450 tonnes Saudi dates for flood-hit students

UNB, Dhaka
Saudi Arabia has donated 450 metric tons of dates for around 80,000 flood affected students who are orphans and whose fathers died or abandoned their families. The World Food Programme received the dates from a Saudi official at a function here yesterday. The dates were sent for the students affected by floods in southwestern Bangladesh 18 months ago. Each of the students will get five kilograms of dates to share with other members of their families, the function was told. The dates will be distributed among the students in three districts -- Jessore, Satkhira and Jhenaidah -- through schools, mosques, madrassah and orphanages. WFP field staff will monitor the distribution. Saudi Arabia also sent 800 metric tons of dates a year back to assist nearly 200,000 families affected by floods in southwest Bangladesh in 2000. Senior official of the Saudi Ministry of Finance and National Economy Mansur Ali-Mutairi handed over the dates to WFP Country Director Pieter Dijkhuizen at the function.
