Severe cold wave in 7 dists

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Severe cold has been prevailing in Chuadanga and greater Barisal for the last few days. Agencies report: In Chuadanga temperature sometime comes down to 12 degree Celsius.

Almost every day, in the morning and in the evening, the situation is deteriorating. The movement of the common people and playing of rickshaws and vans are decreasing to a great extent.

According to Chuadanga Weather office sources, the situation might continue for the next few days more. There had been some rainfall in Chuadanga before four days and the sky was clouded. Severe cold wave has been prevailing since then.

The poor people who have no sufficient warm cloths are the worst sufferers.

The greater Barisal region is now gripped by a severe cold wave which claimed two lives in the past several days, officials said in Barisal.

Mercury has now dropped below 14 degrees Celsius in Barisal where it is below 12 degrees in neighbouring Jhalakathi, Pirojpur, Bhola, Patuakhali and Barguna forcing many people to stay indoors and exposing the distressed including children to biting cold under open sky.

People have been returning to their homes long before the sunset to escape winter chills accompanied by winds from northern directions.

Officials said shivering colds affect the poor along with their kinds. They collect waste papers, straws and other such materials for bonfire and sit around it to escape winter chill in daytime. But the necessity of winter clothes, blankets or quilts became acutely felt during nights.

The worst affected people also included old asthma patients, children and labourers.

The local people apprehended that the temperature will still fall further in the next few days. Under these circumstances, the sufferings of the people further aggravate.

People of the region including public representatives urged the government and voluntary organisations to supply winter clothes and blankets to the poor.

Legend of Hazrat Shahjalal (RA)

Two-day Urs concludes today in Sylhet

IQBAL SIDDIQUEE, Sylhet

The 682nd Urs of great saint Hazrat Shahjalal (RA) began at the shrine in Sylhet town from the early hours of Sunday (February 3).

Every year, thousands of devotees, both Muslims and Hindus from across the country join the two-day congregation. The occasion starts with placing of Gilaf (cover) on the grave of the great saint in presence of a large gathering. Other features of the programme includes Qurankhwani, milad mahfil and Jikir Ajker.

It will concludes through Akheri Munajat and distribution of alms at 3 am on the second day. A country fair is also organised around the shrine every year. It begins two days ahead of the Urs and ends after two days of the same, attracting a good number of people, from far flung areas.

The legend of Hazrat Shahjalal (RA) is as follows. It was the year 1303. At that time, Shamsuddin Firoze Shah was the Sultan of Bengal. There were some small states on the foot of Khasia-Jaintia hills ruled by some Hindu kings. Some Muslim people also used to live in those states under the rule of cruel Hindu kings.

Borhanuddin, a Muslim citizen slaughtered a bullock as a sacrificial animal on the occasion of his son's Akika. A kite (bird) picked up a piece of meat from the house which the bird fell inside the temple of king Gouragovinda. The king became very angry at it and made a thorough search. His men detected the matter and caught Borhanuddin. They took him before the king. Ordered by the cruel king, Borhanuddin slaughtered his son. Borhanuddin's right arm was also severed as punishment. Borhan then went to the Sultan and sought justice.

The Sultan sent a contingent led by Sikander Gazi to face Gouragovinda. But, he was defeated in a bloody war on the bank of the river Brahmaputra. Sikander had to accept defeat thrice to Gouragovinda. It seriously hurt the Sultan of Bengal. This time, he sent a new warrior leader Syed Nasiruddin who met with Hazrat Shahjalal (RA) on way.

Then Shahjalal was at Tribeni of Satgaon on his way from Yemen. Syed Nasiruddin sought help from Hazrat Shahjalal. The Muslim contingent was very afraid of the danger after repeated defeats.

Hazrat Shahjalal alongwith 360 companions started their journey with Syed Nasiruddin. Shahjalal and the group reached the bank of the river Surma. There was no boat to cross it. He laid the 'Jainamaj' (a clean sheet of cloth on which Muslims offer prayers) on the river and crossed the river over it. Thus the great saint made his way to the Sylhet region. A coward, Gouragovinda fled away through the back door of his palace. Shahjalal and his men won the war in Sylhet region with slogans like 'Allahu Akbar' and without any blood shed.

Hazrat Shahjalal (RA) was born in the city of Kurnia in Turkey. His forefathers went to Turkey from Yemen and settled there. His father's name is Makhdum Bin Mohammad. Shahjalal lost his parents during childhood. His maternal uncle Syed Ahmed Kabir who used to live near Makkah reared him up.

The spirituality of Shahjalal developed there. One day, he gave Shahjalal a handful of soil and asked for going to Hindustan with a mission for preaching Islam. He also told him to choose a place, "soil of which is found similar to that sample." One Chashni peer, a saint and one of the companions of Hazrat Shahjalal (RA) was entrusted with the task of comparing the soil. The Chashni peer found the soil of Sylhet similar to the soil they were carrying.

Hazrat Shahjalal (RA) then decided to settle in Sylhet permanently. But, he then handed over the power to some of his companions and engaged himself in prayers. Hazrat Shahjalal (RA) breathed his last while was in 'Sejdah' and performing his johr prayers on a day in the year 1340, according to the historians.

A number of personal articles used by the great saint himself are still preserved in Dargah area, Sylhet.

A fair to raise awareness on water, sanitation programmes

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

It was a unique way to show how people could be educated on issues that need urgent attention. A typical village mela or festivity that attracts hundreds or perhaps thousands together for amusement and yet meeting the challenge reaching messages on use of safe water and hygiene practice.

A total of 17 non-governmental organisations (NGOs) working in water and sanitation programmes took part in the village mela aiming to raise awareness on water and sanitation programmes or more popularly known as WATSAN in village Belita of Manikganj, some 50 km from the capital.

"We have organised this fair to raise mass awareness about use of safe drinking water and hygiene practice. These are our prime targets but most important of all is to inspire people about the significance of health hazards from unhygienic use of latrines," said Sharif Uddin Ahmad, convenor of the mela organising committee.

Like every year since last five years the mela started simultaneously in 11 other places covering all divisions in the second week of November.

Grameen Sheba Sangstha (GSS), a local NGO took the lead in masterminding the mela in Manikganj with the support of NGO Forum for Drinking Water and Sanitation.

According to official figures, less than 37 per cent of the rural population use sanitary latrines against 65 per cent in the urban areas. The coverage of safe drinking water is much better at almost 96 per cent.
