephens College, Columbia, Missouri in 1991 and studied fine arts in Italy. She has already founded several business organisations. These are AnDes Ltd. for advertising, AnDes Fashions Ltd. for boutique and Presence Ltd. for Signage Graphics. She worked as a Freelance Artist with BRAC, UNICEF, CARE, Ford Foundation and many other reputed organisations.

AnDes' latest collection suits the contemporary tastes. Describing the collection Aneela said, "My designs offer a different kind of taste. I put up whatever I like and wear. We have created our own trends by setting up our own standards." The collection includes casual and evening wears. Aneela focuses

"Fusion is my favourite," she said while talking about her design themes and use of colours. Aneela's themes are cross-cultural as she happily blends Islamic, Egyptian, Persian and Vietnamese art into her design. "My prints are all from ancient art history and it changes. Every month I create new designs.

entire outlook" - said Aneela.

She felt people should be more careful while buying clothes for themselves. The elegance of the dress has to go with the one who is going to wearthem.' Aneela also designs customised clothing for individuals. She advises them on the clothes they should wear. "Our concept and design is entirely different. Especially my graphic design, photography and painting experience has made it totally different." The material and craftsmanship that go into her collection includes block prints, acid prints, batik, tie die, Kantha works and some embroidery. She uses cotton, Khadi, Endi silk and some silk clothing for men and crepe silk, chiffon, cotton and Khadi for women's clothes. Her collection for women includes short Kameez, which gives the '60s look and western shirts, her winter collec-

Khadi shawls. Saris available at AnDes also include blouse pieces that goes with the saris and the Anchals includes very heavy graphic works. Jamdani in salwar Kameez and other combination gives them a fusion look.

Children wear includes Salwar Kameez and Kurtas.

Besides designer's wear, AnDes also has a wide range of fashion accessories like brass, silver and gold-silver fusion jewellery for women. They also have very few stationery items such as handmade hyacinth paper, cards, jewellery boxes, journals, photo frames, gift wrapping items etc. The price range for different items vary depending upon the design, quantity of material and other things like stitches and textures but most of them are very reasonably
